Equal Front Yards For Second Phase

The second phase of Point San Pedro Road widening, between Porto Bello and a point 300 feet east of Margarita Drive, will be done on the central alignment plan, leaving small but equal front yards for homes on both sides of the road.

This course was voted 8-2 last night by Marin County supervisors and San Rafael City Council. Supervisor John F. McInnis and Councilman Charles W. Aby voted no.

Residents on the north side of the road complained the central allignment was taking three times as much property from them as from their neighbors to the south.

The reason, said Lewis Aaron of 325 Point San Pedro Road, is that homes on the north side have 40-foot setbacks while those to the south have only 20-foot setbacks.

Ronald Fine of 313 Point San Pedro Road joined Aaron, saying "My home complies with all setback requirements. Those across the street got variances. Now they're taking three times as much land from our side."

Councilman Fred E. Jensen, a retired contractor, recalled that he did a lot of work in the area when homes were going in on the north side of the road.

"The 40-foot setbacks were required because they knew the road would have to be widened some day and the base was stronger to the north," he added.

Joseph Cervetto of 24 Sea Way, president of the Marina Vista Assn. on the other side of the road, said his 36 members were satisfied with the central allignment.

To accomodate those to the north, McInnis moved to delete from the plans five feet of planter strip on each side of the road.

County Public Works Director Donald R. Frost said only four feet should be removed, leaving five feet on each side for utilities and sidewalk.

Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen made a substitute motion to that effect and it passed 7-3, with Supervisor McInnis, Mayor C. Paul Bettini and Councilman Louis H. Baar voting no.

McInnis then moved to delete the sidewalks from the plan on the south side. There was no second.

Supervisor Peter H. Behr moved, and it was voted 8-2, to approve the central allignment with deletion of the planter strips.

McInnis and Dr. Aby, in voting no, argued that the center strip of the road should be moved south to save eight feet of property for those on the north, rather than four feet for each side.

Courthouse Gets Boot From Board

County Eyes Bid By City

By STEPHEN COOK

The century-old county courthouse in San Rafael was given the boot last night by a 4-1 vote of the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Only Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen opposed the vote to cancel a restriction requiring that whoever buys the courthouse square—keep the courthouse intact for five years.

The action came at the close of a joint meeeting with the San Rafael City Council which also saw councilmen, backed by Supervisor John F. McInnis, bid to negotiate for city purchase of the square.

DEADLINE TALK

Supervisors indicated they would like to negotiate, if the city could get up the money before the county is forced, by cash needs, to close bidding for sale of the square.

Chairman Thomas T. Storer said the board would descuss extension of its present Feb. 14 bid deadline at its meeting today.

Kettenhofen said the vote to lift the five-year restriction should also have waited until today, when the only bidder for the square at the moment, developer Harry Heifetz, would be present.

HEIFETZ VIEWS

Storer echoed the majority opinion on the board when he said, "It makes no difference to Heifetz whether the restriction is there or not."

But, apparently it does make a difference to Heifetz and his silent partner, cosmetic manufacturer William Penn Patrick. Heifetz told the Independent-Journal last week that they need the five years to complete plans for the square.

"If the city is going to be able to make us tear the building down right away, it isn't worth $900,000 to us," Heifetz said then.

MERCHANTS WORRY

McInnis said he would like to see San Rafael buy the square and added that supervisors incurred an obligation to help the city when they moved the civic center.

He told of Fourth Street merchants who would no longer be there if it were not for the hope of redevelopment for the courthouse square block.

"Not even Macy's will stay if their location is not enhanced by another major retail store," he said.

Assuming that the Heifetz bid of $900,000 is a fair price, he said, the city could probably buy the property for $750,000 if it did not charge the county rent for two years and if there was no real estate commission involved.

The city could ease the strain on its coffers he said, by applying for a 50 per cent space grant

U.S. FORCES SMASH AT IRON TRIANGLE

COMBINED AP & UPI

SAIGON — A multi-division force of more than 30,000 U.S. and Vietnamese troops swarmed through the Viet Cong's Iron Triangle stronghold today in the biggest ground operation of the war.

The massive campaign through the jungles and abandoned rubber plantations northwest of Saigon was aimed at clearing the area once and for all of Communist bases from which almost daily terrorist attacks are launched on the capital.

U.S. military spokesmen said the campaign was secretly launched at dawn Sunday. Within 36 hours 92 Viet Cong were reported killed, 16 captured and 159 suspects arrested in a sweep through the area which has been Communist controlled for years.

The area, some 30 miles northwest of Saigon, was bombed in a four-day series of 11 raids by American B-52 Stratofortresses prior to the massive assault. About 8,000 Vietnamese villagers were evacuated from hamlets in the region.

Spokesmen declined to report how many troops were involved in the maneuver, but confirmed that it was a multi-divisional force — meaning more than 30,000 men.

In addition to the huge round-up of Viet Cong killed and captured, U.S. troops seized a large cache of supplies and ammunition.

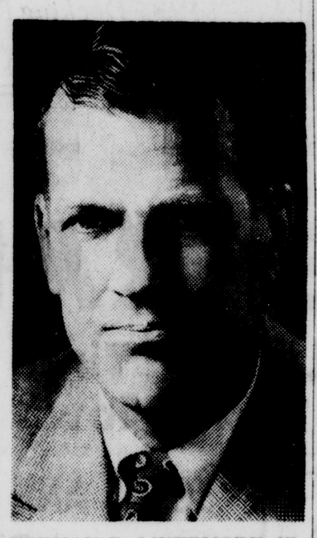
Livermore Named Top Reagan Aide



NORMAN B. LIVERMORE JR. Top post with Reagan

Norman B. Livermore Jr. of San Rafael will be appointed administrator of the State Resources Agency tomorrow, one of three top-level posts in the Reagan Administration.

Gov. Ronald Reagan is expected to make Livermore's appointment public at a press conference in Sacramento. Livermore, who met Reagan for the first time last Friday, said today he will "drive up from San Rafael after breakfast" for the 9 a.m. conference.

Livermore will head five departments—parks and recreation, fish and game, conservation, water resources, and harbors and watercraft.

"Governor Reagan is eliminating five of the eight superagencies the Brown administration had," explained Livermore, "and concentrating eight into three."

"I am tremendously excited," said Livermore, 55, "having once reached the decision, which was difficult, since it will represent a considerable financial sacrifice."

He is treasurer of Pacific Lumber Co. in San Francisco, a position he's held for 15 years. The state post will pay $27,500 a year.

As administrator of the State Resources Agency, Livermore said he "hopes to accomplish a fair administration, mainly between economic interests and aesthetic interests, which are now marching, in many areas, into a head-on collision."

Data Chief Turns In Resignation

Arleigh R. Sewell, 44, director of Marin County's much troubled data processing department, today submitted his resignation to take another job.

It was the third resignation from Marin County employ for Sewell, although one of them was canceled.

He was made head of the data processing department under the late County Auditor Leon A. deLisle nine years ago. In June, June, 1959, he quit to take a higher paying post in Alaska. In October of the same year, he returned to his old job in Marin. In February, 1961, he submitted his resignation, announcing he would go to Alaska again, but later was talked into remaining.

He now receives $1,225 a month as head of the data processing department, which was made independent of the auditor's office 18 months ago.

County Administrator Alan Bruce told supervisors that this time Sewell would take another job nearby. Sewell was not available today to say where he will be working.

McInnis Now 'Underground Emissary'

Marin County Supervisor John F. McInnis today urged fellow board members to avoid any further aggravation of the San Rafael City Council over the issue of underground utilities on San Pedro Road.

Second phase widening of the road was discussed in a joint session with city councilmen last night, but the issue of undergrounding utilities was not brought up until today's meeting of the board, when Supervisor Peter H. Behr suggested that county and city staffs get together to discuss the matter.

McInnis said the reaction, from his experience with the council, will be "who do they (supervisors) think our staff is working for?"

McInnis volunteered to meet informally with councilmen to discuss the matter.

The supervisors failed in an attempt to get the city to agree to an underground requirement on the first phase of the widening.

County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney said today the city should have an ordinance similar to the one adopted by the county, requiring undergrounding when road widening or relocation is done. San Pedro Road runs in and out of city boundaries and the improvements are being done under joint- city-county agreement.

When the council turned down undergrounding on the first phase, the fear was that taxpayers might have to put up the cost differential. In light of the recent compliance with the ordinance on Lucas Valley Road by the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. and Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co., Behr thought the situation might now be different.

The board authorized McInnis to serve as "underground emissary" to San Rafael and asked in addition, the formation of a small committee of county staff and utility representatives to review the entire underground situation in the county.

Mill Valley Trustees Hold An Open Session

Mill Valley School District trustees last night rejected the Independent - Journal's contention that they had violated the state's anti-secret meeting law last Wednesday.

Immediately after endorsing a letter by board chairman William L. Clark rejecting the I-J's charge, trustees decided to open to the public a second closed session slated at the end of last night's meeting to discuss hiring of architects and appointment of a citizens committee to promote a June bond issue.

Letters inviting citizens to join such a committee have not been mailed yet, Dr. Clark noted, "so we don't have to have an executive (closed) session"

"And I see no reason to have a closed meeting on the hiring of architects," Supt. G. R. McConnell added.

County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney had advised that employment of an architect does not come under the exceptions to the Ralph M. Brown Act's requirement for open meetings. Only exceptions are to hire, dismiss or hear charges against officers or employees. An architect is a consultant not an employee, Maloney said.

Dr. Clark, however, said last night that "we do not have an authoritative legal answer to the question." Maloney added last week that a recent appellate court decision in Southern California may include consultants within the meaning of "empolyee." He said he would have to research the decision before giving the Mill Valley board a written opinion.

Controversial Hanoi Bombing Held Stopped

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department has temporarily taken two controversial bombing targets near Hanoi off the approved target list, an Air Force source said today.

The source identified the target areas as a truck yard about two miles south of the city limits and a railroad yard about six miles northwest. These were last struck by American fighter planes during raids Dec. 13 and 14 that led to the renewed outcries over U.S. bombing of North Vietnam.

Details of the new restrictions were outlined today in a dispatch in the Balitmore Sun, but the Defense Department refused to comment on the story.

Chiang Held Ready To Invade Mainland

TOKYO (UPI)— Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has expressed eagerness to invade the Chinese mainland with his 600,000 man army if the current turmoil sweeping Red China gives him an opportunity, informed sources said today in Taipei.

But the chances of such an invasion appeared remote. He could not move across the 100-mile wide Formosa Strait without the full support of the U.S. Navy and there was no indication the United States wanted to get involved in China's titanic power struggle.

Premier Chou En-lai, thus far aloof in the power struggle between the followers and the opponents of Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung, appeared to throw his support to Mao today to try to end the chaos that has paralyzed much of Shanghai, brought China's economy to a standstill and hamstrung administration of the country of 700 million.

Japanese correspondents in Peking said Chou took his stand in a statement defending Foreign Minister Chen Yi and four other vice premiers from criticism that they had strayed in the past from the Mao line.

Chou told a Red Guard group recently they had completed their self criticism and should be given a second chance. He also was quoted as saying he supported students and teachers in their criticism of Mao's chief opponents, President Liu Shao-chi and Communist Party Secretary General Teng Hsiao-ping.

Evans Chapin Abernethy Luneburg

American Motors Shifts Leaders

DETROIT (AP)—American Motors' future was in new hands today after soft-spoken Robert B. Evans and cigar-chewing Roy Abernethy bowed out of the auto firm's two top jobs.

Evans, who made headlines last June when he was catapulted into the AMC board chairmanship, resigned yesterday in a surprise move and President Abernethy took an early retirement.

Tall, slender Roy D. Chapin Jr., son of one of the nation's automotive pioneers, was elevated to the chairman's job and William V. Luneburg was made president of the nation's fourth largest auto company.

AMC had been plagued with a variety of woes in recent months—declining sales, production cutbacks, and red ink on its financial pages—despite the efforts of Evans and Abernethy.

The AMC shakeup came on the day its assembly plants in Wisconsin started a two-week shutdown to "adjust production and inventory in line with customer demand." The plants will resume operations Jan. 23.

He said his organization hopes to keep the condemned men alive while it seeks to abolish the death penalty by having it declared a cruel and unusual punishment.

Regents Asked To Consider Some Pruning

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The University of California Board of Regents was considering suggestions today from State Finance Director Gordon Smith that it study cutting its next year's budget by 10 per cent, charging $400 tuition and spending its private contingency fund.

Smith told the board of regents Monday the state faces a $473 million deficit unless it can cut the $3.2 billion budget of Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown or come up with more money.

Smith's suggestions were opposed by regents Norton B. Simon, Edwin C. Carter and university President Clark Kerr. Kerr said tuition-free higher education in California dates back 99 years.

"This 99-year-old policy of tuition-free higher education...is largely responsible for California's leading all other states in the number of its residents who are pursuing a college degree," Kerr said.

The regents agreed to have several of their members confer with university officials, Smith and, possibly, Gov. Ronald Reagan on possible tightening of the budget. Proposals must be incorporated into the budget before it goes to the printers this weekend.

Smith proposed that the regents use their $22 million fund —which is independent of legislative appropriation — to help bridge the gap caused by a budget reduction.

Farm Panelists Discuss Labor

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The American agriculture picture this year will include a better trained permanent labor force replacing migrant workers and increased crop specialization and mechanization.

Cairo Denies Napalm Plot On Yemen

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Two Egyptain airmen claimed last night that President Gamal Abdel Nasser had ordered gas and napalm bombs dropped on towns in Yemen. Cairo called their story a "shameful farce."

The two men, who appeared at a news conference in Amman, said they were Capt. Mohamed Abdul Motti Abdo and Capt. Saeed Mohamed Ali Eli Fadeel, both 31. They said they deserted their units in Yemen last June and took refuge in Saudi Arabia, which has been supporting the royalist side in Yemen's civil war.

Fadeel said Soviet pilots as well as Egyptians were flying Egyptian bombers and fighters in attacks against royalist tribesmen.

Shortly after Amman broadcast an account of the news conference, the Egyptian government issued a statement saying the pair had been expelled from the air force last spring on Nasser's orders because of "personal misconduct."

Syrian and Israeli tanks exchanged fire for four hours Monday in the seventh clash along the Syrian-Israeli border in nine days. Syria claimed it knocked out one Israeli tank; Israel claimed it destroyed two Syrian tanks and damaged a third.

Tiburon city councilmen last night adopted a master sketch plan for the Tiburon peninsula, exclusive of the downtown area.

The council urged the city planning commission to prepare a new zoning ordinance to succeed the city's interim zoning ordinance which expires in September.

The plan, prepared by the firm of Williams, Cook and Mocine, city planners, is designed to accommodate the peninsula's ultimate population of 25,000, expected by 1990.

There was no protest at the council's hearing, but several suggestions for study.

The parks and recreation commission suggested that a golf course and greenbelting between Tiburon and Corte Madera, landscaping along Tiburon Boulevard and a greenbelt along the Spanish trail. It also suggested study of the feasibility of a park strip along the waterfront.

Chief Frank J. Buscher of the Tiburon Fire Protection District suggested the plan include a road from the populated west side of the city to Paradise Drive south of Mount Tiburon for fire protection. He specifically mentioned a route from the 3100-3200 block of Paradise Drive to Lyford Drive.

It was reported at the close of the meeting that the council's land and development committee has reached its conclusions on a proposed downtown plan, and these are expected to be discussed at the Jan. 23 council session.

Councilmen also tangled with the problem of whether renting rooms and providing "table board" should be permitted in single-family residential zones, as it is under the current zoning ordinance. The issue arose after protests from Hillhaven area residents about an alleged violation of the zoning ordinance by Nivaldo Saraiva at 1801 Vistazo Street West.

Saraiva, a bachelor, rented the house to another family but reserved a room for himself in the house, reported Development Administrator Phil V. Scott.

It is questionable whether any action could be taken under the present zoning ordinance, Scott said.

One neighbor contended that it wasn't just a room, but a wing of the building.

The council directed that Scott and the land and development committee study the ordinance with a view toward tightening or eliminating the provisions on renting rooms and providing board.

The Tiburon City Council also:

1. Unanimously adopted an ordinance establishing boards of design, review and adjustments.
2. Designated City Mgr. Lawrence D. Rose as the city's authorized official in Civil Defense matters.
3. Entered into an urban thoroughfare agreement with Marin County for five years whereby the county allocates gasoline tax revenues to cities on a matching basis. No Tiburon project was listed, but City Engineer Raymond W. Foreaker Jr. said Paradise Drive and Trestle Glen Drive could qualify if annexed to the city.
4. Awarded E. A. Forde Co. of Corte Madera, lowest of four bidders, contract for paving and installing of curbs and gutters, culvert and catch basin on Esperanza Street Marin West and Centro West, at $2,229; then approved a change-order in the contract calling for a catch basin and curbing on the upper side of Centro West at Esperanza at an additional $1,600.
5. Received a report from Rose that the Reed School District is seeking to acquire "all or portion" of the Hillarita Housing area from the Marin County Housing Authority, with the extent of the purchase depending upon whether the school district qualifies for state aid for acquisition.
6. Granted Councilman Branwell D. Fanning permission to leave the United States. Fanning was scheduled to leave today for Central America to work under the Alliance for Progress to expand tourism.
7. Received a request from Andrew Johnson of 349 Ridge Road to correct the traffic hazard created by a point of concrete which juts into the roadway between 2078 and 2092 Paradise Drive.
8. Received an inventory of traffic signs and markings compiled by Joseph Fernendez of Tiburon, a College of Marin student, at a cost of $89.50.
9. Adjourned in memory of the members of the Roger Dakin family who were killed in an airplane crash in Baja California last month.

Chairman Mao-Tse-Tung has estimated that 800,000 anti-Communists were executed by his Red Chinese regime between 1949 and 1954.

Yacht Sewage Hearing Set For Jan. 23

Regulations governing dockside sewage disposal from yachts will be given a public hearing Jan. 23 by the State Harbors and Watercraft Commiddion.

The hearing is scheduled for 2 p.m. at city hall in Blythe, Riverside County.

The commission is considering requiring that boating facilities built with state funds provide means of emptying waste matter from boat holding tanks whenever all three of these conditions exist:

1. Boats with holding tanks are served by the facility.
2. Discharge of human waste into the water area served by the facility is prohibited by any competent authority.
3. There is no dockside facility for emptying holding tanks within three miles of the boat harbor.

Murphy Moves Up In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—California Sen. George Murphy moved into the ranks of the Senate's GOP leadership today as chairman of the Republican Campaign Committee.

Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, who has held the speechmaking money-raising job for the past two years, reported Murphy's election at a caucus of Republican senators.

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine became the first woman member of the Senate leadership hierarchy when she was chosen chairman of the conference of all Republican senators.

Joan Baez Ired By Capp Cartoon

HONOLULU (UPI)—Folksinger Joan Baez says any resemblance between her and Al Capp's cartoon character, "Joanie Phoanie," may be intentional—and she will probably go to court about it.

"I have never met Mr. Capp," she said here yesterday, "but this episode is vulgar and stupid and I have asked my lawyer to see if he can get a retraction or have the character eliminated from the strip."

Joanie Phoanie, as depicted in Capp's "Lil Abner" comic strip, rides about in luxury and recently donated $10,000 to an orphanage—in the form of protest songs.

Miss Baez said she doesn't mind being spoofed, but she objects to Capp's treatment of other people and institutions involved in the caricature.

Session Postponed

Tomorrow's meeting of Marin Municipal Water District directors has been cancelled because of lack of a quorum, General Mgr. William R. Seeger said today. The meeting has been rescheduled for next Monday at 1:30 p.m. at the district office, 220 Nellen Avenue, Corte Madera.

City To Fete End Of Line

Tiburon City Councilmen agreed last night there should be a civic observance when the Northwestern Pacific Railroad runs its last train in Tiburon.

Their comments came as they received a report that the railroad has been granted permission to abandon its line between Meadowsweet and Tiburon and its bargel ine between Tiburon and San Francisco when rail service is reopened through the Puerto Suello tunnel in San Rafael.

When the last train runs, "I'll come down and take a ride," said Mayor John S. Hoffmire Jr.

"We should have a civic day on the last day of the trains," said Councilman Branwell D. Fanning.

City Mgr. Lawrence D. Rose said the city should ask the railroad what its plans are for the tunnel under Reedlands when the line is abandoned.

"There's another tunnel behind Bel Aire School, that's longer and more complicated, and there's the trestle to consider," said Fanning.

The city's park and recreation commission has suggested that the railroad right-of-way to retained for hiking and bicycle trails.

Call A Cab In Tiburon, And You May Get Two

Tiburon city councilmen, caught in a two-man taxi war last night, decided to let the meter run a little while longer.

The battle lines were drawn when the council considered an application by Earl L. Bailey of the Village Taxi and Limousine Service in Strawberry to operate in Tiburon.

A strong challenge came from Charles (Teddy) Cohen, operator of Ted's Taxi, the only taxi company now operating in the city.

Bailey contended Cohen was not providing enough service. Cohen countered that "there's not enough business for two companies."

At one point Cohen charged that Bailey had been discharged from Yellow Cab in San Rafael, and Bailey snapped back, "I'm still wearing my badge."

Then as Cohen continued his charges, Mayor John Hoffmire Jr. gaveled him to halt. Bailey's application was referred to the public services committee for further study.

City Mgr. Lawrence D. Rose recommended that before the city acts on Bailey's application, police check the equipment and competency of the applicant and drivers.

Drop Smoking, Doctors Urged

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The California Medical Assn. has called upon its 23,000 member physicians to quit smoking cigarettes, a spokesman for the association said today.

In its strongest stand yet against smoking as a hazard to health, the medical society asked the doctors to quit cigarettes and to advice their patients to do likewise.

A report by the CMA Council said: "Surveys of physicians indicate that the majority accept the scientific evidence as a guide for personal behavior and as a basis for giving advice to patients. Physicians have quit or changed their smoking habits more than any other group."

Farm Mediation Service Sought

SACRAMENTO (AP) — It is high time for mediation and legislation in the state's continuing farm labor disputes, the Senate Fact Finding Committee on Agriculture says.

The committee yesterday blamed "lack of communication" between farm employes and employers for costly farm strikes and said they would have "disastrous repercussions on the entire economy of the state" if continued.

The committee called for establishment of a conciliation and mediation service under the State Department of Agriculture.

"And the city could still place a major retail outlet in the square by offering for sale not over one-third of the property under closely controlled conditions whereby a three or four-story retail store would be built," he said. "And, in meantime, you could still develop your underground parking."

County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney said supervisors could negotiate, without open bidding, to sell the property to the city. They could not trade the square for Francisco Boulevard property owned by the city though, he said.

Councilmen suggested they could sell that property and pay for the square. City Mga. Dan E. Andersen said it would take a few months. The property would have to first be zoned, then sold by ordinance, he said.

When councilmen opened the discussion with a suggestion of city-county negotiations, Supervisor Peter H. Behr retorted:

"Frankly, the suggestion is out of order. I doubt that I would ever vote for it. The city should never compete on the open market with private enterprise. The only reason the city would do so would be to obtain a profit which should come to the county."

Supervisors and councilmen received copies of a memorandum from San Rafael Building Inspector Jack K. Coates, saying he would require the square buildings to meet all codes and ordinances before he would issue an occupancy permit to a private owner.

"This would require a complete structural analysis indicating that the structures meet the requirements of . . . the Uniform Building Code and other applicable state regulations relating to loads, wind and earthquake forces," Coates wrote.

"If the entire structure was to be used as offices, it appears that the existing would have to be improved and perhaps an automatic fire sprinkler system installed."

Closing his note to Andersen, Coates said: "Alterations will only be permitted to the exterior and to the front; also if said alterations exceed 25 per cent of the value of the building, then the older portion of the building would have to be removed. In fact I feel that we can prohibit use of the wood frame portion due to the fire zone."

Congress Liberal Loses Contest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia was elected today as secretary of the Senate Democratic Conference, the No. 3 party leadership post.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana was re-elected Democratic leader and Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana as the party whip, or assistant leader. They were unopposed.

made clear, however, he sees no quick, easy solution to the war and that factors such as pacification, politics and winning the support of the people play key roles.

In the coming year, he said, the conduct of the war will not likely undergo any spectacular changes and the Communists will continue to use propaganda and political maneuvers as weapons, as well as military force.

A group of deputies in South Vietnam's Constituent Assembly said today the military government has promised not to make changes in the constitution they are scheduled to finish by March 27.

They charged that the decree of last June under which they are working "contains many undemocratic articles," but said a compromise has been reached with the ruling generals on the government's veto powers.

The new national charter is to pave the way for elections promised for later in 1967.

The deputies described changes they wanted in seven articles in the decree under which the Assembly was elected last Sept. 11. They said their purpose was "to present before public opinion at home and abroad a struggle for the independent basic foundations of the Assembly."

criticism from the Red Guards, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported from Peking. It said a small number of placards accused Chou of trying to weaken the Red Guard battle against Liu and Teng, but Tanjug said Chou's supporters put up more placards and thus gave Chou a propaganda victory.

Violence continued and more was threatened as followers of the two sides struggled in such great cities as Nanking and Shanghai, paralyzed by a general strike. Open bloodshed was reported in some cities during the past weeks and many persons believed a civil war could follow.

The latest violence was reported today by travelers arriving in Hong Kong from Canton. The English language daily The Star said a Canton hospital was attacked by Red Guards who surrounded and smashed into a part of it where anti-Mao workers injured in a clash were being treated.

"I saw people lying on the streets, apparently dead," a traveler named Kwok Tat-so was quoted. "There was a lot of blood." He said the injured were taken to the municipal hospital and that hundreds gathered to see what was happening.

"Suddenly Red Guards surrounded the hospital," he said. "They tried to stop the doctors from treating anti-Mao workers. The superintendent refused the guards' orders and called for help. Anti-Mao groups came and beat the guards off. But windows and doors were smashed."

regret by supervisors.

The Data Processing Department has been the subject of complaint for some time, mainly because of inability to get new accounting programs programmed for processing in the computer.

Supervisor John McInnis said later this morning, "We have not taken advantage of the efficiency and economy potential of that equipment and it is exensive."

Supervisor William A. Gnoss said the county took the lead 10 years ago in beginning use of the equipment. "Now I find that after 10 years we've gone downhill. I agree with you. This needs a great deal of study," Gnoss said.

McInnis also said there is a lack of understanding among department heads as to availability of the equipment, and there is no plan for increased reliance on data processing in the futute.

County Administrator Bruce said these details will be included in the proposed management study, to come to the board for approval at the end of the month.

OBITUARIES

Adolph A. Tiscornia Dies At 82

Adolph A. Tiscornia, an attorney who found his own personal gold mine in land and real estate, died yesterday in his sleep at his San Francisco home. He was 82.

The tough, shrewd investor, who once lived on the 20-acre Escalle estate in Larkspur, amassed millions by being patient.

He bought land when the buying price was low and held it until he got the price he wanted from buyers.

Headlines were made in 1963 when he completed a deal for which he had waited 30 years. He turned over a stretch of Kearny Street in San Francisco to the Bank of America on a 99-year lease reportedly worth $2 million. The property had stood as a decaying eyesore in the city since the Depression.

At that time he had his summer home in Larkspur and despite his 79 years, kept fit by "chopping down trees on my place in Marin."

His prowess in real estate grew from his early days as a lawyer. Born in Calaveras County, he graduated from the University of California and Hastings Law School in the class of 1910. He started to practice law and became an expert in condemnation suits and legal matters involving land.

As he began to make money in law, he said he held on to it to make more while other lawyers bought Cadillacs "to make the public think they were rich."

When everyone was selling land at a loss in the depths of the Depression Tiscornia kept buying. Eventually, his patience was rewarded.

He continued in real estate up to the time of his death. He owned property off Magnolia Avenue in Larkspur and in Sausalito as well as in other parts of the state.

He gave bonds worth $2,600 to the City of Sausalito "with no strings attached" two years ago. He also gave other money to organizations in Marin County, including the Boy Scouts.

Tiscornia was president of Federal Ornamental Iron and Bronze Co. in Sausalito and a director of the Orpheum Building Co., in San Francisco.

He was a member of the Olympic Club for 50 years and of the San Francisco Bar Assn.

His only son, Marine Capt. Edward Tiscornia, was killed in action in Okinawa in 1945.

He is survived by two brothers, Chester Tiscornia of San Andreas and Waldo Tiscornia of Tuscon, Ariz., and by one grandchild.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

from the federal government.

"And the city could still place a major retail outlet in the square by offering for sale not over one-third of the property under closely controlled conditions whereby a three or four-story retail store would be built," he said. "And, in meantime, you could still develop your underground parking."

County Counsel Douglas J Maloney said supervisors could negotiate, without open bidding, to sell the property to the city. They could not trade the square for Francisco Boulevard property owned by the city though, he said.

Councilmen suggested they could sell that property and pay for the square. City Mga. Dan E. Andersen said it would take a few months. The property would have to first be zoned, then sold by ordinance, he said.

When councilmen opened the discussion with a suggestion of city-county negotiations, Supervisor Peter H. Behr retorted:

"Frankly, the suggestion is out of order. I doubt that I would ever vote for it. The city should never compete on the open market with private enterprise. The only reason the city would do so would be to obtain a profit which should come to the county."

Supervisors and councilmen received copies of a memorandum from San Rafael Building Inspector Jack K. Coates, saying he would require the square buildings to meet all codes and ordinances before he would issue an occupancy permit to a private owner.

"This would require a complete structural analysis indicating that the structures meet the requirements of . . . the Uniform Building Code and other applicable state regulations relating to loads, wind and earthquake forces," Coates wrote.

"If the entire structure was to be used as offices, it appears that the existing would have to be improved and perhaps an automatic fire sprinkler system installed."

Closing his note to Andersen, Coates said: "Alterations will only be permitted to the exterior and to the front; also if said alterations exceed 25 per cent of the value of the building, then the older portion of the building would have to be removed. In fact I feel that we can prohibit use of the wood frame portion due to the fire zone."

Congress Liberal Loses Contest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia was elected today as secretary of the Senate Democratic Conference, the No. 3 party leadership post.

He defeated Sen. Joseph S. Clark of Pennsylvania, an avowed liberal who was trying to break into Senate power structure that he frequently has criticized.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana was re-elected Democratic leader and Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana as the party whip, or assistant leader. They were unopposed.

made clear, however, he sees no quick, easy solution to the war and that factors such as pacification, politics and winning the support of the people play key roles.

In the coming year, he said, the conduct of the war will not likely undergo any spectacular changes and the Communists will continue to use propaganda and political maneuvers as weapons, as well as military force.

A group of deputies in South Vietnam's Constituent Assembly said today the military government has promised not to make changes in the constitution they are scheduled to finish by March 27.

They charged that the decree of last June under which they are working "contains many undemocratic articles," but said a compromise has been reached with the ruling generals on the government's veto powers.

The new national charter is to pave the way for elections promised for later in 1967.

The deputies described changes they wanted in seven articles in the decree under which the Assembly was elected last Sept. 11. They said their purpose was "to present before public opinion at home and abroad a struggle for the independent basic foundations of the Assembly."

criticism from the Red Guards, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported from Peking. It said a small number of placards accused Chou of trying to weaken the Red Guard battle against Liu and Teng, but Tanjug said Chou's supporters put up more placards and thus gave Chou a propaganda victory.

Violence continued and more was threatened as followers of the two sides struggled in such great cities as Nanking and Shanghai, paralyzed by a general strike. Open bloodshed was reported in some cities during the past weeks and many persons believed a civil war could follow.

The latest violence was reported today by travelers arriving in Hong Kong from Canton. The English language daily The Star said a Canton hospital was attacked by Red Guards who surrounded and smashed into a part of it where anti-Mao workers injured in a clash were being treated.

"I saw people lying on the streets, apparently dead," a traveler named Kwok Tat-so was quoted. "There was a lot of blood." He said the injured were taken to the municipal hospital and that hundreds gathered to see what was happening.

"Suddenly Red Guards surrounded the hospital," he said. "They tried to stop the doctors from treating anti-Mao workers. The superintendent refused the guards' orders and called for help. Anti-Mao groups came and beat the guards off. But windows and doors were smashed."

Corte Madera Annex Zoning Ideas Sought

The Corte Madera Planning Commission last night asked Town Mgr. Ronald L. Usher to make a recommendation on zoning for all annexations under consideration in Corte Madera.

Property annexed to the town is automatically zoned residential when it is annexed, Usher noted.

The commission approved rezoning from highway commercial to local shopping a lot in the Fifer Tract of Fifer Avenue, requested by Nellen Lands Inc. of Kentfield.

The Data Processing Department has been the subject of complaint for some time, mainly because of inability to get new accounting programs programmed for processing in the computer.

Supervisor John McInnis said later this morning, "We have not taken advantage of the efficiency and economy potential of that equipment and it is exensive."

Supervisor William A. Gnoss said the county took the lead 10 years ago in beginning use of the equipment. "Now I find that after 10 years we've gone downhill. I agree with you. This needs a great deal of study," Gnoss said.

McInnis also said there is a lack of understanding among department heads as to availability of the equipment, and there is no plan for increased reliance on data processing in the futute.

County Administrator Bruce said these details will be included in the proposed management study, to come to the board for approval at the end of the month.

Dakin Memorial Established To Help Mexico

A memorial fund has been established in the names of the Roger B. Dakin family of Tiburon to provide medical assistance to areas of Baja California in need of it.

The Dakins, four of their five children, and Dakin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dakin of San Francisco, former Belvedere residents, were killed in a plane crash last month while en route to La Paz.

The Dakin family spent much time in Baja California, did much to help the people there, and "their friends feel that it be the wish of the Dakin family to see this work furthered," reported attorney John Hoffman of Belvedere.

Contributions can be sent to the Bank of California, 400 California Street, San Francisco, in the name of the Roger and Joan Dakin Family Memorial Fund.

Liquor Stolen

Theft of four bottles of Scotch worth $38 was reported yesterday to Mill Valley police by Lum Lee, owner of Red Cart market, 759 East Blithedale Avenue. Two men, acting suspiciously, were seen leaving the market just before the theft was discovered, he said.

Inadequate Protection Against Fires Claimed

A petition deploring "inadequate fire protection" and seeking immediate action is being circulated among residents of the Terra Linda section of San Rafael.

The petition was spurred by a fire that gutted the home of Gerald L. Thompson at 915 Del Ganado Road on Jan. 2, reported Lt. Col. S. J. Jamerson of 843 Del Ganado Road.

As of last night, 204 residents had signed the petition, which will be presented to the San Rafael City Council, he said.

The residents "deplore the inadequate fire protection provided by the City of San Rafael for our domiciles as illustrated by the fire at 915 Del Ganado Road" and "sincerely request your (council's) immediate attention and action."

Jamerson said the petition will be delivered to the council at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at city hall, when the council meets to discuss city charter revisions.

Jamerson said the residents also will ask that they be given a hearing at the next regular council meeting.

Besides the petition, residents are being urged to write individual letters, he said.

U.N. Aide Urged Crops Increase

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A high U.N. official called today for bigger crops to head off famine and better statistics to illuminate the world's population problem.

Paul G. Hoffman, administrator of the U.N. Development Program — UNDP — told the UNDP governing council:

"Greatly increased production of foodstuffs is absolutely essential not only to avert the growing threat of eventual widespread famine, but also to raise present low nutritional levels which impair the health and hobble the productivity of hundreds of millions of people throughout the low-income lands.

Annual Dinner Set

Mill Valley Assn. of Volunteer Firemen will hold its annual installation dinner at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at Mill Valley Golf clubhouse. Officers for 1967 will be elected following a steak dinner.

Gas Station Gets Planners' Approval

A permit for a gasoline service station on the west side of Highway 101 north of Sabella's restaurant in Alto was approved by 4-3 vote of the county planning commission yesterday.

Dissenters were Commissioners Margaret Azevedo, William F. Upton and Claude Stoller.

The station is proposed on land owned by Alcan Pacific and G. L. Zaro in a joint venture. It will be sold to Humble Oil Co. George Artz, secretary of Alcan Pacific, told commissioners that unless the sale, conditioned on the use permit, goes through, the property will be foreclosed.

Planning Director Paul C. Zucker charged that "service stations are now calling the tune for commercial development in this county." He said the land should be in a planned commercial zone.

The Marin County Planning Commission Also:

1. Continued until Feb. 6 discussion of the Dias Ranch first phase development after being unable to resolve the issue or requiring the developer to dedicate right of way for widening of Shoreline Highway, a state road.

2. Approved one-year extension on the tentative map for Los Caballos Estates, a 24-acre tract planned north of Marinwood.

3. Learned that study is nearing completion on design proposals for the second phase of Corte Madera Creek flood control work and Kentfield Corners commercial development. Zucker reported that there is a chance the many separate parcels in Kentfield Corners might be purchased by one owner.

4. Struck the requirement for grading and widening to 18 feet of Hawthorne Road on Bolinas Mesa which Zucker had placed as condition in a land division sought by Doris Craycrost. Upton voted against lifting the condition.

5. Adopted a slope grading policy that would require developers to avoid benching of slopes where possible. Commissioner Michael Praszker abstained on this, arguing the policy did not carry enough specifics.

6. Set hearing Feb. 6 on a proposed amendment to the sign ordinance to ban rooftop signs in commercial districts.

7. Agreed to a joint session with the board of supervisors from 9 to 10 a.m., Jan. 24. The session was asked recently by Supervisor John F. McInnis. Zucker said he did not know what would be discussed.

8. Adjourned at 6 p.m.

$200 Clothing Theft

Clothing worth about $200 was stolen Saturday night from his car in the Bermuda Palms parking lot, 737 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, Barney Wright of 142 Clark Street, San Rafael, told police.

Housing Repair Pact

A $13,642 contract to repair family housing at the Mill Valley Air Force station was awarded yesterday to Booh and Little Roofing Co. of Larkspur by the base procurement office at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Minor Earthquake Rattles Truckee

TRUCKEE (AP) — A slight earthquake shook Truckee at 2:28 a.m. today.

"It rattled the windows here, but that's about all," said a highway patrol dispatcher. No damage was reported.

Marincello Access Plan Is Approved

Development plans for the extension of the access road into Marincello were approved by the Marin County Planning Commission yesterday, with the strongest objections coming from Commissioner Michael Praszker.

He voted against approval, arguing that the commission action carried too many conditions, including alterations if final location of school sites should call for changes, and two choices on location of an intersection, and left many details to the planning and public works staffs.

Planning Director Paul C. Zucker said the fault probably lay in the fact that original master plan for Marincello was not detailed enough. He said commission approval was need so engineers could proceed with detailed drawings.

Abraam Krushkhov of the planning firm of Ruth and Krushkhov, working on the Marincello plan since October, told the commission that location of school sites was still under discussion with the Mill Valley, Sausalito and Tamalpais School District staffs, but remained unresolved.

Public Works Director Donald R. Frost recommended against location of an intersection between two reverse curves of 250-foot radius. He said the intersection should be allowed only if the curves were 300-foot radius or more. Commissioners included this condition.

Tornadoes are formed several thousand feet in the sky and many do not reach the ground while some that do touch down, rise and remain up.

Legislature Gets Washington Link

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California legislature has established a Washington, D.C., office to gather information on Federal programs, Sen. George Miller Jr., D - Martinez, announced today.

Miller also disclosed that William F. Lipman, a former senior state planning officer, will be director of the office.

Lipman will send information to Miller's joint legislative committee and service requests from state legislators. It will cost $25,000 annually to operate the office in addition to Lipman's $25,000 a year salary.

Lipman had been a special planning assistant for the assistant secretary of the army in Washington the last two years.

Spring-Fall Love A Natural Thing

COVINGTON, Ky., (AP)—"You are both old enough to know the importance of the vow you have just taken," the justice of the peace said as he finished the wedding ceremony.

The bride was Irene Moseley, 19. The bridegroom was John H. Napier, 71. She kissed her husband three times for photographers and giggled that his mustache tickled.

Miss Moseley said after the ceremony yesterday that her "childhood environment" had prepared her for such a wedding.

Miss Mosley's father, now 74, is 30 years older than his wife. He was 71—the same age as Irene's husband—when their youngest child was born three years ago.

Mill Valley Trustees Hire Architect Firms

Mill Valley School District trustees last night accepted recommendation of a subcommittee to hire architects Campbell and Wong to design the proposed "middle school" and Bushnell. Jessup, Murphy and Van de Weghe for improvements to existing schools.

Supt. G. R. McConnell was authorized to negotiate contracts with them and with the landscape architectural firm of Royston, Hanamoto, Mayes and Beck, previously recommended to do master site planning for the "middle school" site in the Project 17 area on Camino Alto.

A $3 million bond election has been proposed for June to raise $2 million for the "middle school" and $1 million to improve existing schools. The City of Mill Valley is to share the cost of the master site planning at Project 17.

In a letter to the board, which was not read aloud at the meeting, Robert Royston of the landscape firm wrote that, because preliminary plans for the 45-acre area will take his firm about three months to prepare, "We advise against a June election."

All architectural firms interviewed for the building and master site planning programs, reported board chairman William L. Clark, "said a June deadline was very tight, but we think it can be done."

Mill Valley Shool District Trustees Also:

1. Set a meeting with County Supt. of Schools Virgil S. Hollis for Friday at 8 p.m. in the district office at 26 Miller Avenue, to consider criteria for selection of a new superintendent.
2. Adopted a policy requiring teachers to retire at age 65, overriding a suggestion by Mrs. Julia Dempster, president of Mill Valley Teachers Assn., that teachers be offered yearly contracts after they reach retirement age.
3. Adopted a policy for release of names of candidates for vacancies on the board of trustees when they occur.
4. eferred to the policy development committee for revision of a proposed policy on sabbatical leave for teachers.
5. Extended pay to employees absent to appear as witnesses before courts or administrative boards.
6. Discontinued late bus transportation at Edna Maguire School on Mondays, but agreed to continue the service on a trial basis Tuesdays and Thursdays.
7. Directed a letter to Gov. Romald Reagan and the state legislature opposing any change in school district unification law which would permit unification of less than the entire Tamalpais Hih School District.
8. Removed "acting" from the title of acting director of instruction Glenn Skelton, who also serves as Park School principal.
9. Hired Janet D. Lauer of Tiburon as guidance consultant at $681 a month.

Pre-School Program Under Way

Handicapped by a series of delays in funding and lease arrangements, Marin County's pre-school program finally opened yesterday in Novato.

Twenty-four children arrived for the first day under the program, financed by state and federal funds, in leased rooms at St. Francis Episcopal Church, Fifth and Grant avenues.

"We're very pleased that the program's finally under way," said Dr. Virgil S. Hollis, county superintendent of schools. "We are only sorry funds aren't available for the need in San Rafael. We really need four centers."

Last week Marin County Board of Supervisors approved a lease agreement with the Episcopal church for the Novato premises. In addition, a total of 116 children are being served through the program at Manzanita School in Marin City, with 66 in pre-school classes.

The Novato program is geared for an eventual total of 50 children in the child care center and 30 in the pre-school program.

Director William Perry said the center provides "the same care to children as parents." Children are dropped off at the center by their parents, and walk to and from school.

The pre-school program is an extension of the summer Head Start concept, designed to offer cultural and environmental enrichment for pre-schoolers from disadvantaged homes.

Both programs are operating under a "very limited budget," said Perry. Expected Economic Opportunity Act funds have not yet been granted. The program could run through June with state and county funds, Perry said.

Creative Meeting

Creative Thinking, a group devoted to the "goals of international and inter-racial understanding," will hold the first of this year's sessions for children Saturday at the home of its director, Mrs. A. J. Alstrom, 383 Cascade Drive, Fairfax. Sessions will be open to children in two age groups; four through seven and seven through 13.

Sound Helping To Cure The Mumbling Reader

BERKELEY (SS)—A speedy cure for the mumbles, whispers and swallows of slow readers was announced here by a team of University of California psychologists.

The technique is a simple one, consisting of an electrical device placed over throat muscles to pick up and amplify subvocal activity. Mumbles and swallows are then played through earphones. A swallow, for instance becomes a burst of static in the reader's ears.

Apparently, once the reader hears himself, he is able to end the habit by conscious control.

Every college student who took the cure lost his habit in one session, reported Berkeley researchers Dr. Curtis D. Hardyck, Dr. Lewis F. Petrinovich, and Delbert W. Ellsworth.

This was surprising, they admitted, since long-standing habits are not usually extinguished so quickly and easily. The subvocal habit is particularly pernicious in that it tends to limit reading rates to 150 words per minute—actually the rate for speech.

Gas Station Gets Planners' Approval

A permit for a gasoline service station on the west side of Highway 101 north of Sabella's restaurant in Alto was approved by 4-3 vote of the county planning commission yesterday.

Dissenters were Commissioners Margaret Azevedo, William F. Upton and Claude Stoller.

The station is proposed on land owned by Alcan Pacific and G. L. Zaro in a joint venture. It will be sold to Humble Oil Co. George Artz, secretary of Alcan Pacific, told commissioners that unless the sale, conditioned on the use permit, goes through, the property will be foreclosed.

Planning Director Paul C. Zucker charged that "service stations are now calling the tune for commercial development in this county." He said the land should be in a planned commercial zone.

The Marin County Planning Commission Also:

1. Continued until Feb. 6 discussion of the Dias Ranch first phase development after being unable to resolve the issue or requiring the developer to dedicate right of way for widening of Shoreline Highway, a state road.

2. Approved one-year extension on the tentative map for Los Caballos Estates, a 24-acre tract planned north of Marinwood.

3. Learned that study is nearing completion on design proposals for the second phase of Corte Madera Creek flood control work and Kentfield Corners commercial development. Zucker reported that there is a chance the many separate parcels in Kentfield Corners might be purchased by one owner.

4. Struck the requirement for grading and widening to 18 feet of Hawthorne Road on Bolinas Mesa which Zucker had placed as condition in a land division sought by Doris Craycrost. Upton voted against lifting the condition.

5. Adopted a slope grading policy that would require developers to avoid benching of slopes where possible. Commissioner Michael Praszker abstained on this, arguing the policy did not carry enough specifics.

6. Set hearing Feb. 6 on a proposed amendment to the sign ordinance to ban rooftop signs in commercial districts.

7. Agreed to a joint session with the board of supervisors from 9 to 10 a.m., Jan. 24. The session was asked recently by Supervisor John F. McInnis. Zucker said he did not know what would be discussed.

8. Adjourned at 6 p.m.

$200 Clothing Theft

Clothing worth about $200 was stolen Saturday night from his car in the Bermuda Palms parking lot, 737 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, Barney Wright of 142 Clark Street, San Rafael, told police.

Housing Repair Pact

A $13,642 contract to repair family housing at the Mill Valley Air Force station was awarded yesterday to Booh and Little Roofing Co. of Larkspur by the base procurement office at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Minor Earthquake Rattles Truckee

TRUCKEE (AP) — A slight earthquake shook Truckee at 2:28 a.m. today.

"It rattled the windows here, but that's about all," said a highway patrol dispatcher. No damage was reported.

Marincello Access Plan Is Approved

Development plans for the extension of the access road into Marincello were approved by the Marin County Planning Commission yesterday, with the strongest objections coming from Commissioner Michael Praszker.

He voted against approval, arguing that the commission action carried too many conditions, including alterations if final location of school sites should call for changes, and two choices on location of an intersection, and left many details to the planning and public works staffs.

Planning Director Paul C. Zucker said the fault probably lay in the fact that original master plan for Marincello was not detailed enough. He said commission approval was need so engineers could proceed with detailed drawings.

Abraam Krushkhov of the planning firm of Ruth and Krushkhov, working on the Marincello plan since October, told the commission that location of school sites was still under discussion with the Mill Valley, Sausalito and Tamalpais School District staffs, but remained unresolved.

Public Works Director Donald R. Frost recommended against location of an intersection between two reverse curves of 250-foot radius. He said the intersection should be allowed only if the curves were 300-foot radius or more. Commissioners included this condition.

Tornadoes are formed several thousand feet in the sky and many do not reach the ground while some that do touch down, rise and remain up.

Legislature Gets Washington Link

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California legislature has established a Washington, D.C., office to gather information on Federal programs, Sen. George Miller Jr., D - Martinez, announced today.

Miller also disclosed that William F. Lipman, a former senior state planning officer, will be director of the office.

Lipman will send information to Miller's joint legislative committee and service requests from state legislators. It will cost $25,000 annually to operate the office in addition to Lipman's $25,000 a year salary.

Lipman had been a special planning assistant for the assistant secretary of the army in Washington the last two years.

Spring-Fall Love A Natural Thing

COVINGTON, Ky., (AP)—"You are both old enough to know the importance of the vow you have just taken," the justice of the peace said as he finished the wedding ceremony.

The bride was Irene Moseley, 19. The bridegroom was John H. Napier, 71. She kissed her husband three times for photographers and giggled that his mustache tickled.

Miss Moseley said after the ceremony yesterday that her "childhood environment" had prepared her for such a wedding.

Miss Mosley's father, now 74, is 30 years older than his wife. He was 71—the same age as Irene's husband—when their youngest child was born three years ago.

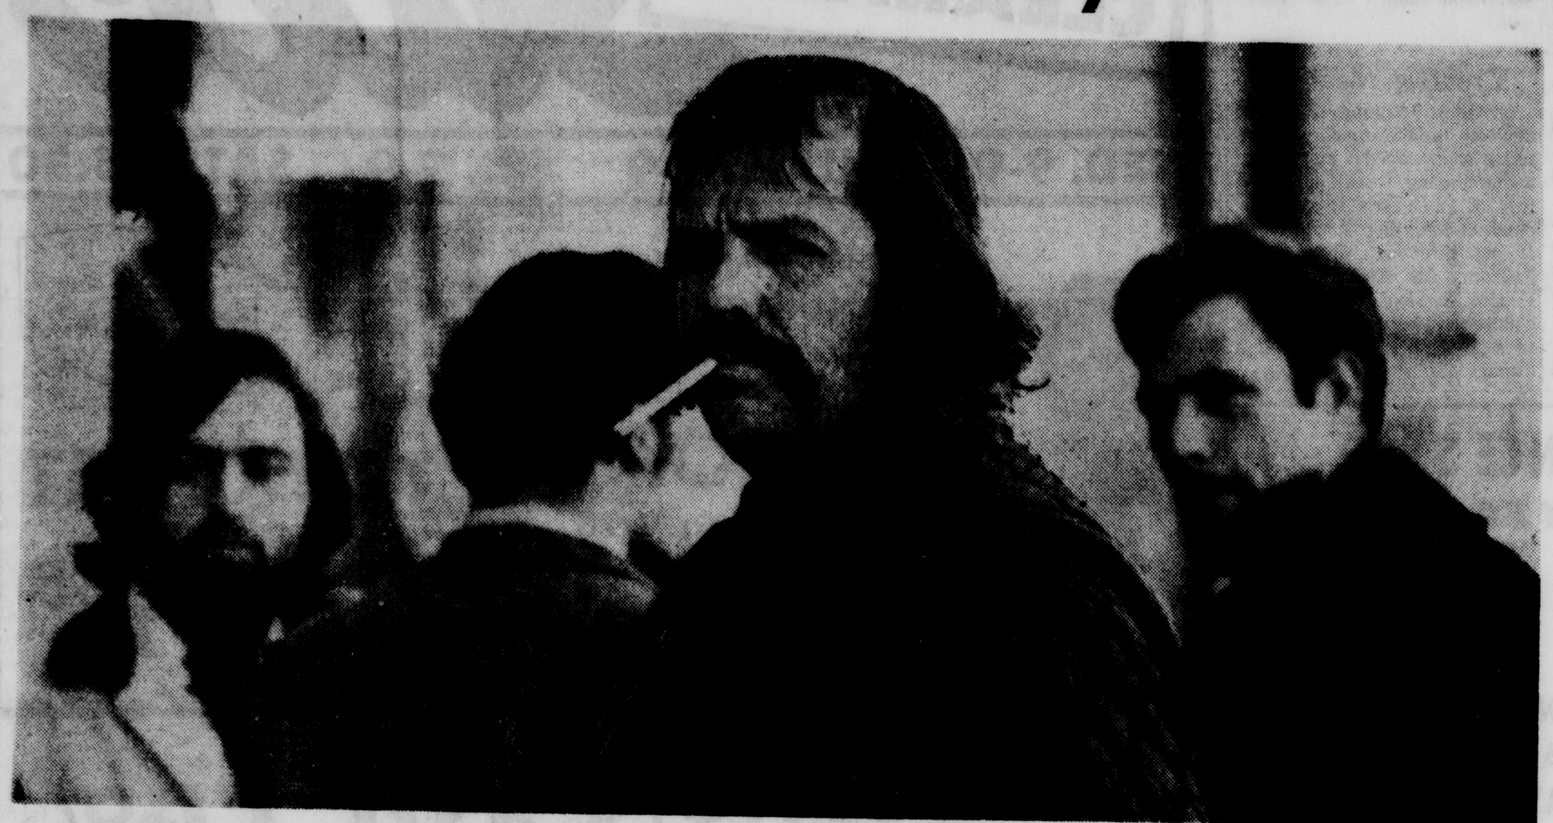
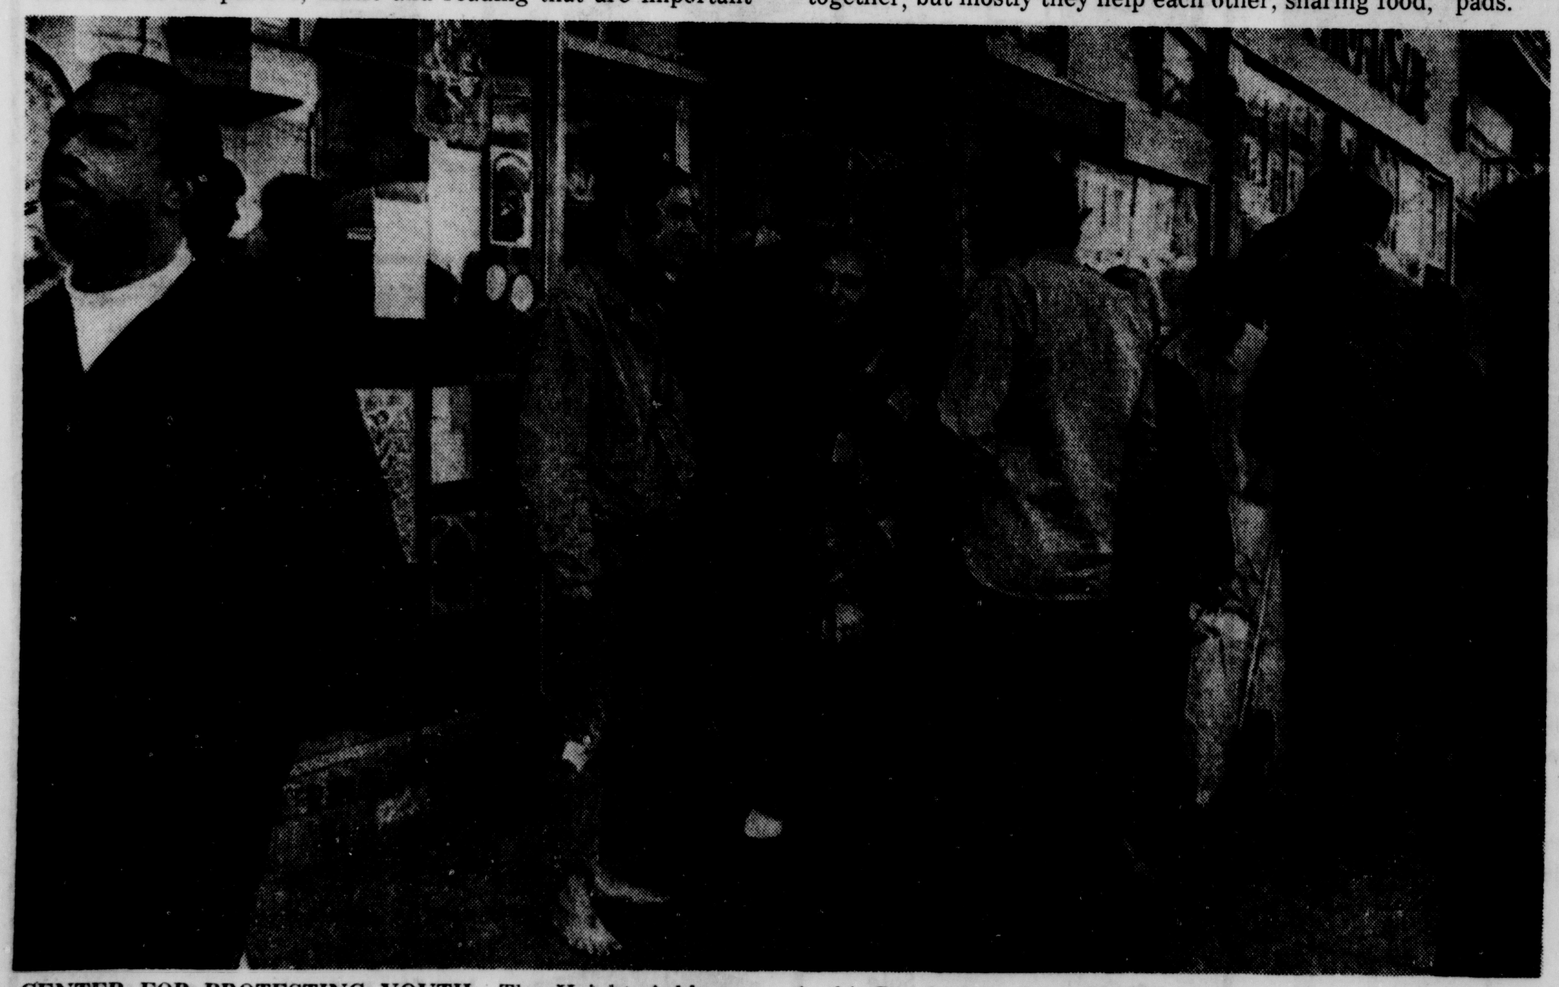
San Francisco's 'Hippie' Colony In Search Of The Way-Out Life

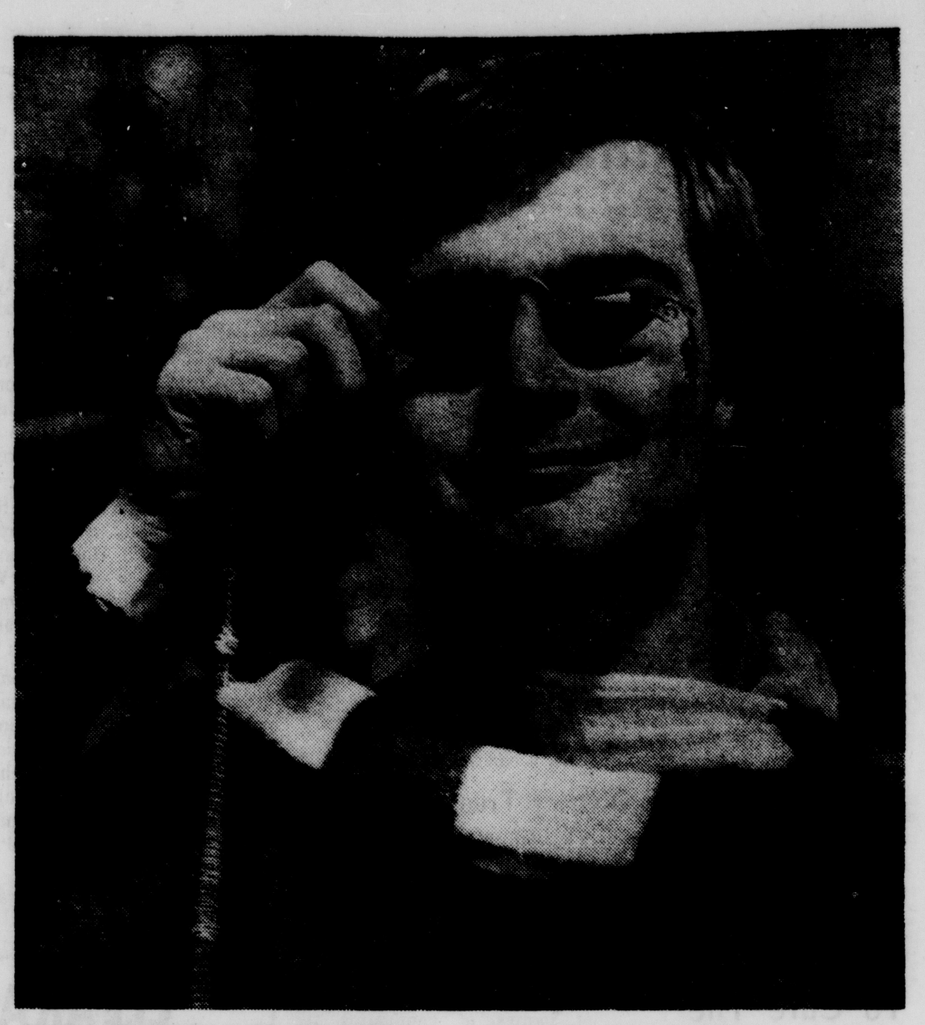


WAITING FOR A HAPPENING—Although many of the Haight Ashbury residents may be "teenieboppers" and "dudes"—the "in" nomenclature for young girls and youths, respectively—quite a few of the customers of the Psychedelic Book Shop are older. Many of the unconventionally dressed, bewhiskered visitors have shifted to this scene to await the "happenings" they formerly sought in North Beach.

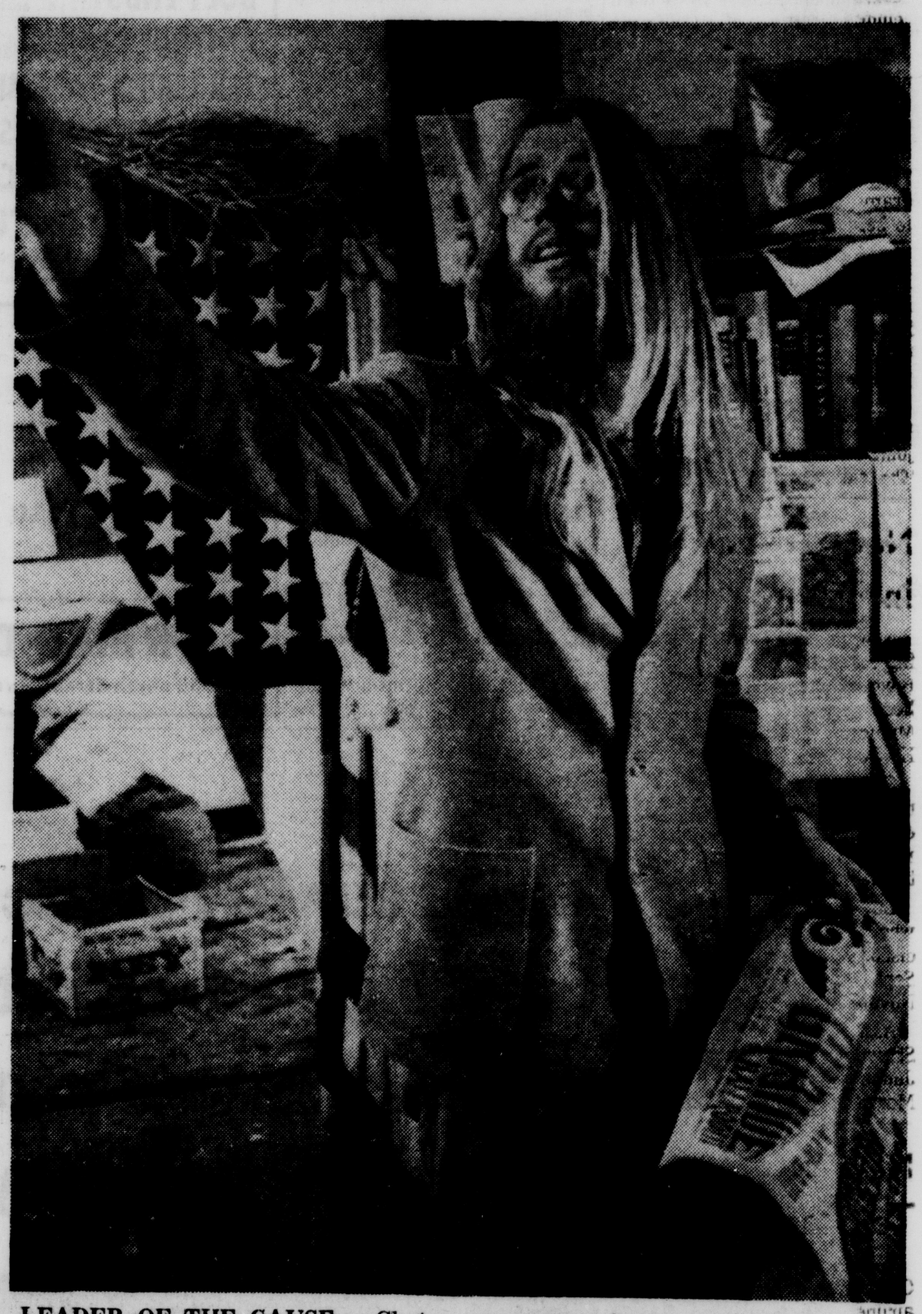
BABY, IT'S WARM INSIDE — Inside the Psycherelic Book Store, a group of Haight Ashbury "hippies" get out of the cold and take in the posters, music and reading that are important parts of their living. Periodically, some of the denizens of the neighborhood disappear to take a job and keep body and soul together, but mostly they help each other, sharing food, "pads."



CENTER FOR PROTESTING YOUTH—The Haight Ashbury district of San Francisco has become a center for the "hippies," who have supplanted the "beatniks" as the principal movement of non-conformist youth. One of their favorite gathering places is this Psychedelic Book Shop. Living largely in unlighted and unheated "pads" in the area, the "hippies" assist each other when possible, and "seldom can be found an empty stomach or mind," habitues of the area claim. (UPI Telephotos)



ROSY GLASSES ARE SQUARE — Being "way out" is the way of the "hippy," who devotes careful attention to achieving a studied, strange appearance. A clerk in House of Richard, a shop owned by and catering to "hippies," shows off a pair of heavy, colored prism glasses that create a sort of psychedelic vision.



LEADER OF THE CAUSE — Chet Helm is the industrious organizer of The Family Dog, an entertainment group that operates in a former Oriental religious temple. Helm also promotes dances and concerts in his Avalon Ball Room, and makes a tidy income from selling way-out posters heralding the events, to "hippie" collectors at $1 to $2.50 each.

A MUNDANE TOUCH—Typically garbed, typically hirsute "hippies" squeeze a reminder of the more workaday world into a station wagon—a baby crib. Usually low on cash, the non-conformists get along by haunting thrift shops, low-priced food stores and by mutual exchange.

Mill Valley Trustees Hire Architect Firms

Mill Valley School District trustees last night accepted recommendation of a subcommittee to hire architects Campbell and Wong to design the proposed "middle school" and Bushnell, Jessup, Murphy and Van de Weghe for improvements to existing schools.

Supt. G. R. McConnell was authorized to negotiate contracts with them and with the landscape architectural firm of Royston, Hanamoto, Mayes and Beck, previously recommended to do master site planning for the "middle school" site in the Project 17 area on Camino Alto.

A $3 million bond election has been proposed for June to raise $2 million for the "middle school" and $1 million to improve existing schools. The City of Mill Valley is to share the cost of the master site planning at Project 17.

In a letter to the board, which was not read aloud at the meeting, Robert Royston of the landscape firm wrote that, because preliminary plans for the 45-acre area will take his firm about three months to prepare, "We advise against a June election."

All architectural firms interviewed for the building and master site planning programs, reported board chairman William L. Clark, "said a June deadline was very tight, but we think it can be done."

Mill Valley Shool District Trustees Also:

1. Set a meeting with County Supt. of Schools Virgil S. Hollis for Friday at 8 p.m. in the district office at 26 Miller Avenue, to consider criteria for selection of a new superintendent.
2. Adopted a policy requiring teachers to retire at age 65, overriding a suggestion by Mrs. Julia Dempster, president of Mill Valley Teachers Assn., that teachers be offered yearly contracts after they reach retirement age.
3. Adopted a policy for release of names of candidates for vacancies on the board of trustees when they occur.
4. eferred to the policy development committee for revision of a proposed policy on sabbatical leave for teachers.
5. Extended pay to employees absent to appear as witnesses before courts or administrative boards.
6. Discontinued late bus transportation at Edna Maguire School on Mondays, but agreed to continue the service on a trial basis Tuesdays and Thursdays.
7. Directed a letter to Gov. Romald Reagan and the state legislature opposing any change in school district unification law which would permit unification of less than the entire Tamalpais Hih School District.
8. Removed "acting" from the title of acting director of instruction Glenn Skelton, who also serves as Park School principal.
9. Hired Janet D. Lauer of Tiburon as guidance consultant at $681 a month.

Pre-School Program Under Way

Handicapped by a series of delays in funding and lease arrangements, Marin County's pre-school program finally opened yesterday in Novato.

Twenty-four children arrived for the first day under the program, financed by state and federal funds, in leased rooms at St. Francis Episcopal Church, Fifth and Grant avenues.

"We're very pleased that the program's finally under way," said Dr. Virgil S. Hollis, county superintendent of schools. "We are only sorry funds aren't available for the need in San Rafael. We really need four centers."

Last week Marin County Board of Supervisors approved a lease agreement with the Episcopal church for the Novato premises. In addition, a total of 116 children are being served through the program at Manzanita School in Marin City, with 66 in pre-school classes.

The Novato program is geared for an eventual total of 50 children in the child care center and 30 in the pre-school program.

Director William Perry said the center provides "the same care to children as parents." Children are dropped off at the center by their parents, and walk to and from school.

The pre-school program is an extension of the summer Head Start concept, designed to offer cultural and environmental enrichment for pre-schoolers from disadvantaged homes.

Both programs are operating under a "very limited budget," said Perry. Expected Economic Opportunity Act funds have not yet been granted. The program could run through June with state and county funds, Perry said.

Creative Meeting

Creative Thinking, a group devoted to the "goals of international and inter-racial understanding," will hold the first of this year's sessions for children Saturday at the home of its director, Mrs. A. J. Alstrom, 383 Cascade Drive, Fairfax. Sessions will be open to children in two age groups; four through seven and seven through 13.

"Well, well, well, eight months in Vietnam an' ya' finally broke down."

Thant Says Cong Not Hanoi Dupes

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Secretary General Thant today disputed U. S. charges the Viet Cong is a stooge of the Hanoi government and said they must be brought into any peace talks on Vietnam.

He also disagreed at a news conference with the American viewpoint that the rest of Southeast Asia will fall to the Communists like a row of dominoes if Vietnam is taken over by the Reds.

Thant issued a three-point declaration of his personal attitude toward the Vietnam problem, stating:

"I do not subscribe to the generally held view that the National Liberation Front (political arm of the Viet Cong) is a stooge of Hanoi In my view, the NLF, although receiving very substantial aid from the north, is an independent entity as the National Liberation Front of Algeria was."

"I do not subscribe to the view that if South Vietnam falls, then country X, then country Y, then country Z. I do not agree with the so-called 'domino theory.'"

"I do not subscribe to the view that South Vietnam is strategically vital to western intersts and western security."

He was asked about statements made by North Vietnamese Foreign Minister Pham Van Dong, the Hanoi envoy to Paris, or official radio broadcasts since he took his latest peace initiative at the request of the United States in December.

"They are restating old positions, perhaps in new language," Thant said.

Dong told newsmen in Paris the Hanoi regime rejected any attempts at U. N. intervention in Vietnam on grounds it would violate the 1954 Geneva agreements ending the French-Indochina war.

Novato Planners Elect Officers

John L. Castleman was elected chairman and John H. Miklos vice chairman of the Novato Planning Commission last night.

The commission denied Fabian Bobo a permit to keep horses in a residential area. Bobo had asked for permit to keep two horses at his home at 1486 South Novato Boulevard. These horses were the object of much controversy until the Novato City Council declared them to be a nuisance several years ago.

The commission approved Albert Young's plans for using a portion of the former Truck Stop Restaurant building on the east side of Highway 101, south of Vallejo Avenue, for a dog salon. It continued indefinitely Young's request for a muffler shop in a small building behind the Viking cocktail lounge.

Andrew Talbot was granted a lot split on Grant Avenue between Fifth Street and Lee Brothers Market.

Peter Hurd Not Without Honor

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP)—New Mexico Gov. David F. Cargo, a Republican, enjoys Peter Hurd's paintings. He named Hurd yesterday to the New Mexico Art Commission.

"I told him (Hurd) I liked his paintings and I didn't care if anyone else did," said Cargo. "I've got one hanging in the outer office."

Driver Hits Parked Auto; Flees Scene

An unidentified driver hit a parked car on Miller Avenue in Mill Valley early Saturday and fled the scene of the accident, police reported.

The parked car, owned by Simeon Temnikow, of 117 Sycamore Avenue, received major damage, and a bowling ball and shoes worth $20 were missing from the trunk of his car after the crash, Temnikow reported.

California has the tallest of all living things — the coast redwoods—and the oldest known —bristlecone pines.

Powell Move Marks New Mood Of Congress

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House today refused to seat Adam Clayton Powell, paving the way for a resolution that could lead to his being excluded from membership.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new 90th Congress convened today with a majority of members apparently in a mood to tinker at shoring weaknesses in "Great Society" domestic programs but obviously disinclined to begin major new ones.

Tonight, it will hear from President Johnson what he hopes to get from the Congress, its once overwhelming Democratic strength diluted by Republican election gains.

The President will deliver his State of the Union message to a joint session at 6:30 p.m. PST. The address will be broadcast nationally by radio and television.

The inclination of Congress to be more self-assertive, rather than to play follow the leader, was demonstrated in the preliminaries, even before the gavels fell to open the session formally.

There was first of all the House Democratic caucus vote yesterday to oust Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, Harlem Democrat, as chairman of the Education and Labor Committee. This was voted despite opposition to the move from House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass.

The Powell affair contributed to bringing an exceptionally large crowd of spectators to the Capitol for the opening formalities.

An hour and a half before the session opened several hundred Negroes, most of them from New York City, gathered on the steps of the House wing and began a rhythmic chant:

"We want Powell back in his chair!"

Police stood by.

House leaders decided to go ahead with today's opening program, despite the death of Rep. John E. Fogarty, D-R.I. Fogarty was found dead in his office this morning.

Ranch Hand Hits House With Car

A car driven by an Inverness ranch hand on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard near Point Reyes Station yesterday afternoon smashed into a house.

The crash separated the bedroom from the rest of the house leaving a six-inch gap and broke a window and lumber.

Change Stolen

Theft of $7 in change in a burglary of the home of Mrs. Betty Jane Krambs, at 2396 Las Gallinas Avenue, Marinwood, was reported today by sheriff's officers. Entry was apparently via an open garage door.

New Trial Set In Driving Case

New trial in the drunken driving conviction of Richard Arthur Boyd, 56, Kentfield attorney, has been granted in Marin Municipal Court by Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr.

Grounds for the motion for new trial were newly discovered evidence and prejudicial misconduct by the trial judge, the late Leonard A. Thomas.

Boyd, of 10 Tree Top Way, who practices law in San Francisco, was convicted by jury last Sept. 30 of drunken driving in Novato on Oct. 17, 1965.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Leonard Shaw said today he will appeal Judge Goldstein's action to Marin Superior Appellate Court.

New Airline Due To Start Monday

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Air California, the nation's newest airline, will inaugurate service between San Francisco and Orange County Airport near Disneyland next Monday.

There will be five flights daily in each direction.

Flying time in Air California's Lockheed Electra prop-jets will be one hour.

Joint Session To Talk Charter

Proposed revisions in the San Rafael City Charter will be reviewed at a joint meeting of the city council and charter revision committee at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow at city hall.

Under review will be a list of recommendations for charter changes made by the committee after a five-month study.

The session will be the council's first step toward deciding which charter revisions should be placed before the voters on the municipal ballot in April.

Nominating Meeting

Officers of Bayside Acres Homeowners Assn. will be nominated at the annual meeting on Jan. 23 at 8 p.m. at St. Luke's Presbyterian Church, 10 Bayview Drive.

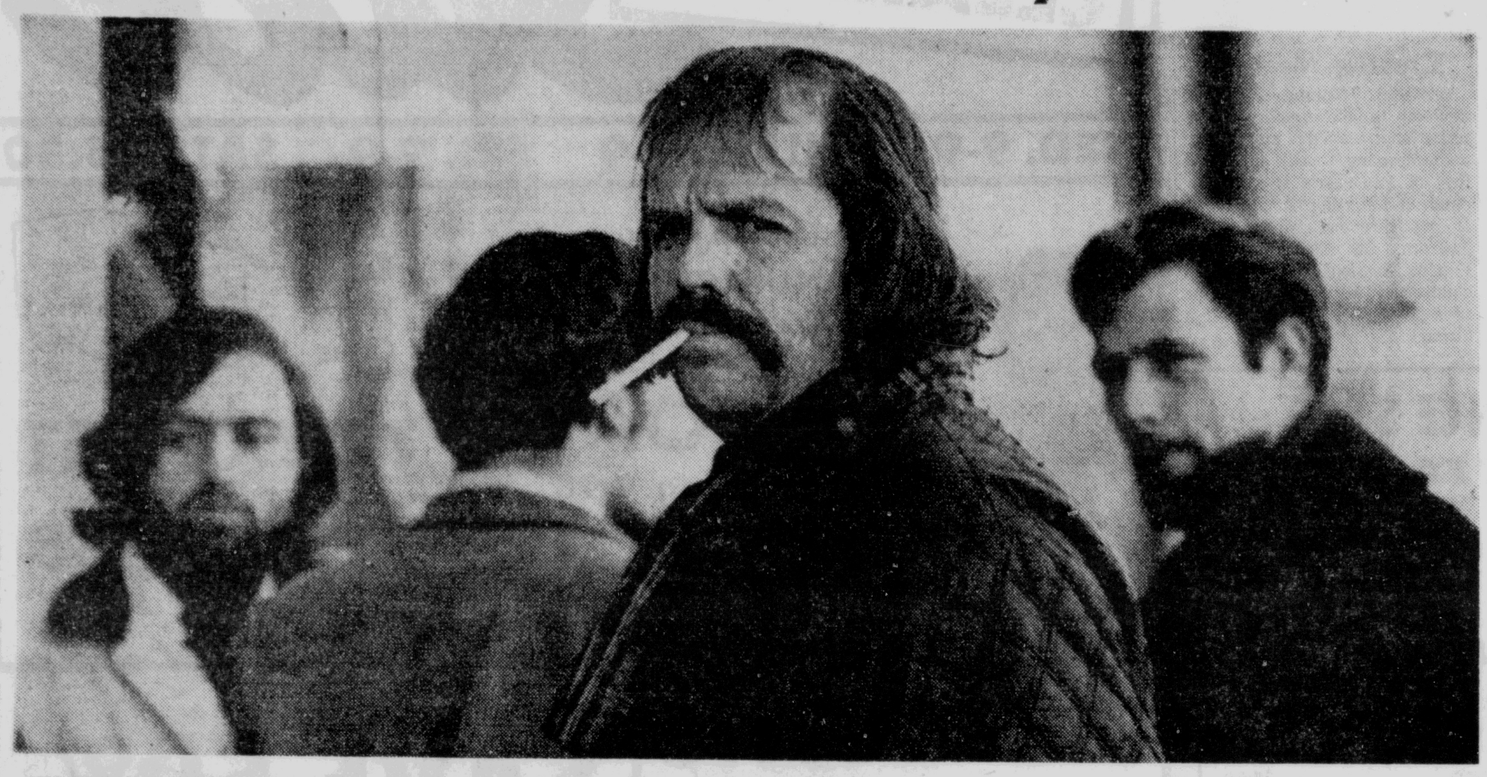
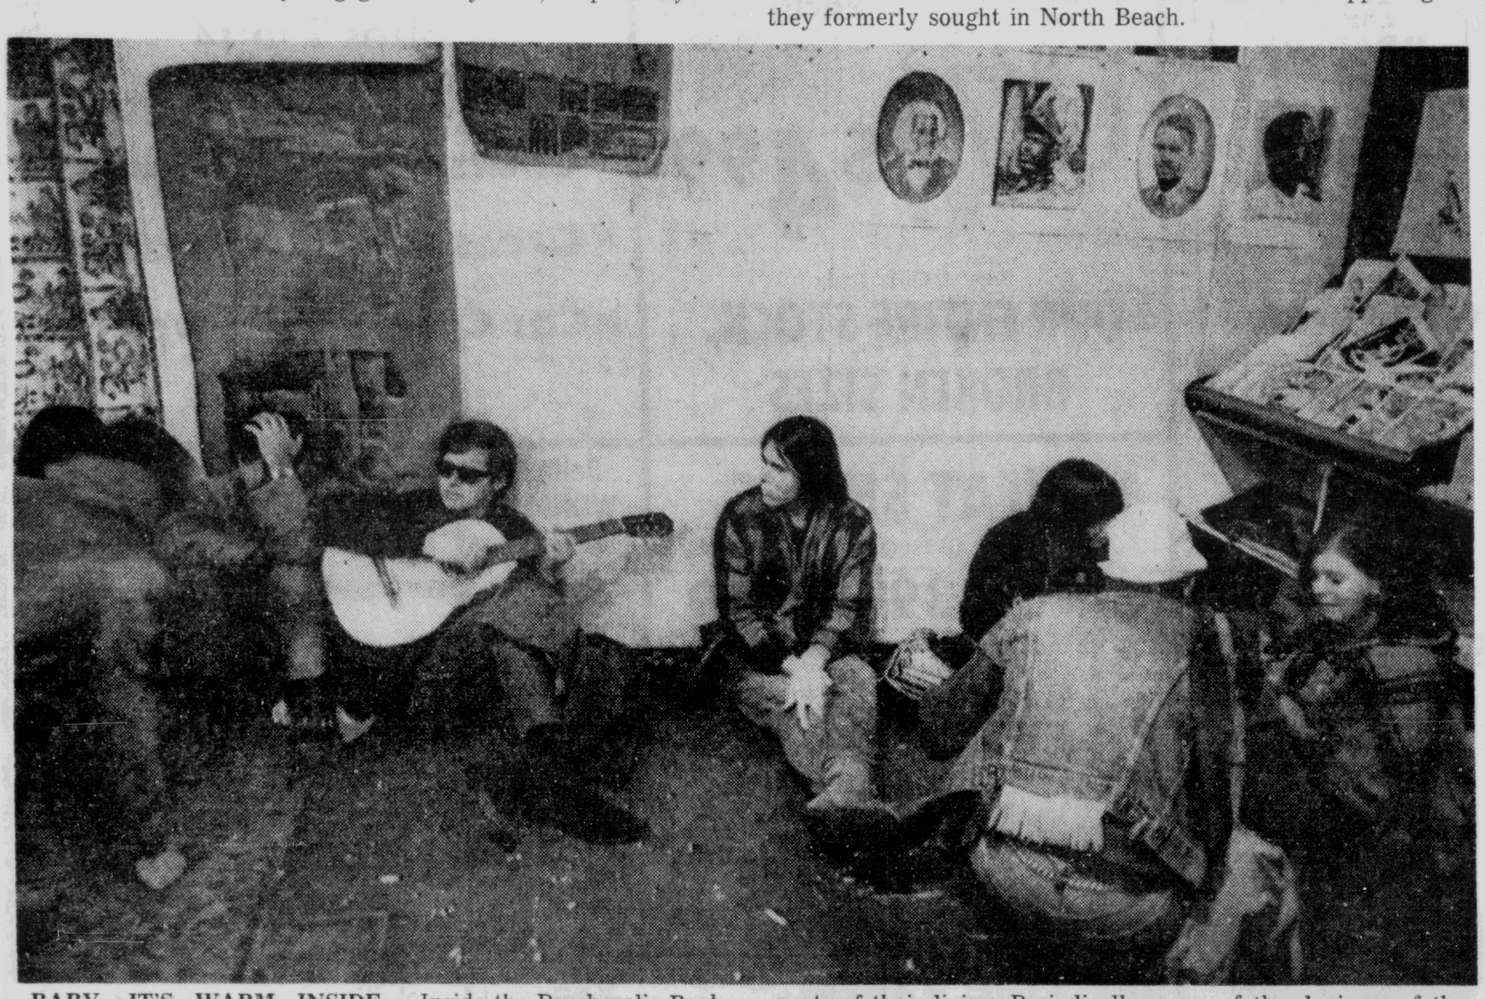
San Francisco's 'Hippie' Colony In Search Of The Way-Out Life



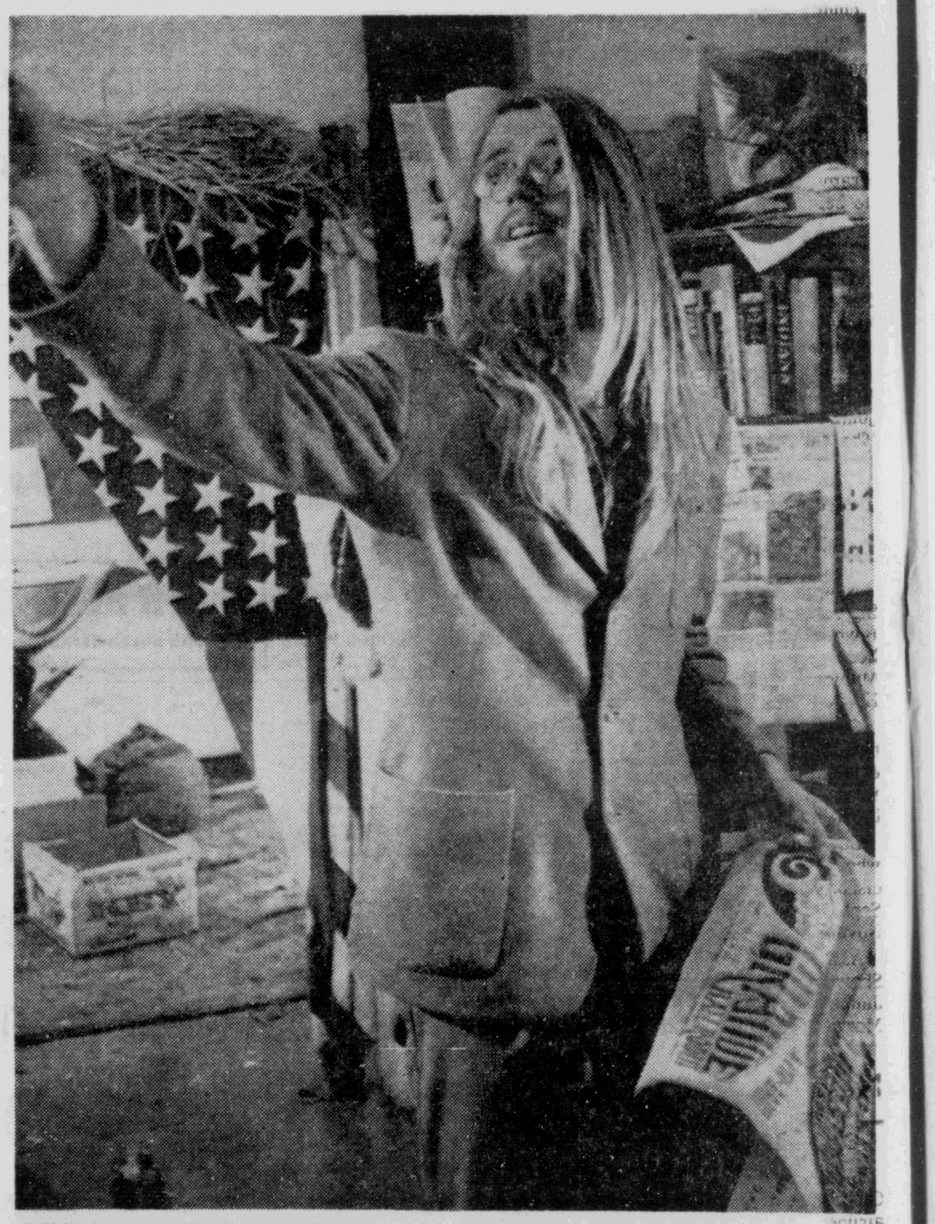
WAITING FOR A HAPPENING—Although many of the Haight Ashbury residents may be "teenieboppers" and "dudes"—the "in" nomenclature for young girls and youths, respectively—quite a few of the customers of the Psychedelic Book Shop are older. Many of the unconventionally dressed, bewhiskered visitors have shifted to this scene to await the "happenings" they formerly sought in North Beach.



BABY, IT'S WARM INSIDE — Inside the Psycherelic Book Store, a group of Haight Ashbury "hippies" get out of the cold and take in the posters, music and reading that are important parts of their living. Periodically, some of the denizens of the neighborhood disappear to take a job and keep body and soul together, but mostly they help each other, sharing food, "pads."

CENTER FOR PROTESTING YOUTH—The Haight Ashbury district of San Francisco has become a center for the "hippies," who have supplanted the "beatniks" as the principal movement of non-conformist youth. One of their favorite gathering places is this Psychedelic Book Shop. Living largely in unlighted and unheated "pads" in the area, the "hippies" assist each other when possible, and "seldom can be found an empty stomach or mind," habitues of the area claim. (UPI Telephotos)

ROSY GLASSES ARE SQUARE — Being "way out" is the way of the "hippy," who devotes careful attention to achieving a studied, strange appearance. A clerk in House of Richard, a shop owned by and catering to "hippies," shows off a pair of heavy, colored prism glasses that create a sort of psychedelic vision.



LEADER OF THE CAUSE — Chet Helm is the industrious organizer of The Family Dog, an entertainment group that operates in a former Oriental religious temple. Helm also promotes dances and concerts in his Avalon Ball Room, and makes a tidy income from selling way-out posters heralding the events, to "hippie" collectors at $1 to $2.50 each.

A MUNDANE TOUCH—Typically garbed, typically hirsute "hippies" squeeze a reminder of the more workaday world into a station wagon—a baby crib. Usually low on cash, the non-conformists get along by haunting thrift shops, low-priced food stores and by mutual exchange.

Fairfax To Cooperate In Joint Study Plan

By a 3-2 vote, Fairfax City Council last night agreed to go along with the county's proposed county-cities zoning ordinance study seeking uniform zoning terms throughout Marin.

Councilman Robert R. Souza led the opposition. He said he was against the co-operative agreement not only because it would cost taxpayers but also because he felt the county should approach the zoning problem "in a more constructive manner" through better co-operation with the Local Agency Formation Commission.

He upbraided fellow countrymen for "incurring expense because they feel they are missing out on something. This is wrong." Souza was joined by Councilman Frank J. Egger.

Voting in favor of the agreement were Mayor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., and Councilmen Adelaide Wilson and George A. Pagni.

County Zoning Administrator Thomas E. Cordill, making a second appearance before the council, said that Mill Valley Corte Madera, Belvedere and Sausalito had agreed, with reservations, to join in the study. San Rafael and San Anselmo had declined; Novato, Ross, Tiburon and Larkspur had it under consideration.

Asked what would happen if the county did not have the co-operation of all the cities, Cordell said: "We could go on without them. But we could only state problems, not solve them."

Souza said: "If anyone tells me it will not cost Fairfax anything, I don't believe them. As taxpayers, we in the long run pay for everything in the county."

He foresaw a "good partnership" between the cities and the county through a strengthening of the LAFC. Any other way "was not a good way to go about it," he contended.

The Fairax City Council Also:

1. Continued for further consideration, a contract between the council and Fairfax School District governing a tennis court built by the city on school district property.

2. Passes a resolution to erect stop signs at Park Road at its intersection with Merwin Avenue; Scenic Road at Redwood Road, and on Scenic Road at its intersection with Tamalpais Road.

3. Reappointed Leo Cronin for a further term on the planning commission and went into closed session to interview candidates for the two vacancies on the ark and recreation commission.

4. Continued for a month discussion of Marin County's amendment to its animal control ordinance to hear explanations from an official of the Humane Society. Mayor Arrigoni expressed surprise costs of keeping dogs in the county pound had risen so much.

5. Authorized establishing a tow-away zone on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard between San Miguel Court and Oak Tree Lane.

6. Agreed to take action on a letter from Mr. and Mrs. Verne J. MacFarlan of 26 Oak Road about state of sidewalks, particularly on Broadway. City Administrator David J. Sumbardo said more trash cans would be issued, but councilmen wanted further indication a city ordinance would be enforced and asked a report next meeting.

7. Adjourned until Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Fairfax Women's Club.

Auto Strippers Elude Deputy

A sheriff's officer surprised two young men stripping a stolen automobile behind 79 Cole Drive in Marin City yesterday afternoon, but reported they fled afoot before he could apprehend them.

Found nearby, however, was a station wagon containing three tires and wheels stolen from the partially stripped car. Officers said they received a telephone call soon after reporting the station wagon also had been stolen.

The car being stripped, officers said, had been stolen in Sausalito from Harold Smith, 1001 Eighth Street, Novato.

Mrs. Dave Townsel Jr. of 347 Drake Avenue, Marin City, notified officers that the station wagon, had been stolen from her home.

Board Elected In Peacock Gap

Board members were informed last night that the Draper Company has contracted to pay Chin Ho Associates a fee of $1,000 for maintenance of the lagoon for 1967.

A monthly news bulletin, compiled by Mary Carpou, will be distributed to association members and future board meetings will be held on the second Monday each month at the old Catholic Church on San Pedro Road.

Novato City Workers Elect New Officers

Merl D. Mauroni was elected president of the Novato City Employees Assn. last night.

Commercial Zone Faces Restrictions

Fairfax City Council is to make it harder for "unwanted" businesses to move into the city's commercial area — at least until after the master plan for Fairfax is completed.

Councilmen last night ordered preparation of an interim zoning ordinance providing greater control over what goes where.

New commercial construction will not be forebidden but will be allowed only with a use permit granted by the council.

Mayor Jeter R. Arrigoni Jr., said that "personally, some of our commercial zoning just doesn't make sense to me."

He said that while the city was waiting for the specific zoning changes expected in the master plan being prepared by county planners, he thought it was not in the best interest of Fairfax to allow commercial building "here, there and anywhere."

The restrictive ordinance will be for three months, initially, but it is expected it will be continued by the council until zone change recommendations arrive from the county staff. City Administrator David J. Sumbardo said this could be up to a year.

Councilman Adelaide Wilson pointed out that present Fairfax zones merely specified "commercial." What was wanted were areas set aside for particular uses — shopping commerical, business and professional commercial, highway frontage commercial and so on.

Berry Resigns Marin Redevelopment Post

Jesse E. Berry today resigned from the Marin County Redevelopment Agency due to ill health. His term would have run until April 17 of this year.

Supervisors are seeking replacements for him and for Omar E. McNally, who resigned last week. Appointments are expected in two weeks.

Prosecution Contends Baker Diverted Gifts

COMBINED AP & UPI

WASHINGTON — Government Attorney William O. Bittman told a federal jury today he would prove that former Senate aide Robert G. (Bobby) Baker took $100,000 from California savings and loan officials by falsely claiming the money would be used for Senate campaign funds.

In his opening statement at Baker's fraud, theft and income evasion trial, Bittman also said the government would prove that Baker falsified his income tax returns and worked out a fraudulent scheme with a Washington attorney, Wayne Bromley, to cover up payments made to Baker.

The government prosecutor said Baker set up the $100,000 payment from the savings and loan associations at a time when he was "in desperate need of cash" to conduct his outside business activities, including operation of the Carousel Motel at Ocean City, Md.

The first witness called by the government was John Roche, an Internal Revenue Service agent from Baltimore.

Roche, who identified tax returns the government claims Baker and his wife, Dorothy, falsified, was followed by Myron Weiner, a New Jersey attorney.

Winer testified that he had paid $5,000 to Baker on Sept. 21, 1961, to retain Baker's law firm as counsel to a public relations firm Weiner once ran in Washington.

Baker's attorney said he would not contest the fact that Weiner made the check payable to Baker's law partner, Ernest C. Tucker.

One of the government's charges is that Baker funneled checks through Tucker into Baker's accounts to avoid paying taxes on them.

Edward Bennett Williams, Baker's chief lawyer, decided not to make his opening statement right after Bittman's. He reserved it for the time when the defense will open its presentation of evidence.

Jurors for the case were chosen yesterday amid extraordinary precautions against out-of-court influences.

Beginning today the jurors are to be sequestered, meaning locked up, for the duration of the trial expected to last 2 to 2½ months. They will sleep in hotel-type accommodations on the seventh and eighth floors of the big U. S. courthouse, and eat in the court cafeteria, or in hotels, in the company of marshals.

Slate Proposed For Loma Verde

Others on the slate are John Kilsby for vice president, Lillian Tindell for secretary, Lois Curtin (incumbent) for corresponding secretary, and Otto Littler for treasurer.

Election will be at the meeting at 8 p. m., Feb. 8, at which time, other nominations can be made from the floor, according to Leo Curtin, chairman of the nominating committee.

Death Row Inmate Due New Trial

Harrison Butler, 24-year-old Death Row inmate at San Quentin, has been granted a new trial by the State Supreme Court, which held he had been deprived of his best defense.

Butler has been at San Quentin since December, 1965, after conviction of first degree murder for the slaying of Los Angeles caterer Joseph H. Anderson on May 18, 1965 at Anderson's home.

Butler was convicted on the assumption the killing occurred during an armed robbery, because the prosecutor argued Butler had gone to Anderson's home with a gun to collect a debt. Butler said he had no intention to rob and that Anderson had died during a struggle for the gun.

Butler also was convicted of assault with a deadly weapon against William R. Locklear, who supported Butlers' story.

The vote was 5-2, with Justices Marshall McComb and Stanley Mosk dissenting, the latter on the ground that "recovery of property should be by orderly legal processes and not at gunpoint."

The removal of Butler from Death Row, reduces the number of condemned prisoners there to 61, of whom 10 have received stays of execution. The other 51 have appeals pending in the courts.

Insurance Ordered

Fire insurance for the Novato Sanitary District was awarded to Bayly, Martin and Fay of San Francisco by the district board last night, with a three-year $395,300 policy bearing a first year's premium of $733.

"Well, well, well, eight months in Vietnam an' ya' finally broke down."

Thant Says Cong Not Hanoi Dupes

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Secretary General Thant today disputed U. S. charges the Viet Cong is a stooge of the Hanoi government and said they must be brought into any peace talks on Vietnam.

He also disagreed at a news conference with the American viewpoint that the rest of Southeast Asia will fall to the Communists like a row of dominoes if Vietnam is taken over by the Reds.

Thant issued a three-point declaration of his personal attitude toward the Vietnam problem, stating:

"I do not subscribe to the generally held view that the National Liberation Front (political arm of the Viet Cong) is a stooge of Hanoi In my view, the NLF, although receiving very substantial aid from the north, is an independent entity as the National Liberation Front of Algeria was."

"I do not subscribe to the view that if South Vietnam falls, then country X, then country Y, then country Z. I do not agree with the so-called 'domino theory.'"

"I do not subscribe to the view that South Vietnam is strategically vital to western intersts and western security."

He was asked about statements made by North Vietnamese Foreign Minister Pham Van Dong, the Hanoi envoy to Paris, or official radio broadcasts since he took his latest peace initiative at the request of the United States in December.

"They are restating old positions, perhaps in new language," Thant said.

Dong told newsmen in Paris the Hanoi regime rejected any attempts at U. N. intervention in Vietnam on grounds it would violate the 1954 Geneva agreements ending the French-Indochina war.

Novato Planners Elect Officers

The commission denied Fabian Bobo a permit to keep horses in a residential area. Bobo had asked for permit to keep two horses at his home at 1486 South Novato Boulevard. These horses were the object of much controversy until the Novato City Council declared them to be a nuisance several years ago.

The commission approved Albert Young's plans for using a portion of the former Truck Stop Restaurant building on the east side of Highway 101, south of Vallejo Avenue, for a dog salon. It continued indefinitely Young's request for a muffler shop in a small building behind the Viking cocktail lounge.

Andrew Talbot was granted a lot split on Grant Avenue between Fifth Street and Lee Brothers Market.

Telephone Service Survey This Month

Pacific Telephone announced today it will survey its customers in San Rafael on a continuing basis beginning this month to learn how they feel about their telephone service.

T. E. Lewis, local manager, said questionnaires will be sent to a sample of customers each month.

Results, he said, will be helpful in adjusting to customers' needs more promptly.

Peter Hurd Not Without Honor

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP)—New Mexico Gov. David F. Cargo, a Republican, enjoys Peter Hurd's paintings. He named Hurd yesterday to the New Mexico Art Commission.

"I told him (Hurd) I liked his paintings and I didn't care if anyone else did," said Cargo. "I've got one hanging in the outer office."

Driver Hits Parked Auto; Flees Scene

An unidentified driver hit a parked car on Miller Avenue in Mill Valley early Saturday and fled the scene of the accident, police reported.

The parked car, owned by Simeon Temnikow, of 117 Sycamore Avenue, received major damage, and a bowling ball and shoes worth $20 were missing from the trunk of his car after the crash, Temnikow reported.

California has the tallest of all living things — the coast redwoods—and the oldest known —bristlecone pines.

Powell Move Marks New Mood Of Congress

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House today refused to seat Adam Clayton Powell, paving the way for a resolution that could lead to his being excluded from membership.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new 90th Congress convened today with a majority of members apparently in a mood to tinker at shoring weaknesses in "Great Society" domestic programs but obviously disinclined to begin major new ones.

Tonight, it will hear from President Johnson what he hopes to get from the Congress, its once overwhelming Democratic strength diluted by Republican election gains.

The President will deliver his State of the Union message to a joint session at 6:30 p.m. PST. The address will be broadcast nationally by radio and television.

The inclination of Congress to be more self-assertive, rather than to play follow the leader, was demonstrated in the preliminaries, even before the gavels fell to open the session formally.

There was first of all the House Democratic caucus vote yesterday to oust Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, Harlem Democrat, as chairman of the Education and Labor Committee. This was voted despite opposition to the move from House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass.

The Powell affair contributed to bringing an exceptionally large crowd of spectators to the Capitol for the opening formalities.

An hour and a half before the session opened several hundred Negroes, most of them from New York City, gathered on the steps of the House wing and began a rhythmic chant:

"We want Powell back in his chair!"

Police stood by.

House leaders decided to go ahead with today's opening program, despite the death of Rep. John E. Fogarty, D-R.I. Fogarty was found dead in his office this morning.

Ranch Hand Hits House With Car

A car driven by an Inverness ranch hand on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard near Point Reyes Station yesterday afternoon smashed into a house.

The crash separated the bedroom from the rest of the house leaving a six-inch gap and broke a window and lumber.

Change Stolen

Theft of $7 in change in a burglary of the home of Mrs. Betty Jane Krambs, at 2396 Las Gallinas Avenue, Marinwood, was reported today by sheriff's officers. Entry was apparently via an open garage door.

New Trial Set In Driving Case

New trial in the drunken driving conviction of Richard Arthur Boyd, 56, Kentfield attorney, has been granted in Marin Municipal Court by Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr.

Grounds for the motion for new trial were newly discovered evidence and prejudicial misconduct by the trial judge, the late Leonard A. Thomas.

Boyd, of 10 Tree Top Way, who practices law in San Francisco, was convicted by jury last Sept. 30 of drunken driving in Novato on Oct. 17, 1965.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Leonard Shaw said today he will appeal Judge Goldstein's action to Marin Superior Appellate Court.

New Airline Due To Start Monday

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Air California, the nation's newest airline, will inaugurate service between San Francisco and Orange County Airport near Disneyland next Monday.

There will be five flights daily in each direction.

Flying time in Air California's Lockheed Electra prop-jets will be one hour.

Joint Session To Talk Charter

Proposed revisions in the San Rafael City Charter will be reviewed at a joint meeting of the city council and charter revision committee at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow at city hall.

Under review will be a list of recommendations for charter changes made by the committee after a five-month study.

The session will be the council's first step toward deciding which charter revisions should be placed before the voters on the municipal ballot in April.

Naminating Meeting

Officers of Bayside Acres Homeowners Assn. will be nominated at the annual meeting on Jan. 23 at 8 p.m. at St. Luke's Presbyterian Church, 10 Bayview Drive.

Federal Funds Asked For Sausalito Library

Sausalito's application for state and federal grants totaling $141,- towards a new $425,000 library was approved last night by the city library board.

Still pending, however, is agreement between the city and Mac-Marin on terms to re-acquire about 8,500 square feet leased to the company until 2002. The state may pay one-third of the cost of re-acquiring the leased land, part of the proposed library site, but Monday is the deadline to apply for state funds. If terms are not settled before Monday, the city will have to pay the full cost of re-acquiring the land.

Mac-Marin sub-leases the sand spit northeast of Vina del Mar Plaza from Madden and Lewis and operates the Spinnaker Restaurant.

City Mgr. George W. Patterson said the city council could hold a special meeting anytime before Monday to approve terms which may be proposed by Mac-Marin. The company is having the parcel appraised, Patterson said.

A $250,000 bond election will be held March 7 to finance the remainder of the library cost.

West Marin School Delay Discussed

West Marin School District trustees were told last night that the building program at West Marin School might be completed by mid-February.

Supt. Howard F. Brose was not optimistic about that projection, however. He noted that the administrative wing, now 95 per cent ready, was supposed to have been finished before the start of the school year last September and that the kindergarten building and the library-classroom building were to have been ready for occupancy by Christmas.

The project, for which a $240,000 bond issue was passed last year, has been plagued by lack of architects' plans for the original structure, unexpected soil problems and what Brose called a "foul-up on delivery" of construction materials.

He said there is a $50-a-day penalty clause in the contract with Pace Pacific Enterprises of Vallejo for delay in completion of the work.

District Meeting

Mill Valley Junior Chamber of Commerce will host an all-day district meeting Jan. 15 at the community and youth center on Sycamore Avenue extension. The meeting of junior chambers from Marin to Mendocino counties will begin at 10 a.m.

Strawberry Meeting

Chairman Clarence Bush has called a special meeting of the Strawberry Recreation District Board tomorrow at 8 p.m. at Strawberry Point School to consider the Strawberry Swim Club lease "and related matters."

Sanitary Board Buys Chlorine

Tiburon Sanitary District will save money on its chlorine purchases this year. Last night the district board authorized Plant Supt. John MacFarlane to negotiate an agreement with the Tops Chemical Co. of Richmond for $122 per ton on a two-ton purchase basis. In 1966 the chlorine cost the district $150 per ton.

The board discussed with Belvedere City Mgr. William S. Cavalli a recommendation that Belvedere provide a truck as well as an assistant to Superintendent MacFarlane for servicing Belvedere sewer lines.

Randolph J. Esplin, ex-board member, was presented with a resolution commending him for eight years of service on the board during which he was president and secretary. New member Edward P. Ward was seated.

Planners Almost Kill Off Earthquake Danger Study

Marin County's controversial earthquake study nearly got jolted right out of consideration in the West Marin master plan yesterday. The vote by the planning commission was a narrow 4-3 to retain the study as a part of plan approval.

Commissioner Claude Stoller, Niels Schultz Jr. and Eugene R. Trombley voted against a portion of the resolution on the plan that would make development in the rift zone of the San Andreas Fault subject to change on completion of proposed earthquake studies.

Stoller declared the county building code already governs design of buildings and specifies construction to guard against earthquake damage.

Commissioner Michael Praszker countered that there was no way to design against damage in a rift zone where the earth is subject to fissuring and lateral shifts. He compared construction on such a zone to building on top of a volcano that erupts every 90 years.

Appointment of a committee of experts to consider the need for an earthquake study was to be considered by the board of supervisors today.

The earthquake discussion was followed by extensive discussion on other matters in the proposed resolution on the plan, including conflicts between it and the master plan for recreation and open space already adopted by both the commission and supervisors.

The recreation plan calls for a bird refuge on Keys Creek and a park on Tomasini Point, both on the east side of Tomales Bay. The West Marin plan shows a bird refuge on Keys Creek, but no park on the point. The recreation plan calls for retention of open marshland at the southern end of the bay. The West Marin master plan calls for this as the first choice use, but says that lagoons and residential housing, as first proposed by consultants Mary and Harold Summers and Dan E. Coleman, should be allowed if the property cannot be purchased by the public.

The commission finally decided to table the entire matter until Feb. 6 for a hearing on the conflicts between the two plans.

Sierra Club Sets PG&E Site Vote

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Sierra Club will ask its members to vote in April on the question of endorsing the Diablo Canyon coast as the site for a nuclear power plant.

Club directors said yesterday they will call for the election after 100 members submitted a petition requestion the vote. The board had previously given a provisional endorsement of the Pacific Gas and Electric company plan.

The site is on the coast between Point Buchon and Point San Luis near San Luis Obispo.

The PG&E plan was accepted providing marine resources would not be adversely affected, transmission lines were acceptably routed and air pollution and radiation held within licensed limits.

Fairfax To Cooperate In Joint Study Plan

By a 3-2 vote, Fairfax City Council last night agreed to go along with the county's proposed county-cities zoning ordinance study seeking uniform zoning terms throughout Marin.

Councilman Robert R. Souza led the opposition. He said he was against the co-operative agreement not only because it would cost taxpayers but also because he felt the county should approach the zoning problem "in a more constructive manner" through better co-operation with the Local Agency Formation Commission.

He upbraided fellow countrymen for "incurring expense because they feel they are missing out on something. This is wrong." Souza was joined by Councilman Frank J. Egger.

Voting in favor of the agreement were Mayor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., and Councilmen Adelaide Wilson and George A. Pagni.

County Zoning Administrator Thomas E. Cordill, making a second appearance before the council, said that Mill Valley Corte Madera, Belvedere and Sausalito had agreed, with reservations, to join in the study. San Rafael and San Anselmo had declined; Novato, Ross, Tiburon and Larkspur had it under consideration.

Asked what would happen if the county did not have the co-operation of all the cities, Cordell said: "We could go on without them. But we could only state problems, not solve them."

Souza said: "If anyone tells me it will not cost Fairfax anything, I don't believe them. As taxpayers, we in the long run pay for everything in the county."

He foresaw a "good partnership" between the cities and the county through a strengthening of the LAFC. Any other way "was not a good way to go about it," he contended.

The Fairax City Council Also:

1. Continued for further consideration, a contract between the council and Fairfax School District governing a tennis court built by the city on school district property.

2. Passes a resolution to erect stop signs at Park Road at its intersection with Merwin Avenue; Scenic Road at Redwood Road, and on Scenic Road at its intersection with Tamalpais Road.

3. Reappointed Leo Cronin for a further term on the planning commission and went into closed session to interview candidates for the two vacancies on the ark and recreation commission.

4. Continued for a month discussion of Marin County's amendment to its animal control ordinance to hear explanations from an official of the Humane Society. Mayor Arrigoni expressed surprise costs of keeping dogs in the county pound had risen so much.

5. Authorized establishing a tow-away zone on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard between San Miguel Court and Oak Tree Lane.

6. Agreed to take action on a letter from Mr. and Mrs. Verne J. MacFarlan of 26 Oak Road about state of sidewalks, particularly on Broadway. City Administrator David J. Sumbardo said more trash cans would be issued, but councilmen wanted further indication a city ordinance would be enforced and asked a report next meeting.

7. Adjourned until Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Fairfax Women's Club.

Auto Strippers Elude Deputy

A sheriff's officer surprised two young men stripping a stolen automobile behind 79 Cole Drive in Marin City yesterday afternoon, but reported they fled afoot before he could apprehend them.

Found nearby, however, was a station wagon containing three tires and wheels stolen from the partially stripped car. Officers said they received a telephone call soon after reporting the station wagon also had been stolen.

The car being stripped, officers said, had been stolen in Sausalito from Harold Smith, 1001 Eighth Street, Novato.

Mrs. Dave Townsel Jr. of 347 Drake Avenue, Marin City, notified officers that the station wagon, had been stolen from her home.

Board Elected In Peacock Gap

Board members were informed last night that the Draper Company has contracted to pay Chin Ho Associates a fee of $1,000 for maintenance of the lagoon for 1967.

A monthly news bulletin, compiled by Mary Carpou, will be distributed to association members and future board meetings will be held on the second Monday each month at the old Catholic Church on San Pedro Road.

Novato City Workers Elect New Officers

Merl D. Mauroni was elected president of the Novato City Employees Assn. last night.

Commercial Zone Faces Restrictions

Fairfax City Council is to make it harder for "unwanted" businesses to move into the city's commercial area — at least until after the master plan for Fairfax is completed.

Councilmen last night ordered preparation of an interim zoning ordinance providing greater control over what goes where.

New commercial construction will not be forebidden but will be allowed only with a use permit granted by the council.

Mayor Jeter R. Arrigoni Jr., said that "personally, some of our commercial zoning just doesn't make sense to me."

He said that while the city was waiting for the specific zoning changes expected in the master plan being prepared by county planners, he thought it was not in the best interest of Fairfax to allow commercial building "here, there and anywhere."

The restrictive ordinance will be for three months, initially, but it is expected it will be continued by the council until zone change recommendations arrive from the county staff. City Administrator David J. Sumbardo said this could be up to a year.

Councilman Adelaide Wilson pointed out that present Fairfax zones merely specified "commercial." What was wanted were areas set aside for particular uses — shopping commerical, business and professional commercial, highway frontage commercial and so on.

Berry Resigns Marin Redevelopment Post

Jesse E. Berry today resigned from the Marin County Redevelopment Agency due to ill health. His term would have run until April 17 of this year.

Supervisors are seeking replacements for him and for Omar E. McNally, who resigned last week. Appointments are expected in two weeks.

Prosecution Contends Baker Diverted Gifts

COMBINED AP & UPI

WASHINGTON — Government Attorney William O. Bittman told a federal jury today he would prove that former Senate aide Robert G. (Bobby) Baker took $100,000 from California savings and loan officials by falsely claiming the money would be used for Senate campaign funds.

In his opening statement at Baker's fraud, theft and income evasion trial, Bittman also said the government would prove that Baker falsified his income tax returns and worked out a fraudulent scheme with a Washington attorney, Wayne Bromley, to cover up payments made to Baker.

The government prosecutor said Baker set up the $100,000 payment from the savings and loan associations at a time when he was "in desperate need of cash" to conduct his outside business activities, including operation of the Carousel Motel at Ocean City, Md.

The first witness called by the government was John Roche, an Internal Revenue Service agent from Baltimore.

Roche, who identified tax returns the government claims Baker and his wife, Dorothy, falsified, was followed by Myron Weiner, a New Jersey attorney.

Winer testified that he had paid $5,000 to Baker on Sept. 21, 1961, to retain Baker's law firm as counsel to a public relations firm Weiner once ran in Washington.

Baker's attorney said he would not contest the fact that Weiner made the check payable to Baker's law partner, Ernest C. Tucker.

One of the government's charges is that Baker funneled checks through Tucker into Baker's accounts to avoid paying taxes on them.

Edward Bennett Williams, Baker's chief lawyer, decided not to make his opening statement right after Bittman's. He reserved it for the time when the defense will open its presentation of evidence.

Jurors for the case were chosen yesterday amid extraordinary precautions against out-of-court influences.

Beginning today the jurors are to be sequestered, meaning locked up, for the duration of the trial expected to last 2 to 2½ months. They will sleep in hotel-type accommodations on the seventh and eighth floors of the big U. S. courthouse, and eat in the court cafeteria, or in hotels, in the company of marshals.

Slate Proposed For Loma Verde

Others on the slate are John Kilsby for vice president, Lillian Tindell for secretary, Lois Curtin (incumbent) for corresponding secretary, and Otto Littler for treasurer.

Election will be at the meeting at 8 p. m., Feb. 8, at which time, other nominations can be made from the floor, according to Leo Curtin, chairman of the nominating committee.

Death Row Inmate Due New Trial

Harrison Butler, 24-year-old Death Row inmate at San Quentin, has been granted a new trial by the State Supreme Court, which held he had been deprived of his best defense.

Butler has been at San Quentin since December, 1965, after conviction of first degree murder for the slaying of Los Angeles caterer Joseph H. Anderson on May 18, 1965 at Anderson's home.

Butler was convicted on the assumption the killing occurred during an armed robbery, because the prosecutor argued Butler had gone to Anderson's home with a gun to collect a debt. Butler said he had no intention to rob and that Anderson had died during a struggle for the gun.

Butler also was convicted of assault with a deadly weapon against William R. Locklear, who supported Butlers' story.

The vote was 5-2, with Justices Marshall McComb and Stanley Mosk dissenting, the latter on the ground that "recovery of property should be by orderly legal processes and not at gunpoint."

The removal of Butler from Death Row, reduces the number of condemned prisoners there to 61, of whom 10 have received stays of execution. The other 51 have appeals pending in the courts.

Insurance Ordered

Fire insurance for the Novato Sanitary District was awarded to Bayly, Martin and Fay of San Francisco by the district board last night, with a three-year $395,300 policy bearing a first year's premium of $733.

Federal Funds Asked For Sausalito Library

Sausalito's application for state and federal grants totaling $141,000 towards a new $425,000 library was approved last night by the city library board.

Still pending, however, is agreement between the city and Mac-Marin on terms to re-acquire about 8,500 square feet leased to the company until 2002. The state may pay one-third of the cost of re-acquiring the leased land, part of the proposed library site, but Monday is the deadline to apply for state funds. If terms are not settled before Monday, the city will have to pay the full cost of re-acquiring the land.

Mac-Marin sub-leases the sand spit northeast of Vina del Mar Plaza from Madden and Lewis and operates the Spinnaker Restaurant.

City Mgr. George W. Patterson said the city council could hold a special meeting anytime before Monday to approve terms which may be proposed by Mac-Marin. The company is having the parcel appraised, Patterson said.

A $250,000 bond election will be held March 7 to finance the remainder of the library cost.

West Marin School Delay Is Discussed

West Marin School District trustees were told last night that the building program at West Marin School might be completed by mid-February.

Supt. Howard F. Brose was not optimistic about that projection, however. He noted that the administrative wing, now 95 per cent ready, was supposed to have been finished before the start of the school year last September and that the kindergarten building and the library-classroom building were to have been ready for occupancy by Christmas.

The project, for which a $240,000 bond issue was passed last year, has been plagued by lack of architects' plans for the original structure, unexpected soil problems and what Brose called a "foul-up on delivery" of construction materials.

He said there is a $50-a-day penalty clause in the contract with Pace Pacific Enterprises of Vallejo for delay in completion of the work.

District Meeting

Mill Valley Junior Chamber of Commerce will host an all-day district meeting Jan. 15 at the community and youth center on Sycamore Avenue extension. The meeting of junior chambers from Marin to Mendocino counties will begin at 10 a.m.

Strawberry Meeting

Chairman Clarence Bush has called a special meeting of the Strawberry Recreation District Board tomorrow at 8 p.m. at Strawberry Point School to consider the Strawberry Swim Club lease "and related matters."

Sierra Club Sets PG&E Site Vote

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Sierra Club will ask its members to vote in April on the question of endorsing the Diablo Canyon coast as the site for a nuclear power plant.

Club directors said yesterday they will call for the election after 100 members submitted a petition requestion the vote. The board had previously given a provisional endorsement of the Pacific Gas and Electric company plan.

The site is on the coast between Point Buchon and Point San Luis near San Luis Obispo.

The PG&E plan was accepted providing marine resources would not be adversely affected, transmission lines were acceptably routed and air pollution and radiation held within licensed limits.

Retired Officers To Install Officers

Col. Robert C. Hiatt of Novato will be installed as president of the Marin County Retired Officers Assn. Thursday at 8 p.m. at a ceremony in the Hamilton Air Force Base Officers Club.

Other officers to be installed at the dinner meeting are; Chief Warrant Officers Glen A. Thayer and Harold H. Warriner and Capt. Alfred T. Little, vice presidents; Lt. Col. Glyn W. Pohl chaplain; Col. Fred C. Prebil, sergeant at arms; Capt. Edward F. Springer, secretary-treasurer; and Col. Arthur A. Watson, assistant secretary-treasurer.

Sanitary Board Buys Chlorine

Tiburon Sanitary District will save money on its chlorine purchases this year. Last night the district board authorized Plant Supt. John MacFarlane to negotiate an agreement with the Tops Chemical Co. of Richmond for $122 per ton on a two-ton purchase basis. In 1966 the chlorine cost the district $150 per ton.

The board discussed with Belvedere City Mgr. William S. Cavalli a recommendation that Belvedere provide a truck as well as an assistant to Superintendent MacFarlane for servicing Belvedere sewer lines.

Randolph J. Esplin, ex-board member, was presented with a resolution commending him for eight years of service on the board during which he was president and secretary. New member Edward P. Ward was seated.

Planners Almost Kill Off Earthquake Danger Study

Marin County's controversial earthquake study nearly got jolted right out of consideration in the West Marin master plan yesterday. The vote by the planning commission was a narrow 4-3 to retain the study as a part of plan approval.

Commissioner Claude Stoller, Niels Schultz Jr. and Eugene R. Trombley voted against a portion of the resolution on the plan that would make development in the rift zone of the San Andreas Fault subject to change on completion of proposed earthquake studies.

Stoller declared the county building code already governs design of buildings and specifies construction to guard against earthquake damage.

Commissioner Michael Praszker countered that there was no way to design against damage in a rift zone where the earth is subject to fissuring and lateral shifts. He compared construction on such a zone to building on top of a volcano that erupts every 90 years.

Appointment of a committee of experts to consider the need for an earthquake study was to be considered by the board of supervisors today.

The earthquake discussion was followed by extensive discussion on other matters in the proposed resolution on the plan, including conflicts between it and the master plan for recreation and open space already adopted by both the commission and supervisors.

The recreation plan calls for a bird refuge on Keys Creek and a park on Tomasini Point, both on the east side of Tomales Bay. The West Marin plan shows a bird refuge on Keys Creek, but no park on the point. The recreation plan calls for retention of open marshland at the southern end of the bay. The West Marin master plan calls for this as the first choice use, but says that lagoons and residential housing, as first proposed by consultants Mary and Harold Summers and Dan E. Coleman, should be allowed if the property cannot be purchased by the public.

The commission finally decided to table the entire matter until Feb. 6 for a hearing on the conflicts between the two plans.

Sausalito Soprano Describes Tour Life

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

While home in Sausalito for the holidays soprano Sydney Peterzen took time from her schedule to tell about her first experiences as a professional singer. She was on leave from the touring National Opera Co. that is sponsored by the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York.

There is no doubt that Sydney, blonde, beautiful and as unspoiled and eager to please as she was before she joined the opera company, has many traits necessary to succeed other than her talent. These include sheer determination, enthusiasm and capacity for hard work.

Even during the short time between Dec. 18, when she flew home from Toronto, and Jan. 1, when she flew to New York to join the company for a performance at the City Center, she resumed the vocal lessons she has been taking four and a half years with Mme Serafima Strelova in San Francisco.

BEING ACCEPTED for the company as result of auditions at Berkeley last March at the age of 23 was only the beginning for Sydney, even though this was quite an achievement since only 20 singers were chosen for the ensemble from 1500 participating in the auditions held all over the United States. The next step was trying for a featured role.

Three weeks after Sydney began rehearsals with the company in Indianapolis she had the opportunity to audition for the role of Musetta in Puccini's "La Boheme," one of the four operas in the company's repertoire, the others being Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro," Verdi's "La Traviata" and Britten's "Rape of Lucretia."

"I WAS SCARED TO DEATH," she said, "but I made up my mind that this was no time to be shy. If you are nervous at a rehearsal, they are not going to trust you on stage. So I said to myself: 'OK, you're not 16 or 18. You're in a professional group now and you've got to make it!'

"After that audition the musical director, Robert La Marchini, told me that both musically and dramatically I was the ideal Musetta. That meant I got a contract as a featured singer with better pay. I couldn't help shouting to my roommate, 'I got it! I got it!' "

The singer went on to explain, however, that getting an actual opportunity to perform the role was something else Musetta. Through the coach, Joan Dernemann, who especially recommended Sydney for the role to Rise Stevens, co-director of the company with Michael Manuel, she has been promised her first performance as Musetta on Feb. 17 in Washington, D.C.

SYDNEY WENT on to tell what it's like to be a member of a touring opera company made up of young people.

"It's great fun and like being part of a big, happy family," she said. "Part of the time we fly, but we also tour by bus. Then it's almost like home with candy, books, radio playing and all kinds of games going on.

"Sometimes we take a whole floor of a big hotel, or in some places we have to split up in several smaller hotels. I have a roommate, but most room alone. It can get pretty noisy with everyone vocalizing.

"The difference in theaters is amazing—everything from big, fancy ones to funny little ones like the one where I think we must have followed a seal act.

"SALARIES ARE GOOD, but we have to pay for our own food and hotel bills. I can't save any money, but the experience is worth it.

"And we have so much fun. Opera guilds gave us champagne receptions in several cities, and wealthy Indianapolis families opened their swimming pools to us on weekends. We had a hay ride in Little Rock and rode horseback in Virginia.

"I'll never forget one funny experience when we performed in a student union complex where there were a theater and kitchen facilities too. We mixed up a batch of cookies, ran on stage to perform in "The Marriage of Figaro" and then came back and put them in the oven."

SO FAR THE company has performed in about half of the cities they plan to visit and in 18 states as well as in Ottawa and Toronto in Canada.

The company will be in Berkeley April 28 to 30.

Unfortunately because of financial difficulties the National Opera is not scheduled to continue after completing its tour by July 1.

"IT WAS SUCH A WONDERFUL IDEA," Sydney lamented. "It brought opera to the people in the small towns who would not otherwise have the chance to hear it, and it gave young singers professional experience singing again, since several other sopranos were qualified to sing opera.

"I have so much more self confidence now. I hope to audition for Spring Opera and other music activities in the Bay Area. I would also like to audition for Boris Goldewski, who has his own touring opera company in the East. Dr. Peggy Donovan, director of the Sonoma State College opera workshop, and until this school year also of the College of Marin opera workship, had some of her training with him."

Sydney had her first experience in singing operatic roles in those workshops, to critical acclaim.

The daughter of Mrs. Robert Peterzen of Sausalito and the late Mr. Peterzen, she is a where she was active in music graduate of Tamalpais High School and attended San Francisco State College two years, and dramatics. She began the study of voice in her senior year in high school with Lisa Johnston of Novato.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

DEAR HELEN:

I have written to you about this problem four times. Please answer me in your column.

My boy friend and I broke up. I don't know why. I surely didn't want to, because I love him. Now he is going with the girl he went with before he met me.

If I don't get him back, life won't be worth living. I refuse to date other boys. If I can't have him, I won't have any. Sometimes I've thought of having an accident or something, so he'll be sorry and come to me.

I'll try anything you suggest, Helen, but don't tell me to forget him because I can't. — HEARTBROKEN AND IN LOVE

DEAR HAIL:

I haven't answered, honey, because I can only tell you what you don't want to hear: you must forget him! Or make a good pretense.

Mix, flirt, date other boys, smile, show him you don't care. In fact, you might take a leaf from his current girl's notebook. Did she retire in a corner and plan "accidents when he dropped her? Not much! I'll bet she got mad first, and then "forgot" him, while enjoying herself with the crowd. When a male sees others are interested, he begins to wonder why he was such a dope. It could happen to you!

It's your only way to travel: so try! Who knows, the detour may turn out to be the best road after all.—H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm in Military Academy, and have been going steady with a girl at home since June. How do you explain to a girl that you don't want to make her unhappy by restricting her while you're not there?

I'm crazy about her and don't want her thinking I'm trying to drop her or anything. Of course I don't go with other girls up here.

The reason I think she feels restricted is that she's forever goofing around with my friends on a little bit more than just friendly basis. Should I tell her it's okay? — M.U.L.

P.S. I don't understand girls very well.

DEAR MUL:

You don't understand yourself very well, chum.

Honest now, aren't you a little sore because she is "goofing around with your friends" while you are stuck at a boys school? So you wonder if offering her a release from "steadydom" will shake her into being true? I doubt it.

You're expecting a lot when you ask a high school girl to go steady long-distance. Why not make it "when possible," and then neither of you will feel tied down?—H.

DEAR HELEN:

I dye my hair blonde and it is down my back, straight. I wear all the latest makeup. Because of this my relatives and parents think I look like a tramp. I started hanging around with girls who are tramps and word got out I was too. Then I met this boy who lives in another town. I lied to my folks so I'd be able to go with him.

After three dates of petting, he told me he loved me and couldn't go on without me. So I proved my love for him.

He promised to see me every week, but in a little while, he didn't come back any more. I tried to forget him but now I can't. I'm pregnant. My family would be disgraced if they knew. Should I go to see him and tell him, so we can decide together what to do? — DESPERATE AT 15

DEAR DESPERATE:

Tell your parents, and you three will decide together what to do, but don't expect cooperation from the boy. He only took what he tought was being passed around free. And he had every right to think so, if you petted with him from the first date. If you'll send me your address, I'll provide you with a list of homes for unwed mothers in your area. But I can't offer much sympathy. You asked for this!—H.

Newly Developed Fabric Will Help Eliminate Stains

An electronic radiation process that imparts durable press and soil release properties to a polyester-cotton fabric has been developed by a New York City firm. The irradiated fabric, called "VISA" is a blend of 65 per cent polyester and 35 per cent cotton for use in slacks and outer-wear. The process adds a few cents per yard to the fabric price.

The manufacturer believes that this new process will overcome the problem with current permanent press fabrics where oil-based stains are so difficult to remove in home laundering. Ordinary detergents should do the job with the irradiated fabric.

Raincoats Move Out

Raincoats certainly have moved away from the traditional. Now they are go-everywhere coats, handsomely styled and in un-traditional materials. The Dior-New York spring collection includes one coat in navy and white printed cotton, with white vinyl trim and white vinyl kerchief. Another is a shocking pink silk, treated, with a double row of brass buttons.

Sausalito Soprano Describes Tour Life

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

While home in Sausalito for the holidays soprano Sydney Peterzen took time from her schedule to tell about her first experiences as a professional singer. She was on leave from the touring National Opera Co. that is sponsored by the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York.

There is no doubt that Sydney, blonde, beautiful and as unspoiled and eager to please as she was before she joined the opera company, has many traits necessary to succeed other than her talent. These include sheer determination, enthusiasm and capacity for hard work.

Even during the short time between Dec. 18, when she flew home from Toronto, and Jan. 1, when she flew to New York to join the company for a performance at the City Center, she resumed the vocal lessons she has been taking four and a half years with Mme Serafima Strelova in San Francisco.

BEING ACCEPTED for the company as result of auditions at Berkeley last March at the age of 23 was only the beginning for Sydney, even though this was quite an achievement since only 20 singers were chosen for the ensemble from 1500 participating in the auditions held all over the United States. The next step was trying for a featured role.

Three weeks after Sydney began rehearsals with the company in Indianapolis she had the opportunity to audition for the role of Musetta in Puccini's "La Boheme," one of the four operas in the company's repertoire, the others being Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro," Verdi's "La Traviata" and Britten's "Rape of Lucretia."

"I WAS SCARED TO DEATH," she said, "but I made up my mind that this was no time to be shy. If you are nervous at a rehearsal, they are not going to trust you on stage. So I said to myself: 'OK, you're not 16 or 18. You're in a professional group now and you've got to make it!'

"After that audition the musical director, Robert La Marchini, told me that both musically and dramatically I was the ideal Musetta. That meant I got a contract as a featured singer with better pay. I couldn't help shouting to my roommate, 'I got it! I got it!' "

The singer went on to explain, however, that getting an actual opportunity to perform the role was something else Musetta. Through the coach, Joan Dernemann, who especially recommended Sydney for the role to Rise Stevens, co-director of the company with Michael Manuel, she has been promised her first performance as Musetta on Feb. 17 in Washington, D.C.

SYDNEY WENT on to tell what it's like to be a member of a touring opera company made up of young people.

"It's great fun and like being part of a big, happy family," she said. "Part of the time we fly, but we also tour by bus. Then it's almost like home with candy, books, radio playing and all kinds of games going on.

"Sometimes we take a whole floor of a big hotel, or in some places we have to split up in several smaller hotels. I have a roommate, but most room alone. It can get pretty noisy with everyone vocalizing.

"The difference in theaters is amazing—everything from big, fancy ones to funny little ones like the one where I think we must have followed a seal act.

"SALARIES ARE GOOD, but we have to pay for our own food and hotel bills. I can't save any money, but the experience is worth it.

"And we have so much fun. Opera guilds gave us champagne receptions in several cities, and wealthy Indianapolis families opened their swimming pools to us on weekends. We had a hay ride in Little Rock and rode horseback in Virginia.

"I'll never forget one funny experience when we performed in a student union complex where there were a theater and kitchen facilities too. We mixed up a batch of cookies, ran on stage to perform in "The Marriage of Figaro" and then came back and put them in the oven."

SO FAR THE company has performed in about half of the cities they plan to visit and in 18 states as well as in Ottawa and Toronto in Canada.

The company will be in Berkeley April 28 to 30.

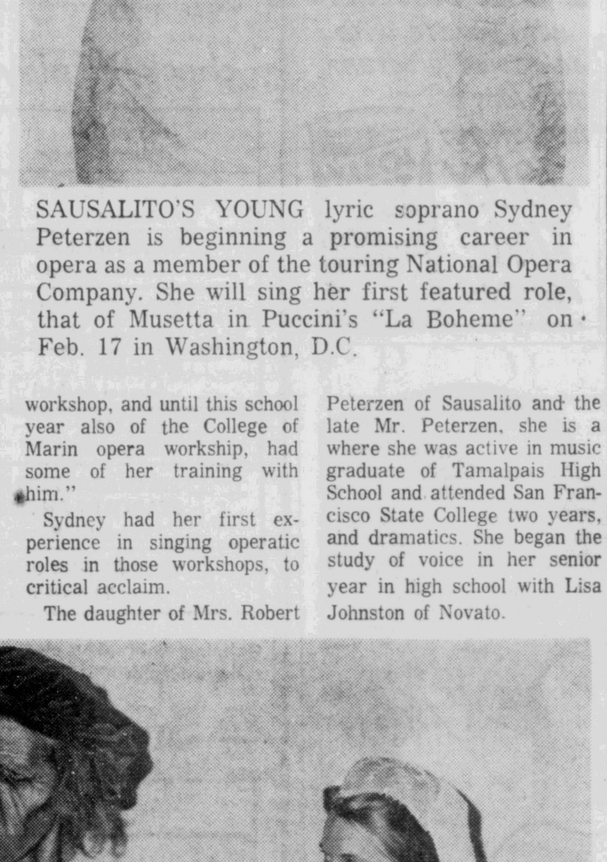
Unfortunately because of financial difficulties the National Opera is not scheduled to continue after completing its tour by July 1.

"IT WAS SUCH A WONDERFUL IDEA," Sydney lamented. "It brought opera to the people in the small towns who would not otherwise have the chance to hear it, and it gave young singers professional experience singing again, since several other sopranos were qualified to sing opera.

"I have so much more self confidence now. I hope to audition for Spring Opera and other music activities in the Bay Area. I would also like to audition for Boris Goldewski, who has his own touring opera company in the East. Dr. Peggy Donovan, director of the Sonoma State College opera workshop, and until this school year also of the College of Marin opera workship, had some of her training with him."

Sydney had her first experience in singing operatic roles in those workshops, to critical acclaim.

The daughter of Mrs. Robert Peterzen of Sausalito and the late Mr. Peterzen, she is a where she was active in music graduate of Tamalpais High School and attended San Francisco State College two years, and dramatics. She began the study of voice in her senior year in high school with Lisa Johnston of Novato.



SAUSALITO'S YOUNG lyric soprano Sydney Peterzen is beginning a promising career in opera as a member of the touring National Opera Company. She will sing her first featured role, that of Musetta in Puccini's "La Boheme" on Feb. 17 in Washington, D.C.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

DEAR HELEN:

I have written to you about this problem four times. Please answer me in your column.

My boy friend and I broke up. I don't know why. I surely didn't want to, because I love him. Now he is going with the girl he went with before he met me.

If I don't get him back, life won't be worth living. I refuse to date other boys. If I can't have him, I won't have any. Sometimes I've thought of having an accident or something, so he'll be sorry and come to me.

I'll try anything you suggest, Helen, but don't tell me to forget him because I can't. — HEARTBROKEN AND IN LOVE

DEAR HAIL:

I haven't answered, honey, because I can only tell you what you don't want to hear: you must forget him! Or make a good pretense.

Mix, flirt, date other boys, smile, show him you don't care. In fact, you might take a leaf from his current girl's notebook. Did she retire in a corner and plan "accidents when he dropped her? Not much! I'll bet she got mad first, and then "forgot" him, while enjoying herself with the crowd. When a male sees others are interested, he begins to wonder why he was such a dope. It could happen to you!

It's your only way to travel: so try! Who knows, the detour may turn out to be the best road after all.—H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm in Military Academy, and have been going steady with a girl at home since June. How do you explain to a girl that you don't want to make her unhappy by restricting her while you're not there?

I'm crazy about her and don't want her thinking I'm trying to drop her or anything. Of course I don't go with other girls up here.

The reason I think she feels restricted is that she's forever goofing around with my friends on a little bit more than just friendly basis. Should I tell her it's okay? — M.U.L.

P.S. I don't understand girls very well.

DEAR MUL:

You don't understand yourself very well, chum.

Honest now, aren't you a little sore because she is "goofing around with your friends" while you are stuck at a boys school? So you wonder if offering her a release from "steadydom" will shake her into being true? I doubt it.

You're expecting a lot when you ask a high school girl to go steady long-distance. Why not make it "when possible," and then neither of you will feel tied down?—H.

DEAR HELEN:

I dye my hair blonde and it is down my back, straight. I wear all the latest makeup. Because of this my relatives and parents think I look like a tramp. I started hanging around with girls who are tramps and word got out I was too. Then I met this boy who lives in another town. I lied to my folks so I'd be able to go with him.

After three dates of petting, he told me he loved me and couldn't go on without me. So I proved my love for him.

He promised to see me every week, but in a little while, he didn't come back any more. I tried to forget him but now I can't. I'm pregnant. My family would be disgraced if they knew. Should I go to see him and tell him, so we can decide together what to do? — DESPERATE AT 15

DEAR DESPERATE:

Tell your parents, and you three will decide together what to do, but don't expect cooperation from the boy. He only took what he tought was being passed around free. And he had every right to think so, if you petted with him from the first date. If you'll send me your address, I'll provide you with a list of homes for unwed mothers in your area. But I can't offer much sympathy. You asked for this!—H.

Newly Developed Fabric Will Help Eliminate Stains

An electronic radiation process that imparts durable press and soil release properties to a polyester-cotton fabric has been developed by a New York City firm. The irradiated fabric, called "VISA" is a blend of 65 per cent polyester and 35 per cent cotton for use in slacks and outer-wear. The process adds a few cents per yard to the fabric price.

The manufacturer believes that this new process will overcome the problem with current permanent press fabrics where oil-based stains are so difficult to remove in home laundering. Ordinary detergents should do the job with the irradiated fabric.

Raincoats Move Out

Raincoats certainly have moved away from the traditional. Now they are go-everywhere coats, handsomely styled and in un-traditional materials. The Dior-New York spring collection includes one coat in navy and white printed cotton, with white vinyl trim and white vinyl kerchief. Another is a shocking pink silk, treated, with a double row of brass buttons.

Swayback Horse Story Recited In Magazine

The story of Blackie, Tiburon's beloved swayback horse, his memorial plaque and the living memorial planned by the Humane Society of Marin County is told in next month's issue of Horse Lover's magazine.

An article entitled, "A Fitting Memorial for Blackie" tells of the Humane Society's plan to establish a "Blackie Memorial" at its proposed Humane Education Center in Ignacio.

Blackie's life, including his 28 years in tthe Tiburon pasture, his death, and the unveiling of a plaque in his memory are reported. There also are pictures of Blackie and Marin Humane Officers Robert Miller and Bernard Weller at work. The article also outlines the work of the Humane Society of Marin.

Church Art Exhibit

Prints and paintings by Henry J. Rasmussen of Mill Valley are on display this month at the Unitarian Universalist Church of Marin at 240 Channing Way, San Rafael. Exhibit hours are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday through Thursday, through Feb. 3.

Art Board To Meet

The Valley art board will meet tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in the community and youth center to consider formation of an art workshop.

Op, Pop Art Out Of February Show

Op and pop art are out. Abstract and other non-objective paintings, too, are banned by the Marin Society of Artists from what it calls its "Traditional Show" next month.

Marin artists—many of whom excel in the cubes and lines of abstracts—have been told by the society: "Let us all concentrate on high quality and real beauty to emphasize that traditional values are not only very important but very much alive."

Grant Sherry of Corte Madera, an artist who does both but is better known for non-objective work, said yesterday he thought pressure had been put on the society by complaints from traditional artists.

"I've heard complaints that artists who do the more conventional type of paintings have not always had the opportunity to show them. Abstracts are more popular because they are more fun," he said.

The show will be held Feb. 5 through 26 at the Art and Garden Center in Ross. Paintings, sculptures and graphics will be received Jan. 30 and 31.

Grace Abbett of San Rafael, an official of the society, said the traditional show is not an annual event. One reason she gave for the committee choosing to hold one this year was that "we haven't had one for a long time."

Music Workshop Names Director

Dr. Eugene F. Quinn, secretary of music for the General Assn. of Baptists in Kentucky, will be a guest conductor for the 15th annual church music workshop at Golden Gate Baptist Seminary at Strawberry, Jan. 25 and 26.

Also on the faculty for the workship will be Dr. William J. Reyonlds, driector of editorial services of the church music department for the Baptist Sunday School Board.

Church music directors from throughout the state will attend lectures and choral reading sessions. Host will be Dr. Carlyle D. Bennett, director of the division of church music at the Golden Gate. seminary.

Pair Assumes Their Duties At Seminary

Dr. A. J. Hyatt, librarian, and Dr. J. Lyn Elder, professor of pastoral care have both returned to Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary at Strawberry after sabbatical leave.

Dr. Hayatt toured libraries and publishing firms in Europe and Dr. Elder carried out advanced study in phychology at Tulane University, La.

Concert Opener Will Feature Young Pianist

A recital by pianist Eugene Pridonoff will open the Dominican College Concert artist series of spring performances on Jan.17 at 8 p.m. in Angelico Hall on the college campus in San Rafael.

The recital is being made possible through the Edgar M. Leventritt Foundation, Inc., which is presenting young artists considered especially talented, selected by its board of judges. Among the 27 judges are Leonard Bernstein, Rudolf Firkusny, Eugene Istomin, Rudolf Serkin, Isaac Stern and George Szell.

Pridonoff, who began his musical studies at the age of four, is a graduate of the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia where he studied with Serkin. He is now on the piano faculty of Temple University.

Pridonoff will perform Beethoven's Bagatelles, op. 33; Prokofief's Sonata No. 7, Op. 83; Chopin's Barcarolle, Op. 60 and four etudes; and Shubert's Fantasy in C Major, Op. 15 (Wanderer).

San Jose Pair Takes First In Chess Tourney

The third Mill Valley Open Chess Tournament Saturday and Sunday was won by Arthur Wang of Oakland and E. Osbun of San Jose.

Tournament director L. A. Post noted that the top pair was among seven players rated masters by the United States Chess Federation.

Sponsored by Mill Valley Chess Club, the five-round Swiss tournament attracted 37 participants to the community and youth center.

A four-way tie for third was between David Blohm of San Francisco, R. Laver of Berkeley, F. Thornally of San Francisco and R. Freeman of Oakland. Best "A" player was D. Fritzinger of Vacaville. Best "B" player was E. Magnani of San Francisco and best "C" player, Frank Votruba of Mill Valley.

'Little Berkeley' Uprising At College Doesn't Catch Fire

The "Little Berkeley" uprising at the College of Marin never got off the ground.

"There's nothing happening—there never was anything happening," student body president Donna Ryan said today. "It was just Jed Gladstein. He didn't have any support from the student body. He would like to be Mario Savio, but he's not."

Gladstein said before Christmas holidays that a "grievance committee" had been formed to secure more student-faculty control of the campus, and that a petition with student and faculty signatures was being prepared for presentation to the Marin Junior College District Board of Trustees.

Asked this week about the petition, Gladstein hedged, then said that perhaps no petition would be presented to the board after all.

The non-movement began when a campus political organization, the Students Against War, was refused permission to use the college gymnasium for a dance. Administrative regulations prohibit public dances in college facilities.

Gladstein, an officer in the organization, felt students and faculty should have more control over such regulations.

But according to student body officers and staff members of the college newspaper, the Tower Times, Gladstein did not succeed in getting support for his "movement" from either students or faculty.

"The kids are pretty busy now with final exams," Gladstein noted.

Commercial Hearing

Proposed reuvenation of Mill Valley's commercial areas will be discussed Jan. 23 at meeting of Mill Valley American Legion Post 284 at 8:15 p.m. at Legion Hall, 469 Miller Avenue. Speakers will be Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Field, Woodside color consultants planning the spring project.

Marinites Exhibiting At Oakland Museum

Six Marin County residents are among artists represented in the Oakland Art Museum's exhibit in the Kaiser Art Center Gallery through Jan. 21.

Those with paintings in the show, sponsored by the East Bay Artist's Assn., are Ada Garfinkel of Kentfield, Doris Morrison of Ross, Kenneth Potter of Corte Madera, Olive Verna Rogers of Greenbrae, Henry Rasmussen of Mill Valley and Gwen Stone of San Rafael.

City Manager Will Outline Novato Projects

City Mgr. J. Julien Baget will outline the projects which he proposes for the City of Novato next fiscal year at the City council meeting at 8 p.m. today in the newly redecorated council chambers of the Novato Community House.

Baget will also report on the cost of hiring a financial consultant for the city's capital improvement program.

The council will consider hiring a landscape architect to help plan parks.

Plans for Novato's seventh anniversary celebration Jan. 20-22 will be given the council by Edward W. Adams, parks and recreation director.

Other items to come before the council include a preliminary plan for a study of the downtown area, acceptance of the Novato Boulevard bridge and a traffic safety report.

Novato Survey For Attitudes

A third community attitudes survey will be made by the Novato Junior Chamber of Commerce, starting on Jan. 23.

Similar surveys were taken in 1961 and 1964 to get an expression from the people on civic problems and aims.

Members of the junior chamber have been working for several weeks compiling a list of questions to be asked.

The city has been divided into 39 areas for the survey. Questionnaires are to be left at each house on Jan. 23, and collected on Jan. 25 and 26.

Rehearsals For Opera

Rehearsals for an outdoor stage perfromance of Handel's "Samson" will begin this month, director Fae McNally announced today. The oratorio, which will be treated as an opera, will be offered as a major part of this year's Inverness Music Festival in July.

The concert will be conducted by Sandor Salgo.

Miss Bischoff will be featured in "Four Last Songs for Soprano and Orchestra," a suite by Richard Strauss.

She has performed in concerts of the Utah Symphony Orchestra and has sung leading roles in the University of Utah Theater Opera Workshop and Summer Festival operatic productions.

She was a soloist in the Utah Symphony recording of Handel's "Israel in Egypt."

Opening number of the concert will be Don Quixote, Symphonic Poem, Opus 35, featuring Jean Mitchell on cello and Lucien Mitchell and Charles Meacham on violin.

Swayback Horse Story Recited In Magazine

The story of Blackie, Tiburon's beloved swayback horse, his memorial plaque and the living memorial planned by the Humane Society of Marin County is told in next month's issue of Horse Lover's magazine.

An article entitled, "A Fitting Memorial for Blackie" tells of the Humane Society's plan to establish a "Blackie Memorial" at its proposed Humane Education Center in Ignacio.

Blackie's life, including his 28 years in tthe Tiburon pasture, his death, and the unveiling of a plaque in his memory are reported. There also are pictures of Blackie and Marin Humane Officers Robert Miller and Bernard Weller at work. The article also outlines the work of the Humane Society of Marin.

Church Art Exhibit

Prints and paintings by Henry J. Rasmussen of Mill Valley are on display this month at the Unitarian Universalist Church of Marin at 240 Channing Way, San Rafael. Exhibit hours are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday through Thursday, through Feb. 3.

Art Board To Meet

The Valley art board will meet tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in the community and youth center to consider formation of an art workshop.

Op, Pop Art Out Of February Show

Op and pop art are out. Abstract and other non-objective paintings, too, are banned by the Marin Society of Artists from what it calls its "Traditional Show" next month.

Marin artists—many of whom excel in the cubes and lines of abstracts—have been told by the society: "Let us all concentrate on high quality and real beauty to emphasize that traditional values are not only very important but very much alive."

Grant Sherry of Corte Madera, an artist who does both but is better known for non-objective work, said yesterday he thought pressure had been put on the society by complaints from traditional artists.

"I've heard complaints that artists who do the more conventional type of paintings have not always had the opportunity to show them. Abstracts are more popular because they are more fun," he said.

The show will be held Feb. 5 through 26 at the Art and Garden Center in Ross. Paintings, sculptures and graphics will be received Jan. 30 and 31.

Grace Abbett of San Rafael, an official of the society, said the traditional show is not an annual event. One reason she gave for the committee choosing to hold one this year was that "we haven't had one for a long time."

Music Workshop Names Director

Dr. Eugene F. Quinn, secretary of music for the General Assn. of Baptists in Kentucky, will be a guest conductor for the 15th annual church music workshop at Golden Gate Baptist Seminary at Strawberry, Jan. 25 and 26.

Also on the faculty for the workship will be Dr. William J. Reyonlds, driector of editorial services of the church music department for the Baptist Sunday School Board.

Church music directors from throughout the state will attend lectures and choral reading sessions. Host will be Dr. Carlyle D. Bennett, director of the division of church music at the Golden Gate. seminary.

Pair Assumes Their Duties At Seminary

Dr. A. J. Hyatt, librarian, and Dr. J. Lyn Elder, professor of pastoral care have both returned to Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary at Strawberry after sabbatical leave.

Dr. Hayatt toured libraries and publishing firms in Europe and Dr. Elder carried out advanced study in phychology at Tulane University, La.

The third Mill Valley Open Chess Tournament Saturday and Sunday was won by Arthur Wang of Oakland and E. Osbun of San Jose.

Tournament director L. A. Post noted that the top pair was among seven players rated masters by the United States Chess Federation.

Sponsored by Mill Valley Chess Club, the five-round Swiss tournament attracted 37 participants to the community and youth center.

A four-way tie for third was between David Blohm of San Francisco, R. Laver of Berkeley, F. Thornally of San Francisco and R. Freeman of Oakland. Best "A" player was D. Fritzinger of Vacaville. Best "B" player was E. Magnani of San Francisco and best "C" player, Frank Votruba of Mill Valley.

Bridge Instruction

Intermediate bridge classes for adults will start on Jan. 26 at the Novato Community House, sponsored by the Novato Parks and Recreation Department. Mrs. Laura Crossley will teach the 10-week course, from 8 to 10 p.m. each Thursday. There is a fee.

Concert Opener Will Feature Young Pianist

A recital by pianist Eugene Pridonoff will open the Dominican College Concert artist series of spring performances on Jan.17 at 8 p.m. in Angelico Hall on the college campus in San Rafael.

The recital is being made possible through the Edgar M. Leventritt Foundation, Inc., which is presenting young artists considered especially talented, selected by its board of judges. Among the 27 judges are Leonard Bernstein, Rudolf Firkusny, Eugene Istomin, Rudolf Serkin, Isaac Stern and George Szell.

Pridonoff, who began his musical studies at the age of four, is a graduate of the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia where he studied with Serkin. He is now on the piano faculty of Temple University.

Pridonoff will perform Beethoven's Bagatelles, op. 33; Prokofief's Sonata No. 7, Op. 83; Chopin's Barcarolle, Op. 60 and four etudes; and Shubert's Fantasy in C Major, Op. 15 (Wanderer).

The Saturday classes which will run through March 25, at 9 a.m. for intermediate, 10 a.m. for advanced beginners, and 11 a.m. for beginners. Karen Morrow is teacher.

'Little Berkeley' Uprising At College Doesn't Catch Fire

The "Little Berkeley" uprising at the College of Marin never got off the ground.

"There's nothing happening—there never was anything happening," student body president Donna Ryan said today. "It was just Jed Gladstein. He didn't have any support from the student body. He would like to be Mario Savio, but he's not."

Gladstein said before Christmas holidays that a "grievance committee" had been formed to secure more student-faculty control of the campus, and that a petition with student and faculty signatures was being prepared for presentation to the Marin Junior College District Board of Trustees.

Asked this week about the petition, Gladstein hedged, then said that perhaps no petition would be presented to the board after all.

The non-movement began when a campus political organization, the Students Against War, was refused permission to use the college gymnasium for a dance. Administrative regulations prohibit public dances in college facilities.

Gladstein, an officer in the organization, felt students and faculty should have more control over such regulations.

But according to student body officers and staff members of the college newspaper, the Tower Times, Gladstein did not succeed in getting support for his "movement" from either students or faculty.

"The kids are pretty busy now with final exams," Gladstein noted.

Commercial Hearing

Proposed reuvenation of Mill Valley's commercial areas will be discussed Jan. 23 at meeting of Mill Valley American Legion Post 284 at 8:15 p.m. at Legion Hall, 469 Miller Avenue. Speakers will be Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Field, Woodside color consultants planning the spring project.

Marinites Exhibiting At Oakland Museum

Six Marin County residents are among artists represented in the Oakland Art Museum's exhibit in the Kaiser Art Center Gallery through Jan. 21.

Those with paintings in the show, sponsored by the East Bay Artist's Assn., are Ada Garfinkel of Kentfield, Doris Morrison of Ross, Kenneth Potter of Corte Madera, Olive Verna Rogers of Greenbrae, Henry Rasmussen of Mill Valley and Gwen Stone of San Rafael.

City Manager Will Outline Novato Projects

City Mgr. J. Julien Baget will outline the projects which he proposes for the City of Novato next fiscal year at the City council meeting at 8 p.m. today in the newly redecorated council chambers of the Novato Community House.

Baget will also report on the cost of hiring a financial consultant for the city's capital improvement program.

The council will consider hiring a landscape architect to help plan parks.

Plans for Novato's seventh anniversary celebration Jan. 20-22 will be given the council by Edward W. Adams, parks and recreation director.

Other items to come before the council include a preliminary plan for a study of the downtown area, acceptance of the Novato Boulevard bridge and a traffic safety report.

Novato Survey For Attitudes

A third community attitudes survey will be made by the Novato Junior Chamber of Commerce, starting on Jan. 23.

Similar surveys were taken in 1961 and 1964 to get an expression from the people on civic problems and aims.

Members of the junior chamber have been working for several weeks compiling a list of questions to be asked.

The city has been divided into 39 areas for the survey. Questionnaires are to be left at each house on Jan. 23, and collected on Jan. 25 and 26.

Rehearsals For Opera

Rehearsals for an outdoor stage perfromance of Handel's "Samson" will begin this month, director Fae McNally announced today. The oratorio, which will be treated as an opera, will be offered as a major part of this year's Inverness Music Festival in July.

The Super Bowl Is Gaining Momentum

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —All the trappings of a world championship were falling in place today for the Super Bowl football game between the Green Bay Packers and the Kansas City Chiefs.

The latest addition was a world championship trophy, an actual-size sterling silver football 20 inches in height, which National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle will present to the winning team in its dressing room after Sunday's game at Memorial Coliseum.

Today Coach Hank Stram formally introduces his American Football League champions at another press day reception at the Chiefs' camp in Long Beach, 25 miles south.

With writers from all over the country streaming into Los Angeles for the first AFL-NFL championship game, interest in the contest grew stronger.

A spokesman for Commissioner Rozelle said 52,000 tickets had been sold for the game and outlets reported a brisk demand for the tickets.

Perhaps the keenest interest outside of Los Angeles was in Kansas City which quickly used up its initial allotment of 5,000 tickets and was sent an additional 3,000. Milwaukee, where the Packers play part of their home games, also snapped up 5,000 tickets.

Airlines reported they were adding special flights from Kansas City, Milwaukee and other AFL and NFL cities over the weekend to bring fans here. These were in addition to numerous charter flights reported from various parts of the country.

Following his first presentation of his players before the Southern California press, Packers Coach Vince Lombardi, known as a stern taskmaster, announced all drills starting today would be closed to the press and public alike. And he added he had imposed an 11 p.m. curfew.

Stram, on the other hand, has followed a less stern policy of admitting the press to every workout and thus far has not curtailed the activities of his players after practice hours.

Because they had drilled Saturday, the Chiefs were given yesterday off from practice although they studied movies of Green Bay's games against Minnesota, Cleveland and the NFL championship encounter with Dallas.

The Packers picked as their three films the Kansas City games against the New York Jets, the San Diego Chargers and the AFL title game with Buffalo.

GIANTS SIGN TRIO: WILLIE, JIMMY, TOM

The San Francisco Giants have announced the signings for the 1967 baseball season of National League All-Star first baseman Willie McCovey, catcher Tom Haller and utility infielder Jim Davenport.

The signing of McCovey was announced yesterday while the other two were disclosed today.

McCovey led Giant batters in 1966 with a .295 average and also smacked 36 homers while batting in 96 runs. Haller batted .240 with 27 homers and Davenport .249 with nine homers.

ALONG MARIN'S SPORTS TRAIL

Warriors Let George Do It; Marinites At All-Star Fete

THAT'S GEORGE — Bayside Acres resident George Lee, the Warriors' handy player-assistant coach, was retired from the active roster (for the fifth time) last Thursday to make room for 6-foot-5 Bob Warlick, who came off the injured list.

This season Lee played exactly 4 minutes and 58 seconds and scored 12 points, prompting Head Coach Bill Sharman to cite his aide as "The greatest NBA scorer in history for minutes played."

Incidentally, Lee is an unsung hero for the Warriors in his role as liaison man between Sharman and the players."

BILL McDEVITT

A RELIC — Bill McDevitt, the prominent Marin contractor, doesn't play much pasture pool but he is the proud owner of one of golf's most cherished implements—a 1914 vintage iron used by the great Walter Hagen in winning the first of his two National Open titles.

McDevitt received the club as a gift from Los Angeleno Maurie Luxford for his tremendous chairmanship of Marin's annual Tournament of Stars celebrity tournament that last fall attracted such personalities as Andy Williams, Jim Backus, Forrest Tucker, Gary Morton, Lucy Ball, etc.

Luxford, lifetime honorary chairman of our tourney, is presently in Pebbla Beach directing the Bing Crosby Pro-Am.

THE GREAT—Walter "The Great" Mails is showing steady improvement in Wheeler Hospital, Gilroy, from his Dec. 29 heart attack, but no phone calls or visitors, please.

Doctors say the chief of the San Francisco Giants' Speakers Bureau is still too weak to accept the flood of calls and visitors. However, it would be nice if you'd send "The Great One" cards from the bottom of your healthy hearts.

Schmidt Ponders Lion Job

DETROIT (AP) — Joe Schmidt, a hard-charger in his linebacker days, was approaching cautiously today a contract that would make him head coach of the National Football League Detroit Lions.

Schmidt met with Lion officials for nearly six hours yesterday, then said he had not yet made up his mind.

Lion owner William Clay Ford fired Coach Harry Gilmer last week and announced that Schmidt, for 13 years a Lion linebacker, was his top choice for the job.

Schmidt, who retired after the 1965 season, was an assistant to Gilmer last season, working with the linebackers.

"There is no agreement or disagreement," Schmidt, 34, said after Monday's meeting. "I just want to think it over a bit more. It's a big step."

He's scheduled to meet with Ford again tomorrow.

"This was the first time I had seen the contract, too," Ford said. "Although naturally I had discussed it with our attorney.

"But after the reading of it, I'd say that Joe and I are in agreement. It is just a matter of letting the attorneys decide on the final wording. There may be a few language changes. But that's all."

Reports have it that the contract is for up to five years and may pay as much as $50,000 a year.

Gilmer was 4-9-1 in 1966, the second year of a three-year contract. Several players had publicly criticized Gilmer, and it was hoped that Schmidt might be the man to pull the club together.

For several of his 13 years, the middle linebacker was rated the best in the NFL.

Edwin J. Anderson, general manager, becomes executive vice president and chairman of the Finance and Policy Committee.

Russ Thomas, now director of player personnel, will take on the added duties of general manager. Public Relations Director Lyall Smith becomes business manager as well.

TENNIS STAR STOLLE SIGNS PRO CONTRACT

Australian tennis ace Fred Stolle has signed a contract to play professionally with the International Professional Tennis Assn., executive director Wally Dill of San Rafael said today.

Reports last week said that Stolle would receive $89,600 for signing. Dill said this figure was wild, and way out of line, but declined to disclose the bonus.

Dill said Stolle would join fellow Australian Rod Laver Jan. 25 in Brisbane, Australia, to kick off a world tour against Dennis Ralston and Pancho Gonzales of the United States in competition along the style of the Davis Cup.

All-Star Game Aired On KNBR

KNBR Radio Station in San Francisco (680 on the dial) will broadcast the National Basketball Assn. All-Star game from the Cow Palace at 7:55 tonight as a public service.

The game features such stars as Rick Barry and Nate Thurmond of the San Francisco Warriors.

Bruins Defeat Huskies

The Empire State Building of basketball played only a little more than a half before fouling out but that didn't prevent the roof from falling in on Washington, as UCLA, with a little bit of Alcindor, downed the Huskies, 83-68.

The Bruins, with 7-1 Alcindor scoring 28 points before fouling out with 13 minutes left in the game, had no trouble with the Huskies, as they upped their Pacific-Eight record to 2-0. Alcindor's departure was the first time that the giant pivot man has fouled out this season.

TOGETHER AGAIN — Rick Barry of the host San Francisco Warriors helps former teammate Guy Rogers, now with the Chicago Bulls, try on the specially-made West All-Star jersey for tonight's National Basketball Assn. Warrior Heroes On West Lineup

By SCOTT BAILLIE

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The guess is that Wilt Chamberlain will be pouring them in as usual for the East at 8 o'clock tonight against the West in the NBA's 17th annual All-Star game even though he limped around the sidelines at yesterday's practice.

"I hope I can play but I'll know more tomorrow," Chamberlain said briskly after he showed up at the chilly Cow Palace, scene of tonight's game, sporting a ragged warmup jacket and two Great Danes in silver-type collars. "Time will tell."

Chamvberlain, the "Big Dipper" of the fantastic Philadelphia 76ers, sustained an injured Achilles tendon last Friday against Baltimore but rallied enough to put away 25 points Sunday as his team was downing the Chicago Bulls.

"Wilty will play, Wilty will play," reassured Bob Feerick, general manager of the host San Francisco Warriors and Chamberlain's coach when the old Philadelphia franchise moved here in 1962. "Imagine an All-Star game without him!"

"I quit worrying when I retired," commented Red Auerbach from behind the usual cigar.

The ex-coach and now full-time general manager of the Boston Celtics is making his 11th appearance as the East's mentor, taking over for Dolph Schayes who led the 76ers to the Eastern Division crown last season then became head of the league's officials after being released.

If Chamberlain can't make it, his spot will go to the dean of NBA All Star games, player-coach Bill Russell of the Celtics. The former University of San Francisco wizard is entering his 10th classic.

EAST FAVORED

Auerbach faces Fred Schaus, the coach of the West and Los Angeles Lakers, who has lost three of his four All-Star tests. Red is expected to be able to light his "victory cigar" for the eighth time in the series and celebrate five straight wins for the East which clobbered the West last year, 137-94.

Chamberlain and Rick Barry, the San Francisco Warriors' big gun, led in the balloting by being named to the squads with a unanimous total of 10,000 points apiece.

The West is expected to go with Barry and Elgin Baylor (Los Angeles) forward, Nate Thurmond (San Francisco) center; Jerry West of Los Angeles and Guy Rodgers of Chicago, guards.

Rick All The Way In NBA

NEW YORK (UPI) —Take Rick Barry out of the National Basketball Assn. scoring race and you have a battle.

Barry, the San Francisco Warrior sophomore, continued to lead the NBA in scoring, according to official league statistics released today for games through last Sunday.

The San Francisco ace had 1,421 points to his credit and a scoring average of 37.4 points a game. He scored on 514 field goals and 393 free throws.
field goals and 393 free throws.

With Barry out in front, Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati and Wilt Chamberlain of Philadelphia are battling for the runner-up spot. Robertson was second, having scored 1,057 points in 36 games for a 29.4 average, and Chamberlain was third with 1,039 points and an average of 24.2 points in 43 games.

Jerry West of Los Angeles was fourth with 913 points, followed closely by Hal Greer of Philadelphia with 909 points.

Chamberlain topped the league in field goal percentage with a .683 mark, with 408 baskets in 597 attempts. Walt Bellamy of New York was second at .526 and his teammate Willis Reed was third (.521).

Adrian Smith of Cincinnati led the free throw accuracy department with a percentage of .895 on 137 of 153 attempts. Barry was second in that department at .893 and Boston's Sam Jones was third at .872.

Chamberlain had a good lead over Nate Thurmond of San Francisco in the rebound department. The Philadelphia star had pulled down 1,051 rebounds in 43 games for an average of 24.2. Thurmond has hauled down 910 rebounds for a 22.2 average.

In the assist department, Chicago's Guy Rodgers held a slim margin over Robertson. Rodgers was credited with 523 assists in 45 games for an average of 11.6 per game, while Robertson had an average of 10.7 a game.

The FISHIN' FOOL

By RALPH STEVENS
I-J Fish and Game Writer

Sudden Interest In Sturgeon Results In Low Bass Take

STEVENS

There seems to have been a rather sudden interest in fishing for sturgeon in the back country spots, and due to this special interest in trying for sturgeon, the take of striped bass has been very low.

One well known resorter explained—:"Most everybody is going after sturgeon and not after stripers."

ASKED WHAT these sturgeon fishermen were using for bait, the resort owner stated that most, probably all, used grass shrimp.

That statement clarified matters. We all know that a striped bass will hit a grass shrimp. Many of the stripers caught locally (the upper San Pablo Bay, on the flats above the pumphouse) have fallen for the shrimp. So, the answer to the problem must be that most of the stripers still have to populate the back-country waters.

REPORTS INDICATE that some areas, such as the Big Break and Frank's Tract, have been fairly productive to both trollers and "coiled-line fishing."

I spoke to Herb King, who took over Patrick's Three-Mile Slough spot some time ago. Herb gave honorable mention to Reno and "Babe" Arqua, who have managed to fill out limits nearly every time out, but the Arquas were the only ones mentioned.

AS A MATTER of cold, hard fact, most of the fishing reports, stripers, salmon and steelhead, indicate that angling was deep in the doldrums for the past week.

If you believe in the law of averages, however, the slow fishing the past week means we are due for some fast and fancy angling very soon.

TO ANSWER a query or two: Davis Campbell of the Golden Boatel at Inverness reported striper striving very slow. No change in the standing of the Bass Derby names. But, Davis did make mention of two steelhead being caught: "One was taken on sardine bait right in the bay; the other was a fish that lost his way and became stranded in very shallow water where he was picked up."

LEE ANDERSON'S in Oakland had only one report to release. Johnny Souza, fishing from the rocks at the foot of Ashby Ave. with a sand worm, hooked and landed a nice 14-pounder.

Grace Quan of China Camp reported 15 boats out of her place brought back seven bass and one legal-siz sturgeon. "Action was best on the incoming tide in about 12 feet of water."

I asked how Alice Quan was getting along and was told Alice is apparently recovering from her ailments, which is good news to us all.

STEELHEAD FISHING in the coastal, tidewater streams is a case of too much clearness of the water, too many fishermen and too few fish. Bob Johnson called me yesterday to report the above with the exception that some of the more expert anglers had been getting some fish on artificial flies, a few on small spinners.

I might suggest to the more hardy souls who will brave the arctic winds and the dearth of fish that they try tempting the steelies with a gob of wriggling earthworms or a nice lively night-crawler. No guarantees, of course, but it should be worth a try. I hope for better reports on Thursday.

Marin Tars Host Santa Rosa Tonight

For one of the few times in this hectic season, College of Marin's basketball team will not be an underdog by any stretch of the imagination.

That couious role will go to Santa Rosa when the two teams clash in a Golden Valley Conference game at Kentfield at 8 tonight.

He may well remember Santa Rosa's football counterparts last year who were headed for a winless season before they upset Marin, 16-14. Those things do happen.

"Their personnel are not as bad as their record," Riemcke said. "I can't understand why they're doing so badly."

Guard Bruce McNeely is the leading Santa Rosa scorer. The top rebounder and biggest player is 6-5 center Lew Brown from Nevada. Pete Waller and John Bles are two returning veterans. A plus factor for Santa Rosa is that the Cubbies gave American River J. C. its toughest game in the Marin Invitational Tournament.

Riemcke plans to go with the same weave offense of three guards that has produced a bushel of points lately.

Bill Pandiani, Bob Phillips and Russ Smith will be firing or driving off the weave. In their last two games Pandiani has fired in 49 points, Phillips 54.

The resurgance of Phillips has been a big push for the Tars.

"He's just beginning to get around to basketball," Riemcke said. "He's lost his football muscles. That, and he likes to drive and this weave is suited for him."

Six-nine center Brad Luz, who has missed the last two games with a cold, has been demoted to the junior varsity.

"He'll need to get back in shape and work for his spot," Riemcke said.

The other two starters will be forwards Tom Stetson and Terry Overlid.

The Tars lead their division of the Golden Gate Conference with a 1-1 record. Napa, Santa Rosa and College of the Redwood have lost two games while winning none.

San Rafael Nine Wins 7th Straight

Flying Goose took a 4-0 lead in the second inning when Litchfield's starter Ron Law gave up two walks, a pair of singles and a triple. The San Rafael nine tied it in the fifth and went ahead in the eighth with a five-run outburst, highlighted by Joe Panella's three-run homer, his third hit of the day.

Ron Gasper also had three hits on the day and John Laberrique and Rich Jeffries each had a double and single for Litchfield's team. Ed Mennosse's pinch-hit single was the blow that tied the game in the fifth.

Law was relieved by Val Snow who worked three innings and Ron Cole, the winning pitcher, who hurled the final four frames. Cole, getting his third victory, gave up two scattered singles while striking out five batters. Snow pitched hitless ball during his three-inning stint.

Litchfield's now leads the league by two full games in its bid to repeat as AAA champions.

AMERICA'S CUP CHALLENGER

Australian Boat Builder Happy With His New One

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — There was talk today of building a third Australian contender as a challenger for the America's Cup after fast sailing by the new Aussie boat, Dame Pattie, over the weekend.

In tune-up trials on the 24-mile America's Cup-type course off Sydney, Dame Pattie defeated her rival, Gretel, by one minute, 56 seconds Saturday and by 8:45 Sunday, a thrashtween 12-meter yachts.

Yesterday Warwick Hood, designer of Dame Pattie, said he has been asked by another syndicate to build a third potential challenger which would be his idea of the ultimate in 12-meter boats.

Hood said that with a fullscale crash program the boat could be sailing within four months and he is considering the offer.

Hood said: "With Dame Pattie I settled for a type of hull that I was reasonably sure would be a goer. I am not willing to take the risk of going all the way and building a boat that is only good in theory.

"But as soon as I saw Dame Pattie sailing in crew training I knew that my theory had been confirmed in practice.

"If we had gone ahead and built a boat from the last model that carried my design theories to the ultimate, she would have been minutes faster than Dame Pattie around a course."

Hood said he feared American designer Olin Stephens is awake to the theory behind Dame Pattie's design.

Hood said he had studied published photographs of the body of Intrepid, the new American boat, and "It seems she is very much like Dame Pattie," Hood added.

"I have not seen a photograph of the keel shape Stephens has designed for Intrepid because rightly, it was hidden from the camera. But I can guess what it will look like -- much the same as I would have incorporated on Dame Pattie Mark II if we'd taken the risk of building such a radical boat."

Dame Pattie's defeat of Gretel, Australian challenger in 1962, excited Australians over the prospects in the challenge to the United States off Newport, R.I., in September.

The weekend clashes between the two yachts were the first of eight tune-up races.

Eight selection trials are scheduled for March. The final trials will be in American waters in August.

Ex-Baseball Manager Keane Laid To Rest

HOUSTON (AP) — Hundreds of mourners paid last respects yesterday to Johnny Keane, manager of the 1964 world champion St. Louis Cardinals and, later, of the faltering New York Yankees.

A massive and unexpected heart attack killed Keane in his Houston home Friday night. He was 55.

At the first of three memorial services yesterday, the Rev. James Wilson of St. Thomas High School said of Keane, "His life was gentle and the elements so mixed in him that nature might stand up and say to all the world, 'this was a man.'"

Keane worked 30 years in the Cardinal chain, quitting after the 1964 World Series and replacing Yogi Berra as manager of the Yankees. He was fired from that job 18 months later as the Yankees floundered in last place.

He came back to Houston, where he had played with and managed the Houston Buffs, and in recent months had worked as a special scout for the California Angels.

A federal judge, prominent baseball figures and sports writers served as his pallbearers yesterday.

They included U.S. Dist. Judge Allen B. Hannay, Allen Russell, Bing Divine, Vern Benson, Morris Frank, Clark Nealon, Howard Pollet and Art Rountzog.

Russell was president of the 1947 Buffs' team that won the Dixie championship. Devine, now general manager of the Mets and Rountzog, now with the Houston Astros, were Cardinal executives when Keane was manager.

Benson, now with the Cincinnati Reds, was third base coach for Keane with both the Cardinals and the Yankees. Pollet is a Houston insurance man who was a St. Louis coach under Keane and is a former Cardinal pitching great.

WRESTLING ROUNDUP

Novato Wrestlers Face Redwood Test

Two down and two to go.

Only two more tests remain for Novato's undefeated wrestling team. They get tougher from here on in.

Novato still has not wrestled Redwood and San Rafael, neither of whom has lost a dual meet in the Marin County Athletic League. Just how good Redwood is will be seen Friday when the Giants host the power-packed Hornets at 3:45 in a key MCAL meet that could determine the shape of things to come.

The Hornets collared victim No. 2 last week by disposing of Tamalpais, a team that had similar physical characteristics with the Hornets, Friday while Redwood was turning back a surprisingly strong effort by Terra Linda, 31-24.

San Rafael held off San Rafael Military Academy in a non-league match 33-20.

The Novato-Tam meet matched teams with strong lightweight gauntlets and only so-so strength in the heavier weights. As it turned out, the Hornets were much stronger in the light weights while Tam had little to offer in the heavyweights.

The Hornets struck quickly with the Donaldsen boys, Ken and Kirk, disposing of their victims at 98 and 105 pounds, with Ken getting a fall in the elf weight of 98 pounds. That was an 8-0 lead from which the staggering Indians never recovered.

The Indians had little to shout about, after having to forfeit the final two matches. But Don Rapelje at 127 pounds and Dave Hayes at 138 remained undefeated while Mike Fowler recorded the Indians' only pin at 175 pounds.

In addition to the big meet Friday, San Rafael meets Terra Linda on the Trojan mat in an unusual night dual meet tonight at 7 o'clock.

In non-league action both Terra Linda and Novato trek to Santa Rosa for the Montgomery Invitational Tournament Saturday. The Vikings are undefeated.

In another meet, Tamalpais hosts South San Francisco tomorrow at 4:15.

And Once Again: Grid Co-Champs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Notre Dame and Michigan State were named co-champions of the 1966 college football season by the Helms Athletic Foundation yesterday.

It was the first time the HAF staff picked co-champions in college football since it started its selections in 1900.

Notre Dame has been picked eight times for the championship honors and Michigan State four times. Michigan State was the Helms choice as No. 1 in 1965.

Kentfield Woman Wins In Slalom

Lisa Dapprich of Kentfield won first place in Women's Class C at the 18th annual Squaw Valley Birthday Slalom championships over the weekend.

Lisa, a member of the Ski Club Zuerileu, had a time of 57.9 over the short course. Miki Mooney, also of Kentfield, was on her way to a good time in Class B but spilled trying to make one of the gates.

Robby Ready To Go

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Robinson could not be as happy if he had won another Triple Crown — well, almost.

"The knee is coming along fine, faster than anyone thought it would," the Baltimore Orioles' slugging outfielder said yesterday.

"I've been running on it about a week already, nothing fancy yet, just straight ahead, but I'll gradually be able to increase the exercise."

The American League's Most Valuable Player was obviously relieved over the results of the Nov. 22 surgery and appeared fit as he answered questions at a Sporting Goods Fair luncheon.

"Just the idea of injuring a knee throws a scare into you after reading about all the serious knee injuries to athletes. This was the simplest kind of knee operation, but I'd still rather not have had it, no matter how simple. There's always some element of risk."

Robinson injured the right knee last June, but it did not keep him from hitting .316 with 49 home runs and 122 runs batted in to lead the league in all three categories in his first year with Baltimore. His bat powered the Orioles to a runaway pennant then helped sweep Los Angeles in the World Series.

The operation repaired the knee ligament and removed a bone chip. It never required a cast, only bandages, although he was on crutches for about a week. He's been exercising with weights and walking on it since then.

"It's not quite built back up as it was, but that will only take time," he said.

The good news apparently shelves any possibility that the knee could enter his scheduled salary talks with Baltimore officials Jan. 13.

"I'm sure they've got their figure and I've got mine," said Robinson, who expects a big increase from the reported $62,500 he made last year. But he doesn't look for any problems. "I've never been a hold out."

However the contract negotiations turn out, he feels the Orioles will have a tougher time winning another pennant in 1967.

"We won't run off this year," he said. "Our pitching staff should be better with all our young pitchers and no sore arms, but the rest of the league should be better, too. Detroit, Cleveland and Minnesota all had problems that made them inconsistent last year. They'll all be gunning for us now."

Robinson was making no predictions about his own year, good knee or bad, because "the pitchers in the league know me better now."

"Of course, I know them better, too," he added.

1967 Contract For Matty Alou

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates received a signed contract for the 1967 season yesterday from Matty Alou, who led both leagues in hitting last season with a .342 average.

HERNANDEZ WINS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Ferd Hernandez, ranked No. 6 among the world's middleweights, bulled his way to a 10 - round split decision over Henry Aldridge of San Jose, last night.

Hernandez, 160, of Las Vegas, appeared too strong for the quick, hard-hitting Aldridge, 154.

The Super Bowl Is Gaining Momentum

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —All the trappings of a world championship were falling in place today for the Super Bowl football game between the Green Bay Packers and the Kansas City Chiefs.

The latest addition was a world championship trophy, an actual-size sterling silver football 20 inches in height, which National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle will present to the winning team in its dressing room after Sunday's game at Memorial Coliseum.

Today Coach Hank Stram formally introduces his American Football League champions at another press day reception at the Chiefs' camp in Long Beach, 25 miles south.

With writers from all over the country streaming into Los Angeles for the first AFL-NFL championship game, interest in the contest grew stronger.

A spokesman for Commissioner Rozelle said 52,000 tickets had been sold for the game and outlets reported a brisk demand for the tickets.

Perhaps the keenest interest outside of Los Angeles was in Kansas City which quickly used up its initial allotment of 5,000 tickets and was sent an additional 3,000. Milwaukee, where the Packers play part of their home games, also snapped up 5,000 tickets.

Airlines reported they were adding special flights from Kansas City, Milwaukee and other AFL and NFL cities over the weekend to bring fans here. These were in addition to numerous charter flights reported from various parts of the country.

Following his first presentation of his players before the Southern California press, Packers Coach Vince Lombardi, known as a stern taskmaster, announced all drills starting today would be closed to the press and public alike. And he added he had imposed an 11 p.m. curfew.

Stram, on the other hand, has followed a less stern policy of admitting the press to every workout and thus far has not curtailed the activities of his players after practice hours.

Because they had drilled Saturday, the Chiefs were given yesterday off from practice although they studied movies of Green Bay's games against Minnesota, Cleveland and the NFL championship encounter with Dallas.

The Packers picked as their three films the Kansas City games against the New York Jets, the San Diego Chargers and the AFL title game with Buffalo.

GIANTS SIGN TRIO: WILLIE, JIMMY, TOM

The San Francisco Giants have announced the signings for the 1967 baseball season of National League All-Star first baseman Willie McCovey, catcher Tom Haller and utility infielder Jim Davenport.

The signing of McCovey was announced yesterday while the other two were disclosed today.

McCovey led Giant batters in 1966 with a .295 average and also smacked 36 homers while batting in 96 runs. Haller batted .240 with 27 homers and Davenport .249 with nine homers.

Warriors Let George Do It; Marinites At All-Star Fete

THAT'S GEORGE — Bayside Acres resident George Lee, the Warriors' handy player-assistant coach, was retired from the active roster (for the fifth time) last Thursday to make room for 6-foot-5 Bob Warlick, who came off the injured list.

This season Lee played exactly 4 minutes and 58 seconds and scored 12 points, prompting Head Coach Bill Sharman to cite his aide as "The greatest NBA scorer in history for minutes played."

Incidentally, Lee is an unsung hero for the Warriors in his role as liaison man between Sharman and the players."

BILL McDEVITT

A RELIC — Bill McDevitt, the prominent Marin contractor, doesn't play much pasture pool but he is the proud owner of one of golf's most cherished implements—a 1914 vintage iron used by the great Walter Hagen in winning the first of his two National Open titles.

McDevitt received the club as a gift from Los Angeleno Maurie Luxford for his tremendous chairmanship of Marin's annual Tournament of Stars celebrity tournament that last fall attracted such personalities as Andy Williams, Jim Backus, Forrest Tucker, Gary Morton, Lucy Ball, etc.

Luxford, lifetime honorary chairman of our tourney, is presently in Pebbla Beach directing the Bing Crosby Pro-Am.

THE GREAT—Walter "The Great" Mails is showing steady improvement in Wheeler Hospital, Gilroy, from his Dec. 29 heart attack, but no phone calls or visitors, please.

Doctors say the chief of the San Francisco Giants' Speakers Bureau is still too weak to accept the flood of calls and visitors. However, it would be nice if you'd send "The Great One" cards from the bottom of your healthy hearts.

THE ALL-STARS—Marin Countains stole a share of the spotlight at last night's glittering NBA All-Star Banquet in San Francisco's Sheraton-Palace.

Introduced to the throng among the Bay Area's greatest former athletes were Ernie Nevers (football) of Tiburon, Chester Carlisle (basketball) of San Anselmo and Ann Curtis Cuneo (swimming) of San Rafael.

Other localites in the crowd were Sausalitan Bill King, the voice of the Warriors; Messrs. and Mesdames George Lee, Frank Dill, Bud Olsen, Tom Meschery, Walt Moreno, Dr. and Mrs. Larry Bosley, Allan B. Murray, Carol Dawson, former Marin J. C. cage great Don Barksdale and . . . oops, I forgot me and my Pentagon.

Schmidt Ponders Lion Job

DETROIT (AP) — Joe Schmidt, a hard-charger in his linebacker days, was approaching cautiously today a contract that would make him head coach of the National Football League Detroit Lions.

Schmidt met with Lion officials for nearly six hours yesterday, then said he had not yet made up his mind.

Lion owner William Clay Ford fired Coach Harry Gilmer last week and announced that Schmidt, for 13 years a Lion linebacker, was his top choice for the job.

Schmidt, who retired after the 1965 season, was an assistant to Gilmer last season, working with the linebackers.

"There is no agreement or disagreement," Schmidt, 34, said after Monday's meeting. "I just want to think it over a bit more. It's a big step."

He's scheduled to meet with Ford again tomorrow.

"This was the first time I had seen the contract, too," Ford said. "Although naturally I had discussed it with our attorney.

"But after the reading of it, I'd say that Joe and I are in agreement. It is just a matter of letting the attorneys decide on the final wording. There may be a few language changes. But that's all."

Reports have it that the contract is for up to five years and may pay as much as $50,000 a year.

Gilmer was 4-9-1 in 1966, the second year of a three-year contract. Several players had publicly criticized Gilmer, and it was hoped that Schmidt might be the man to pull the club together.

For several of his 13 years, the middle linebacker was rated the best in the NFL.

Edwin J. Anderson, general manager, becomes executive vice president and chairman of the Finance and Policy Committee.

Russ Thomas, now director of player personnel, will take on the added duties of general manager. Public Relations Director Lyall Smith becomes business manager as well.

TENNIS STAR STOLLE SIGNS PRO CONTRACT

Australian tennis ace Fred Stolle has signed a contract to play professionally with the International Professional Tennis Assn., executive director Wally Dill of San Rafael said today.

Reports last week said that Stolle would receive $89,600 for signing. Dill said this figure was wild, and way out of line, but declined to disclose the bonus.

Dill said Stolle would join fellow Australian Rod Laver Jan. 25 in Brisbane, Australia, to kick off a world tour against Dennis Ralston and Pancho Gonzales of the United States in competition along the style of the Davis Cup.

All-Star Game Aired On KNBR

KNBR Radio Station in San Francisco (680 on the dial) will broadcast the National Basketball Assn. All-Star game from the Cow Palace at 7:55 tonight as a public service.

The game features such stars as Rick Barry and Nate Thurmond of the San Francisco Warriors.

Bruins Defeat Huskies

The Empire State Building of basketball played only a little more than a half before fouling out but that didn't prevent the roof from falling in on Washington, as UCLA, with a little bit of Alcindor, downed the Huskies, 83-68.

The Bruins, with 7-1 Alcindor scoring 28 points before fouling out with 13 minutes left in the game, had no trouble with the Huskies, as they upped their Pacific-Eight record to 2-0. Alcindor's departure was the first time that the giant pivot man has fouled out this season.

TOGETHER AGAIN — Rick Barry of the host San Francisco Warriors helps former teammate Guy Rogers, now with the Chicago Bulls, try on the specially-made West All-Star jersey for tonight's National Basketball Assn. Warrior Heroes On West Lineup

By SCOTT BAILLIE

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The guess is that Wilt Chamberlain will be pouring them in as usual for the East at 8 o'clock tonight against the West in the NBA's 17th annual All-Star game even though he limped around the sidelines at yesterday's practice.

"I hope I can play but I'll know more tomorrow," Chamberlain said briskly after he showed up at the chilly Cow Palace, scene of tonight's game, sporting a ragged warmup jacket and two Great Danes in silver-type collars. "Time will tell."

Chamvberlain, the "Big Dipper" of the fantastic Philadelphia 76ers, sustained an injured Achilles tendon last Friday against Baltimore but rallied enough to put away 25 points Sunday as his team was downing the Chicago Bulls.

"Wilty will play, Wilty will play," reassured Bob Feerick, general manager of the host San Francisco Warriors and Chamberlain's coach when the old Philadelphia franchise moved here in 1962. "Imagine an All-Star game without him!"

"I quit worrying when I retired," commented Red Auerbach from behind the usual cigar.

The ex-coach and now full-time general manager of the Boston Celtics is making his 11th appearance as the East's mentor, taking over for Dolph Schayes who led the 76ers to the Eastern Division crown last season then became head of the league's officials after being released.

If Chamberlain can't make it, his spot will go to the dean of NBA All Star games, player-coach Bill Russell of the Celtics. The former University of San Francisco wizard is entering his 10th classic.

EAST FAVORED

Auerbach faces Fred Schaus, the coach of the West and Los Angeles Lakers, who has lost three of his four All-Star tests. Red is expected to be able to light his "victory cigar" for the eighth time in the series and celebrate five straight wins for the East which clobbered the West last year, 137-94.

Chamberlain and Rick Barry, the San Francisco Warriors' big gun, led in the balloting by being named to the squads with a unanimous total of 10,000 points apiece.

Rick All The Way In NBA

NEW YORK (UPI) —Take Rick Barry out of the National Basketball Assn. scoring race and you have a battle.

Barry, the San Francisco Warrior sophomore, continued to lead the NBA in scoring, according to official league statistics released today for games through last Sunday.

The San Francisco ace had 1,421 points to his credit and a scoring average of 37.4 points a game. He scored on 514 field goals and 393 free throws.
field goals and 393 free throws.

With Barry out in front, Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati and Wilt Chamberlain of Philadelphia are battling for the runner-up spot. Robertson was second, having scored 1,957 points in 36 games for a 29.4 average, and Chamberlain was third with 1,039 points and an average of 24.2 points in 43 games.

Jerry West of Los Angeles was fourth with 913 points, followed closely by Hal Greer of Philadelphia with 909 points.

Chamberlain topped the league in field goal percentage with a .683 mark, with 408 baskets in 597 attempts. Walt Bellamy of New York was second at .526 and his teammate Willis Reed was third (.521).

Adrian Smith of Cincinnati led the free throw accuracy department with a percentage of .895 on 137 of 153 attempts. Barry was second in that department at .893 and Boston's Sam Jones was third at .872.

Chamberlain had a good lead over Nate Thurmond of San Francisco in the rebound department. The Philadelphia star had pulled down 1,051 rebounds in 43 games for an average of 24.2. Thurmond has hauled down 910 rebounds for a 22.2 average.

In the assist department, Chicago's Guy Rodgers held a slim margin over Robertson. Rodgers was credited with 523 assists in 45 games for an average of 11.6 per game, while Robertson had an average of 10.7 a game.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

A Twofold Advantage Of Convertible Issues

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. "I have many common stocks which show a profit and which I want to keep. In the past four years, I bought only convertibles, thinking I would have more safety of principal. I now have a loss on each of them. I have Tenneco five per cent and 5⅜ per cent convertible preferreds and Keystone Steel & Wire 4½ per cent convertible bonds. What do you suggest doing with them? I bought for safety of principal and income." H. H.

A. The advantage in holding convertibles is twofold. In a strong market, they will keep pace with the common, when the latter reaches a price where conversion would have some value. In a declining market they will fall no lower than the going level for other fixed-income investments of comparable quality. The securities you hold have now no conversion value and are selling on the basis of relatively high yield alone. Both principal and income seem secure. I would sit tight.

Q. "Would you tell me something about tax-exempt bonds? What do they yield and where can I buy them?" R. deC.

A. It is a pleasure to tell you about tax exempts, which generally speaking fall into two classes. There are direct obligations—backed by the full taxing power of a city or state. There are also revenue bonds—payable only from special taxes, revenues or tolls. Each type of issue comes in all shapes and sizes. You can buy State of California's, a very good name, to yield over four per cent to 2003.

North Marin Safeway Will Open Tomorrow

Safeway Stores, Inc., will open its second store in North Marin at 9 a.m. tomorrow in the new Pacheco Plaza Shopping Center in Ignacio.

The 24,000-square foot supermarket is the focal point of the center which has been developed by Walter F. Kieckhefer Co. It will have a staff of 42.

The store has seven checkout stands with high-speed cash registers, "cold wall curtain" refrigeration sections, customer service booth, and approximately 156 lineal feet of display fixtures with more than 9,000 items.

MURRAY CARTER
New store manager

Manager of the new store is Murray Carter, who has been with Safeway since 1956. He managed stores in Benicia and Pleasanton prior to this assignment and lives in Pleasant Hill, Contra Costa County, with his wife and two children.

Assisting Carter will be Winslow Callaghan, a Safeway employee since 1961, who recently has been relief assistant store manager in the Diablo Avenue store in Novato. Norman Davis, with Safeway since 1945, is manager of the meat department and comes to Ignacio from El Sobrante. Marvin Hendrix, recently produce clerk in the new Larkspur Safeway store, will be produce department manager.

Safeway is one of 12 businesses in Pacheco Plaza which participated in a ribbon cutting ceremony for the shopping center this morning. Other firms occupying the center are Klein's TV, Taylor Variety Store, Plaza Liquors, Plaza Laundry, One-Hour Martinizing Service, Don of Marin Beauty Salon, Plaza Pharmacy, Barney Kushman's Barber Shop, Gordon Walker and Associates, Signal Oil Co., and the owner and developer, Walter Kieckhefer Co.

The center, now approximately 75 per cent occupied, was built on the site of the home of pioneer Marin rancher Ygnacio Pacheco. A part of the development is the Church in Ignacio, compleded in December, 1955. The center was designed by Apaydin, Angell, Lockwood Associates and built by Crown Development Co. It comprises 65,000 square feet and was built at a cost of approximately $1 million.

Industrial Fire Insurance Firm To Locate In Marin

It's always a feat to pull a western regional office for a large firm out of San Francisco into Marin, but this is what has happened in the case of Manufacturers Mutual Fire Insurance Co.

Manufacturers, one of the oldest (132 years) and one of the largest mutual industrial fire insurance companies in the country, is headquartered in Providence, R. I. Its western regional office, located in the Russ Building has been in San Francisco for the past 30 years and covers all the territory west of the Rocky Mountains.

On Jan. 23 it will open in the Margarita Plaza, Northgate Industrial Park, where Tom Ireland of Dohemann and Co. talked regional vice president Rchard W. Horton into signing up for 1,500 square feet. Of course, it might be that Ireland's job was made easier by the fact that Horton already lives in Marin (near Marin Country Club) and so do several other members of the staff, who can now look forward to a shorter and more pleasant drive to and from work.

Along with the western regional office, the San Francisco district office also comes to the Margarita Plaza. Assistant vice president and district manager E. M. Tobin lives in Mill Valley. His assistant Clem Carlson lives in Lucas Valley.

Company engineer Roy E. Markstrum lives in the city but is talking about moving here, too. Mrs. Shirley Michaelsen of the office staff lives in Mill Valley and Miss Catharine Barry is another city dweller who has her sights on changing her home address to Marin.

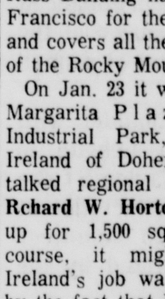
"It's more than just a geographical move," says vice president Horton. "We anticipate growth and need elbow room to expand."

RICHARD SCOTT of Corte Madera, advertising manager of Calectron, R. C. A. Wholesaler, has been awarded grand prize in a national advertising contest involving "RCA Victor Week" for the second consecutive year. James Costello, Calectron RCA Victor division manager is also a Marin resident, living in Greenbrae.

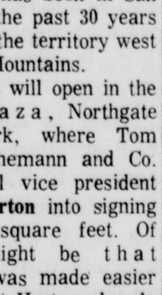
PAT AND MARION VINCENT of Mountain Home Inn had their first Christmas season with the gift shop at the road level on Panoramic Highway, Mill Valley this year and it appears to have taken hold. So much so, that eventually its business may rival that of the restaurant below.

The Vincents are expecting a shipment of stained glass windows from Germany shortly. Already on the shelves are a number of other imports—cuckoo clocks, lederhosen, imported wines and a collection of gourmet items, wrought iron and leather goods—for better quality than anything that used to be handled here when the shop was leased out. Hours are the same as at the restaurant—from noon to 8 p.m. daily, except Mondays.

FLOORCRAFT, recently moved from 375 to 509 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, I find now, won't be open until about Feb. 1. There is still work to be done and stocks to set in order. The new location is where Magic Carpet used to be.



J. Christie



R. Christie

JAMES V. CHRISTIE of San Anselmo has resigned as president of Barkow Petroleum Co., Richmond and will serve as chairman of the board. His son Robert S. Christie of Novato is taking over as president. The Christies acquired ownership of the Company, a custom blender and packager of premium motor oils, in 1961. The firm's new president was retail manager for Caminol Co. of Hanford before joining his father at Barkow.

Profit Takers Halt Further Stock Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — Late profit taking marred the stock market's effort to carry its rally through the sixth straight session today.

Stocks rose at the start but their gains were clipped for most of the session. Profits were taken on the previous sessions of advance. Toward the end, prices weakened further.

Volume for the day was estimated at 8 million shares compared with 9.18 million Monday.

Profit taking was rgadually overtaking the list but it continued to show some good gains by specific issues. IBM was up 4, Magnavox and Collins Radio 2, Standard Oil of Indiana, Johns-Manville, Eastman Kodak and Homestake a point or more.

Polaroid lost 3. Collins & Aikman dropped about 1½. Losses of about a point were taken by United Aircraft, Xerox, Air Reduction, Merck and Corning Glass.

MacAndrews and Forbes, which traded on an exchange distribution of 71,955 shares, eased in price but remained the volume leader in late dealings.

Tamalpais Lists Savings Growth

Tamalpais Savings and Loan Assn., Corte Madera, has reported savings at $13,864,037 on Dec. 31, an increase of 21 per cent over the 1965 year-end figure of $9,355,887.

Assets totaled $13,864,037, compared with $12,495,902 at the end of 1965.

The association completed its fifth year of operation on Dec. 31. A branch office has been maintained in Palo Alto for about a year and a third office is planned to open in April.

Sneezes Keep Paper Factories Busier

NEW YORK (UPI) —Sneezes sound a busy note for tissue makers. U.S. papermakers this year will produce about 300,000 tons of disposable tissues — enough, they figure, to "dispose of" approximately 141 billion sneezes, according to a study by the Kimberly-Clark Corp.

The FISHIN' FOOL

By RALPH STEVENS
I-J Fish and Game Writer

STEVENS

There seems to have been a rather sudden interest in fishing for sturgeon in the back country spots, and due to this special interest in trying for sturgeon, the take of striped bass has been very low.

One well known resorter explained—:"Most everybody is going after sturgeon and not after stripers."

ASKED WHAT these sturgeon fishermen were using for bait, the resort owner stated that most, probably all, used grass shrimp.

That statement clarified matters. We all know that a striped bass will hit a grass shrimp. Many of the stripers caught locally (the upper San Pablo Bay, on the flats above the pumphouse) have fallen for the shrimp. So, the answer to the problem must be that most of the stripers still have to populate the back-country waters.

REPORTS INDICATE that some areas, such as the Big Break and Frank's Tract, have been fairly productive to both trollers and "coiled-line fishing."

I spoke to Herb King, who took over Patrick's Three-Mile Slough spot some time ago. Herb gave honorable mention to Reno and "Babe" Arqua, who have managed to fill out limits nearly every time out, but the Arquas were the only ones mentioned.

AS A MATTER of cold, hard fact, most of the fishing reports, stripers, salmon and steelhead, indicate that angling was deep in the doldrums for the past week.

If you believe in the law of averages, however, the slow fishing the past week means we are due for some fast and fancy angling very soon.

TO ANSWER a query or two: Davis Campbell of the Golden Boatel at Inverness reported striper striving very slow. No change in the standing of the Bass Derby names. But, Davis did make mention of two steelhead being caught: "One was taken on sardine bait right in the bay; the other was a fish that lost his way and became stranded in very shallow water where he was picked up."

LEE ANDERSON'S in Oakland had only one report to release. Johnny Souza, fishing from the rocks at the foot of Ashby Ave. with a sand worm, hooked and landed a nice 14-pounder.

Grace Quan of China Camp reported 15 boats out of her place brought back seven bass and one legal-siz sturgeon. "Action was best on the incoming tide in about 12 feet of water."

I asked how Alice Quan was getting along and was told Alice is apparently recovering from her ailments, which is good news to us all.

STEELHEAD FISHING in the coastal, tidewater streams is a case of too much clearness of the water, too many fishermen and too few fish. Bob Johnson called me yesterday to report the above with the exception that some of the more expert anglers had been getting some fish on artificial flies, a few on small spinners.

I might suggest to the more hardy souls who will brave the arctic winds and the dearth of fish that they try tempting the steelies with a gob of wriggling earthworms or a nice lively night-crawler. No guarantees, of course, but it should be worth a try. I hope for better reports on Thursday.

Marin Tars Host Santa Rosa Tonight

For one of the few times in this hectic season, College of Marin's basketball team will not be an underdog by any stretch of the imagination.

That couious role will go to Santa Rosa when the two teams clash in a Golden Valley Conference game at Kentfield at 8 tonight.

He may well remember Santa Rosa's football counterparts last year who were headed for a winless season before they upset Marin, 16-14. Those things do happen.

"Their personnel are not as bad as their record," Riemcke said. "I can't understand why they're doing so badly."

Guard Bruce McNeely is the leading Santa Rosa scorer. The top rebounder and biggest player is 6-5 center Lew Brown from Nevada. Pete Waller and John Bles are two returning veterans. A plus factor for Santa Rosa is that the Cubbies gave American River J. C. its toughest game in the Marin Invitational Tournament.

Riemcke plans to go with the same weave offense of three guards that has produced a bushel of points lately.

Bill Pandiani, Bob Phillips and Russ Smith will be firing or driving off the weave. In their last two games Pandiani has fired in 49 points, Phillips 54.

The resurgance of Phillips has been a big push for the Tars.

"He's just beginning to get around to basketball," Riemcke said. "He's lost his football muscles. That, and he likes to drive and this weave is suited for him."

Six-nine center Brad Luz, who has missed the last two games with a cold, has been demoted to the junior varsity.

"He'll need to get back in shape and work for his spot," Riemcke said.

The other two starters will be forwards Tom Stetson and Terry Overlid.

The Tars lead their division of the Golden Gate Conference with a 1-1 record. Napa, Santa Rosa and College of the Redwood have lost two games while winning none.

San Rafael Nine Wins 7th Straight

Flying Goose took a 4-0 lead in the second inning when Litchfield's starter Ron Law gave up two walks, a pair of singles and a triple. The San Rafael nine tied it in the fifth and went ahead in the eighth with a five-run outburst, highlighted by Joe Panella's three-run homer, his third hit of the day.

Ron Gasper also had three hits on the day and John Laberrique and Rich Jeffries each had a double and single for Litchfield's team. Ed Mennosse's pinch-hit single was the blow that tied the game in the fifth.

Law was relieved by Val Snow who worked three innings and Ron Cole, the winning pitcher, who hurled the final four frames. Cole, getting his third victory, gave up two scattered singles while striking out five batters. Snow pitched hitless ball during his three-inning stint.

Litchfield's now leads the league by two full games in its bid to repeat as AAA champions.

AMERICA'S CUP CHALLENGER

Australian Boat Builder Happy With His New One

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — There was talk today of building a third Australian contender as a challenger for the America's Cup after fast sailing by the new Aussie boat, Dame Pattie, over the weekend.

In tune-up trials on the 24-mile America's Cup-type course off Sydney, Dame Pattie defeated her rival, Gretel, by one minute, 56 seconds Saturday and by 8:45 Sunday, a thrash-tween 12-meter yachts.

Yesterday Warwick Hood, designer of Dame Pattie, said he has been asked by another syndicate to build a third potential challenger which would be his idea of the ultimate in 12-meter boats.

Hood said that with a fullscale crash program the boat could be sailing within four months and he is considering the offer.

Hood said: "With Dame Pattie I settled for a type of hull that I was reasonably sure would be a goer. I am not willing to take the risk of going all the way and building a boat that is only good in theory.

"But as soon as I saw Dame Pattie sailing in crew training I knew that my theory had been confirmed in practice.

"If we had gone ahead and built a boat from the last model that carried my design theories to the ultimate, she would have been minutes faster than Dame Pattie around a course."

Hood said he feared American designer Olin Stephens is awake to the theory behind Dame Pattie's design.

Hood said he had studied published photographs of the body of Intrepid, the new American boat, and "It seems she is very much like Dame Pattie," Hood added.

"I have not seen a photograph of the keel shape Stephens has designed for Intrepid because rightly, it was hidden from the camera. But I can guess what it will look like -- much the same as I would have incorporated on Dame Pattie Mark II if we'd taken the risk of building such a radical boat."

Dame Pattie's defeat of Gretel, Australian challenger in 1962, excited Australians over the prospects in the challenge to the United States off Newport, R.I., in September.

The weekend clashes between the two yachts were the first of eight tune-up races.

Eight selection trials are scheduled for March. The final trials will be in American waters in August.

Ex-Baseball Manager Keane Laid To Rest

HOUSTON (AP) — Hundreds of mourners paid last respects yesterday to Johnny Keane, manager of the 1964 world champion St. Louis Cardinals and, later, of the faltering New York Yankees.

A massive and unexpected heart attack killed Keane in his Houston home Friday night. He was 55.

At the first of three memorial services yesterday, the Rev. James Wilson of St. Thomas High School said of Keane, "His life was gentle and the elements so mixed in him that nature might stand up and say to all the world, 'this was a man.'"

Keane worked 30 years in the Cardinal chain, quitting after the 1964 World Series and replacing Yogi Berra as manager of the Yankees. He was fired from that job 18 months later as the Yankees floundered in last place.

He came back to Houston, where he had played with and managed the Houston Buffs, and in recent months had worked as a special scout for the California Angels.

A federal judge, prominent baseball figures and sports writers served as his pallbearers yesterday.

They included U.S. Dist. Judge Allen B. Hannay, Allen Russell, Bing Divine, Vern Benson, Morris Frank, Clark Nealon, Howard Pollet and Art Rountzog.

Russell was president of the 1947 Buffs' team that won the Dixie championship. Devine, now general manager of the Mets and Rountzog, now with the Houston Astros, were Cardinal executives when Keane was manager.

Benson, now with the Cincinnati Reds, was third base coach for Keane with both the Cardinals and the Yankees. Pollet is a Houston insurance man who was a St. Louis coach under Keane and is a former Cardinal pitching great.

Robby Ready To Go

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Robinson could not be as happy if he had won another Triple Crown — well, almost.

"The knee is coming along fine, faster than anyone thought it would," the Baltimore Orioles' slugging outfielder said yesterday.

"I've been running on it about a week already, nothing fancy yet, just straight ahead, but I'll gradually be able to increase the exercise."

The American League's Most Valuable Player was obviously relieved over the results of the Nov. 22 surgery and appeared fit as he answered questions at a Sporting Goods Fair luncheon.

"Just the idea of injuring a knee throws a scare into you after reading about all the serious knee injuries to athletes. This was the simplest kind of knee operation, but I'd still rather not have had it, no matter how simple. There's always some element of risk."

Robinson injured the right knee last June, but it did not keep him from hitting .316 with 49 home runs and 122 runs batted in to lead the league in all three categories in his first year with Baltimore. His bat powered the Orioles to a runaway pennant then helped sweep Los Angeles in the World Series.

The operation repaired the knee ligament and removed a bone chip. It never required a cast, only bandages, although he was on crutches for about a week. He's been exercising with weights and walking on it since then.

"It's not quite built back up as it was, but that will only take time," he said.

The good news apparently shelves any possibility that the knee could enter his scheduled salary talks with Baltimore officials Jan. 13.

"I'm sure they've got their figure and I've got mine," said Robinson, who expects a big increase from the reported $62,500 he made last year. But he doesn't look for any problems. "I've never been a hold out."

However the contract negotiations turn out, he feels the Orioles will have a tougher time winning another pennant in 1967.

"We won't run off this year," he said. "Our pitching staff should be better with all our young pitchers and no sore arms, but the rest of the league should be better, too. Detroit, Cleveland and Minnesota all had problems that made them inconsistent last year. They'll all be gunning for us now."

Robinson was making no predictions about his own year, good knee or bad, because "the pitchers in the league know me better now."

"Of course, I know them better, too," he added.

1967 Contract For Matty Alou

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates received a signed contract for the 1967 season yesterday from Matty Alou, who led both leagues in hitting last season with a .342 average.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Ferd Hernandez, ranked No. 6 among the world's middleweights, bulled his way to a 10 - round split decision over Henry Aldridge of San Jose, last night.

Hernandez, 160, of Las Vegas, appeared too strong for the quick, hard-hitting Aldridge, 154.

WRESTLING ROUNDUP

Novato Wrestlers Face Redwood Test

Two down and two to go.

Novato still has not wrestled Redwood and San Rafael, neither of whom has lost a dual meet in the Marin County Athletic League. Just how good Redwood is will be seen Friday when the Giants host the power-packed Hornets at 3:45 in a key MCAL meet that could determine the shape of things to come.

The Hornets collared victim No. 2 last week by disposing of Tamalpais, a team that had similar physical characteristics with the Hornets, Friday while Redwood was turning back a surprisingly strong effort by Terra Linda, 31-24.

San Rafael held off San Rafael Military Academy in a non-league match 33-20.

The Novato-Tam meet matched teams with strong lightweight gauntlets and only so-so strength in the heavier weights. As it turned out, the Hornets were much stronger in the light weights while Tam had little to offer in the heavyweights.

The Hornets struck quickly with the Donaldsen boys, Ken and Kirk, disposing of their victims at 98 and 105 pounds, with Ken getting a fall in the elf weight of 98 pounds. That was an 8-0 lead from which the staggering Indians never recovered.

The Indians had little to shout about, after having to forfeit the final two matches. But Don Rapelje at 127 pounds and Dave Hayes at 138 remained undefeated while Mike Fowler recorded the Indians' only pin at 175 pounds.

In addition to the big meet Friday, San Rafael meets Terra Linda on the Trojan mat in an unusual night dual meet tonight at 7 o'clock.

In non-league action both Terra Linda and Novato trek to Santa Rosa for the Montgomery Invitational Tournament Saturday. The Vikings are undefeated.

In another meet, Tamalpais hosts South San Francisco tomorrow at 4:15.

And Once Again: Grid Co-Champs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Notre Dame and Michigan State were named co-champions of the 1966 college football season by the Helms Athletic Foundation yesterday.

It was the first time the HAF staff picked co-champions in college football since it started its selections in 1900.

Notre Dame has been picked eight times for the championship honors and Michigan State four times. Michigan State was the Helms choice as No. 1 in 1965.

40 Years Of Service By Marin Rod-Gun Club

The Marin Rod and Gun Club, which will celebrate with its annual banquet on Jan. 28, has completed 40 years of active conservation work, both on the county and state levels.

For four decades, the club has been the voice of sportsmen, fighting for conservation of fish and wildlife and advocating strict enforcement of fish and game laws and compliance with rules of safety.

One of its primary interests has been youth work. It has donated funds to be used by the county schools to instill in youngsters respect and appreciation of nature. For years, the club sponsored courses on gun safety for youth. It also ran skeet, trap shooting and running deer ranges to improve skill and teach weapons safety.

Marin Rod and Gun Club members went to bat for the sportsmen, protecting abalone off the Marin coast from commercial intrusion and reserving striped bass fishing exclusively for sports fishermen.

The club has also been active in supporting state efforts for the propagation of both fish life and wildlife, such as fish planting operations.

At one time, the club raised and released wild pheasants to replenish the stock in Marin.

In Sacramento, the Marin Rod and Gun Club has the reputation of being the leading and most effective voice for sportsmen throughout the state. In conservation matters, it has often carried the battle for the entire state.

It was instrumental in getting appropriations from the state Wildlife Conservation Board for access facilities like the boat launching ramps at Miller Park on Tomales Bay and on the Petaluma River at Black Point.

The club's recreational facilities at San Quentin Point have been enhanced in recent years with expansion of the clubhouse and development of a small boat launching ramp.

It stood shoulder to shoulder with the Marin Conservation League in battling for Samuel P. Taylor State Park. The first restroom facilities at the park were built with volunteer labor and materials provided by the Marin Rod and Gun Club.

In 1964, it was one of the leaders in the formation of the Marin Conservation Council. The club supported the $150 million state beaches and parks bond issue in the 1964 election.

The club and its auxiliary were outspoken in fighting to "Save the Bay" from indiscriminate filling.

The fact that Marin is one of the beauty spots of the state and a mecca for the hiker, picnicker and sportsman is due in large part to the Marin Rod and Gun Club's 40 years of sustained effort.

We join the community in saluting the club at its 40th annual banquet.

THE HOME IS A SPRINGBOARD TO WORLD RENEWAL

A breathtaking change for the better would take place if the restorative powers of tens of millions of homes could be tapped and applied to every sphere of influence!

In 1874, Benjamin Disraeli summed it up in these words:

"The best security for civilization is the dwelling, and upon proper and becoming dwellings depends more than anything else the improvement of mankind."

Fathers and mothers are in a unique position. Others can assist them, but nobody can fully replace them.

Do everything you can from and through the home to refresh and nourish a world that grows stale and directionless when neglected by the home.

By wholeheartedly cooperating with God's many graces, married couples enrich and strengthen: (1) their deepening love for each other; (2) their children's total development; and (3) the welfare of humanity itself.

"Let each one of you love his wife as himself, and let the wife see that she respects her husband." (Ephesians 5:33)

Fill all families with Your love, O Father, and let their spiritual power help refresh the world.

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—Gov. Ronald Reagan's inaugural address was general in outlining his future course of activity, but it did indicate, as Reagan has said all along, there will be some new outlooks in Sacramento in the next four years.

Emphasized in the remarks he made to the people of the state was the principle that government is for the people and by the people. This precept has grown foggy over the past few years, with the intrusions of government into the lives of the people and the continued grab for power engendered by the bureaucracies built within the government structure.

Primarily the thing that interests taxpayers is the rise in government expenditures and their consequent burden on the people who pay the bills. Of this problem, Reagan said:

"WE ARE GOING to squeeze and cut and trim until we reduce the cost of government. It won't be easy, nor will it be pleasant, and it will involve every department of government, starting with the governor's office."

Regarding additional taxes, Reagan declared that "we turn to additional sources of revenue only if it becomes clear that economies alone can not balance the budget."

The governor said it is the people's right to know all the facts concerning their state business, and promised that when his independent audit is completed, the facts will be available to the people.

"WE WILL PUT our fiscal house in order," the new governor declared. "And as we do, we will build those things we need to make our state a better place to live and we will enjoy them more, knowing we can afford them and that they are paid for.

"The time has come for us to decide whether collectively we can afford everything and anything we think of simply because we think of it. The time has come to run a check to see if all the services government provides were in answer to the demands or were just goodies dreamed up for our supposed betterment. The time has come to match outgo to income, instead of doing it the other way around."

FUNDAMENTALLY, the new governor outlined in effect what should have been done a long time ago. Had the principles expressed in his speech been followed in government, rather than the theories that government is the giver of all good things, the state would not find itself now in a fiscal situation which, unless drastic steps are taken, is bound to result in additional burdens on the people.

Governor Reagan has laid out a job for himself and for his administration, which never yet has been accomplished.

WHETHER THE JOB is done or not remains to be seen. Right now, not much more can be done than to laud Reagan in his efforts to restore government to the hands of the citizens of the state. He faces heavy odds, but even heavy odds have been overcome.

Anti-Freeway Side Explained

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Your editorial of Dec. 20, Blind Opposition Can Scuttle Needed Freeway, seems to indicate that you have never clearly understood the motives or the actions of the alliance opposing the freeway.

Quite simply, we HAD to stop a crude, deceptive, political stampede. Obviously the planning commission and certain important public officials have known for two years, exactly what the construction and impact of such a vast roadway entailed. The general public clearly has not.

Suddenly this awesome project materialized before us. And before we could possibly appraise the need or effect of this project, we were told that the decision on its route would be made in barely a month's time.

To compound, and we suspect to capitalize upon, our confusion, a series of separated, small gatherings were organized to explain the freeway to the public. Only because a few of us took the trouble to follow the speaking team from group to group and area to area, did it become apparent that the public was not being honestly informed. Each group was being told a slightly different, but more soothing, story.

As a direct consequence of this partial and conflicting public education program, there occurred an unfortunate, divisive and ill-advised scramble by some groups to strike out in blind panic, and to go screaming to have the freeway put in this or that area, to avoid getting stuck with it themselves. In short, the old ploy of divide and conquer was likely to achieve its devastating effect among the people.

That is the reason the leaders of the organized groups met to compare notes, and to find a way to stop the bitter, divisive wave that was threatening to engulf us all.

We have NEVER entertained any rancor toward the personnel of the State Division of Highways. Many of us made that quite clear in our presentations on Dec. 8. We know that they were requested to make the study, and appreciate the fact that they expended considerable effort in studying and developing so many alternate routes.

Our quarrel is with the political proponents of the freeway, who kept us in the dark so long, and who then tried to force a decision on it, so suddenly. And, had we not realized what was being done to us, and had we not fought for more time to study the alternatives, today we would have been irrevocably committed to a freeway that would not be constructed for many years.

Through our efforts, we have bought time to study and consider our future transportation problems and needs. We have prevented our public officials from committing us to a very important project with very far-reaching effects. We rose to the occasion with remarkable swiftness, and we acted with a genuine concern for the rights and welfare of all areas of Marin County. As merely one concerned member of the alliance, I apologize to no one for what we accomplished.

Highway 4 Like A Live Grenade

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Last week my wife, Margaret, had the dubious distinction of being apprehended in downtown Mill Valley by two motorcycle officers of the California Highway Patrol. Two, mind you! . . .

Margaret was cited for having too many passengers in her car. (There were four children in our venerable Austin-Healey.) She was guilty as sin! I have no doubt that this crowd obstructed her vision and I hope the citation taught her a lesson. (Whatever the size of the car, I get jumpy with one child.)

She was also warned to repair the defective horn and windshield wiper (Guilty!) and replace the burnt-out brake light bulb (Guilty!). (Actually, I feel the burden of the guilt on these counts.) In the same warning was included the observation that the license plates were less than 12 inches off the ground. On this latter point, I am inclined to the position that the car is guilty. It has been on the highways since 1954, (the A-100 won the Le Mans in its day), and I suspect that age has resulted in a certain inevitable slouch . . .

I do have a minor axe to grind. If there be indication here that we have indeed a surplus of highway patrolmen, may I respectfully suggest that there be additional assignments on Highway 4 on which I drive to and from work in Pittsburg each day? I get the cold chills from cars passing illegally on the right—and the left—and attempting to pass as many as seven cars in a row at speeds up to 80 mile per hour (my estimate) on two-lane curves. (The last one I saw resulted in a three-car injury accident.) I have learned to drive that route as if sitting on a live grenade—and I have yet to see a citation taking place.

Enough of my petty grievance! After Margaret's citation, she was blocked in her parking space for what seemed an extended period while one of the officers tried repeatedly to start the engine on his "bike." (The children were intimidated enough to manage to keep straight faces.) I, however, am concerned that our highway patrolmen (bless them) are working with defective equipment. When they are needed in an emergency, I would not like to think they were delayed by inadequate maintenance.

Route Argument Is Puzzling One

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I have been puzzled about the recent Highway 17 extension hassle. The state engineers have come with several proposals for an extension of a freeway to the National Seashore and apparently prefer the central route, which appears to be the longest and much more costly.

This route would follow along the Miracle Mile between San Rafael and San Anselmo, east of Red Hill, up through Sequoia Park and out over White's Hill to the vicinity of Olema. There the project ends. How close to the National Seashore is that? My map says it is only about halfway.

Seems to me that a few land owners, speculators or promoters are more selfishly interested in getting easy access to their properties than in providing a freeway for the benefit of vacationers and tourists and to the detriment of numerous thriving businesses and home owners who have lived and worked in Marin County for years and have had to pay increasing taxes through those years.

IN THE LIBRARY of a Franciscan monastery in western Pennsylvania, discloses the Catholic Digest, there stands a large safe. For the convenience of priests who may have forgotten the combination, a set of detailed instructions for opening the safe is posted conspicuously on the door. But don't underestimate the intelligence of the Franciscans. The instructions are entirely in Latin.

"IS THIS town's water pure?" demanded a cautious tourist of the innkeeper. "Sure is," nodded the innkeeper. "First we filter it, then we take the iron out of it, then we add numerous chemicals to it—and then we drink beer."

Later, the same tourist asked, "Any night life in this Godforsaken hole?" "Gotta admit there ain't," sighed the deflated innkeeper. "She left for Boston last week."

Coming Year To Be Crucial One For Johnson's Political Future

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is heading into his toughest year so far although 1967 doesn't promise to be a very exciting year by itself.

Yet, what happens in 1967 — and what happens to Johnson and what he makes happen — may determine whether he will seek re-election in 1968.

BUT EVENTS by themselves, unless Johnson makes some wretched mistakes in handling them, may not be the dominant factor in his decision to run again or in the Democrats' decision to make him their candidate again.

A very important factor and perhaps the most important one in the end — although hardly anything is being said about it now — is the kind of candidate the Republicans pick for their nominee in 1968.

It was extremely important when President Harry S. Truman ran against New York's Thomas E. Dewey and beat him in 1948.

Like Johnson after the death of President John F. Kennedy, when Truman took over after the death of President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1945, he rocked along on a great tide of sympathy and goodwill for a while.

GRADUALLY, his troubles piled up. The cold war began and at home, as a result of the war, there were shortages in food and housing. As his troubles multiplied, his popularity went down. Price controls became a national irritant. As they gradually fell apart, inflation roared through the roof.

And this was the result: In the off-year elections of 1946 the Republicans for the first time since 1928 gained control of both House and Senate. His troubles with the Republican-run Congress became so intense that they evoked new sympathy for Truman, although not much, it seemed.

So, when the Democrats nominated him for a full term in 1948, they did so without much enthusiasm. Against Dewey he looked like a sure loser right up until half-way through election night.

THEN CAME his truly tremendous and troublesome years: The creation of NATO, the Korean War, the assaults by Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy. But if his standing with the electorate seemed low, it was anything but that with historians.

In 1962, 10 years after he left left the White House, a poll of 75 historians placed him among the near great among the presidents with the reservation that future historians might well list him with the great ones.

The popularity of Johnson's new presidency sailed through 1964, climaxed by an overwhelming victory over his Republican challenger, Sen. Barry Goldwater, who unwittingly aided and abetted Johnson's victory by being way out of step with his times, as the voters showed.

Then, in 1965, with the help of his Democratic-run Congress, Johnson reached new heights: He got through the greatest batch of major legislation in one year in American history.

NEVERTHELESS, it was in 1965 that Johnson began to undermine his own popularity by the firm, strong stand he took in putting the United States up to its neck in the war in Vietnam.

But it wasn't until 1966 that the edge of his popularity wore off and the public opinion polls continually showed his prestige with the people going down.

It was in the off-year elections of 1966 — just as in the case of Truman in 1948 — that the popularity of Johnson's leadership landed in the basement. The Republicans, while not regaining control of Congress, won enough seats to cut down Democratic control.

EVEN WITHIN his own party and particularly among governors, Johnson's leadership was attacked. And Congress in 1967 may spend more time examining some of the Johnson programs already on the books than in approving new ones.

Therefore, this does not look like a very creative year in Congress. But it is in this year, with the Vietnamese war continuing, that Johnson must start rebuilding his political future if he hopes for the presidency again.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

Demo Lawmaker Hits LBJ Fiscal Juggling

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON—Sen. Vance Hartke, a leading Democratic member of the influential Finance Committee, is bluntly charging that the Johnson administration is "concealing the skyrocketing costs of the Vietnam war in an effort not to exceed the nation's legal debt limit ($330 billion)."

The cost of the conflict and concurrent foreign aid program in Southeast Asia, the Indianan asserts, is running around $3 billion a month. This immense outlay is almost double that "officially admitted by the Budget Bureau."

THE TREASURY'S policy of siphoning into the general fund huge amounts from other funds voted by Congress for specific purposes was caustically characterized by Hartke as "piggy-bank financing."

Cited as an example is what is happening to the Highway Trust Fund.

"The Budget Bureau has instructed the Bureau of Public Roads to release to the states some $3.3 billion of federal gasoline and highway user taxes, instead of the $4.4 billion authorized by Congress for the construction of primary roads and limited access highways," said Hartke. "The Public Roads Bureau, in turn, has been advised to report to the states that the cutback is 'in recognition of the need for reducing non-military expenditures as a contribution to the Vietnam effort, and the resultant program to reduce inflationary pressures'."

"The administration's financial juggling," Hartke continued, "is very reminiscent of that of a little neighbor lady in Stendal, Ind., a coal mining town in which I lived as a boy. She put her egg money in a sugar bowl, and other small sums earmarked for various household expenses she placed in other homely hiding places—a teapot, a coffee can, even in the pages of the family Bible.

"WHEN SHE NEEDED a sum of money for a pair of shoes, or some other purchase, she would borrow a few coins from the teapot, a dollar bill from the Bible, and the rest perhaps from the piggy-bank. And while doing that, she would tell the sugar bowl, the teapot and the other receptacles that they would never miss the money."

Hartke cited the $1.1 billion in "participation certificates" put on sale by the Treasury this week. Of this total, $500 million will be bought by the government's own Trust Fund, and $600 million offered to public buyers.

"Thus with the stroke of a pen," said Hartke, "the budget deficit for the current fiscal year will be reduced by $1.1 billion.

"THE AIM IS to mislead the public and Congress as to the real state of the government's expenditures and finances," asserted Hartke.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. "I have many common stocks which show a profit and which I want to keep. In the past four years, I bought only convertibles, thinking I would have more safety of principal. I now have a loss on each of them. I have Tenneco five per cent and 5⅜ per cent convertible preferreds and Keystone Steel & Wire 4½ per cent convertible bonds. What do you suggest doing with them? I bought for safety of principal and income." H. H.

A. The advantage in holding convertibles is twofold. In a strong market, they will keep pace with the common, when the latter reaches a price where conversion would have some value. In a declining market they will fall no lower than the going level for other fixed-income investments of comparable quality. The securities you hold have now no conversion value and are selling on the basis of relatively high yield alone. Both principal and income seem secure. I would sit tight.

Q. "Would you tell me something about tax-exempt bonds? What do they yield and where can I buy them?" R. deC.

A. It is a pleasure to tell you about tax exempts, which generally speaking fall into two classes. There are direct obligations—backed by the full taxing power of a city or state. There are also revenue bonds—payable only from special taxes, revenues or tolls. Each type of issue comes in all shapes and sizes. You can buy State of California's, a very good name, to yield over four per cent to 2003.

Evans Products Co. Declares Dividend

PORTLAND — Evans Products Co.'s board of directors has declared a cash dividend of 15 cents per share, payable Jan. 31 to common stockholders of record Jan. 16.

North Marin Safeway Will Open Tomorrow

Safeway Stores, Inc., will open its second store in North Marin at 9 a.m. tomorrow in the new Pacheco Plaza Shopping Center in Ignacio.

The 24,000-square foot supermarket is the focal point of the center which has been developed by Walter F. Kieckhefer Co. It will have a staff of 42.

The store has seven checkout stands with high-speed cash registers, "cold wall curtain" refrigeration sections, customer service booth, and approximately 156 lineal feet of display fixtures with more than 9,000 items.

Manager of the new store is Murray Carter, who has been with Safeway since 1956. He managed stores in Benicia and Pleasanton prior to this assignment and lives in Pleasant Hill, Contra Costa County, with his wife and two children.

Assisting Carter will be Winslow Callaghan, a Safeway employee since 1961, who recently has been relief assistant store manager in the Diablo Avenue store in Novato. Norman Davis, with Safeway since 1945, is manager of the meat department and comes to Ignacio from El Sobrante. Marvin Hendrix, recently produce clerk in the new Larkspur Safeway store, will be produce department manager.

Safeway is one of 12 businesses in Pacheco Plaza which participated in a ribbon cutting ceremony for the shopping center this morning. Other firms occupying the center are Klein's TV, Taylor Variety Store, Plaza Liquors, Plaza Laundry, One-Hour Martinizing Service, Don of Marin Beauty Salon, Plaza Pharmacy, Barney Kushman's Barber Shop, Gordon Walker and Associates, Signal Oil Co., and the owner and developer, Walter Kieckhefer Co.

The center, now approximately 75 per cent occupied, was built on the site of the home of pioneer Marin rancher Ygnacio Pacheco. A part of the development is the Church in Ignacio, compleded in December, 1955. The center was designed by Apaydin, Angell, Lockwood Associates and built by Crown Development Co. It comprises 65,000 square feet and was built at a cost of approximately $1 million.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

Industrial Fire Insurance Firm To Locate In Marin

It's always a feat to pull a western regional office for a large firm out of San Francisco into Marin, but this is what has happened in the case of Manufacturers Mutual Fire Insurance Co.

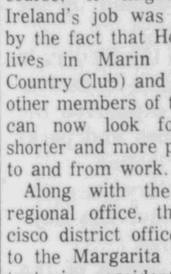
Manufacturers, one of the oldest (132 years) and one of the largest mutual industrial fire insurance companies in the country, is headquartered in Providence, R. I. Its western regional office, located in the Russ Building has been in San Francisco for the past 30 years and covers all the territory west of the Rocky Mountains.

On Jan. 23 it will open in the Margarita Plaza, Northgate Industrial Park, where Tom Ireland of Dohemann and Co. talked regional vice president Rchard W. Horton into signing up for 1,500 square feet. Of course, it might be that Ireland's job was made easier by the fact that Horton already lives in Marin (near Marin Country Club) and so do several other members of the staff, who can now look forward to a shorter and more pleasant drive to and from work.

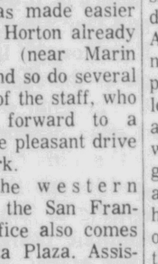
Along with the western regional office, the San Francisco district office also comes to the Margarita Plaza. Assistant vice president and district manager E. M. Tobin lives in Mill Valley. His assistant Clem Carlson lives in Lucas Valley.

Company engineer Roy E. Markstrum lives in the city but is talking about moving here, too. Mrs. Shirley Michaelsen of the office staff lives in Mill Valley and Miss Catharine Barry is another city dweller who has her sights on changing her home address to Marin.

"It's more than just a geographical move," says vice president Horton. "We anticipate growth and need elbow room to expand."



J. Christie



R. Christie

JAMES V. CHRISTIE of San Anselmo has resigned as president of Barkow Petroleum Co., Richmond and will serve as chairman of the board. His son Robert S. Christie of Novato is taking over as president. The Christies acquired ownership of the Company, a custom blender and packager of premium motor oils, in 1961. The firm's new president was retail manager for Caminol Co. of Hanford before joining his father at Barkow.

RICHARD SCOTT of Corte Madera, advertising manager of Calectron, R. C. A. Wholesaler, has been awarded grand prize in a national advertising contest involving "RCA Victor Week" for the second consecutive year. James Costello, Calectron RCA Victor division manager is also a Marin resident, living in Greenbrae.

PAT AND MARION VINCENT of Mountain Home Inn had their first Christmas season with the gift shop at the road level on Panoramic Highway, Mill Valley this year and it appears to have taken hold. So much so, that eventually its business may rival that of the restaurant below.

The Vincents are expecting a shipment of stained glass windows from Germany shortly. Already on the shelves are a number of other imports—cuckoo clocks, lederhosen, imported wines and a collection of gourmet items, wrought iron and leather goods—for better quality than anything that used to be handled here when the shop was leased out. Hours are the same as at the restaurant—from noon to 8 p.m. daily, except Mondays.

FLOORCRAFT, recently moved from 375 to 509 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, I find now, won't be open until about Feb. 1. There is still work to be done and stocks to set in order. The new location is where Magic Carpet used to be.

Profit Takers Halt Further Stock Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — Late profit taking marred the stock market's effort to carry its rally through the sixth straight session today.

Stocks rose at the start but their gains were clipped for most of the session. Profits were taken on the previous sessions of advance. Toward the end, prices weakened further.

Volume for the day was estimated at 8 million shares compared with 9.18 million Monday.

Profit taking was rgadually overtaking the list but it continued to show some good gains by specific issues. IBM was up 4, Magnavox and Collins Radio 2, Standard Oil of Indiana, Johns-Manville, Eastman Kodak and Homestake a point or more.

Polaroid lost 3. Collins & Aikman dropped about 1½. Losses of about a point were taken by United Aircraft, Xerox, Air Reduction, Merck and Corning Glass.

MacAndrews and Forbes, which traded on an exchange distribution of 71,955 shares, eased in price but remained the volume leader in late dealings.

Tamalpais Lists Savings Growth

Tamalpais Savings and Loan Assn., Corte Madera, has reported savings at $13,864,037 on Dec. 31, an increase of 21 per cent over the 1965 year-end figure of $9,355,887.

Assets totaled $13,864,037, compared with $12,495,902 at the end of 1965.

The association completed its fifth year of operation on Dec. 31. A branch office has been maintained in Palo Alto for about a year and a third office is planned to open in Albany in April.

Sneezes Keep Paper Factories Busier

NEW YORK (UPI) —Sneezes sound a busy note for tissue makers. U.S. papermakers this year will produce about 300,000 tons of disposable tissues — enough, they figure, to "dispose of" approximately 141 billion sneezes, according to a study by the Kimberly-Clark Corp.

Success Of Grocery Pickets In Marin County Questioned

The last of one year and the first of another, it is customary to take stock of the past and see what progress has been made. One of the campaigns that needs to be examined at this time of the year is the one the housewives carried on for lower grocery prices.

Perhaps in some parts of the country it did succeed, but I have my doubts abouts its success in Marin County where competition keeps prices about as low as possible. The main campaign was centered on the principle that if the stores abolish trading stamps and give-away games, they could lower their prices.

Toward this end, the housewives did picket some stores. I did not however, see the stores suffering from a lack of business during this time.

HOWEVER, SOME stores did stop with their give-away games which took some of the sport out of buying and a feeling that one did not have to go to Nevada to play a game of bingo or play the races.

Now, as I walk around the stores, I cannot see any decrease in the price of groceries. I do not get a chance to win something on the free games, but I still get the trading stamps.

With my service station, it is a different matter. They cut out the give-away game and the stamps both. Instead of lowering the price of gasoline, they raised it two cents a gallon.

Somehow or other, I have a feeling that if the housewives had let well enough alone that the competition would have kept the price of gasoline down and I still might have a chance at a big prize. But alas it is not so now.

A 10-YEAR-OLD Novato boy was one of the first to sample the kind of public relations which the state will get from its new governor. He is Tim Van Gronigan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Casey Van Gronigan of 1627 Center Road. His parents had taken him to Sacramento to see the capital building and governor's mansion on New Year's Day. Governor-elect Ronald Reagan was moving into the mansion that day and news photographers were all over the place.

But in all the confusion, Tim could play with the Reagan children and their dog. The Governor-elect himself posed for pictures with Tim taken by a photographer from a Sacramento paper.

And to think that all was on the day preceding the midnight swearing in ceremonies.

AT A NOVATO Chamber of Commerce luncheon last week, tribute was being paid to everyone who had anything to do with the very attractive Nativity scene which was displayed on the corner of Highway 101 and Grant Avenue.

In case anyone missed it, it drew attention from all over, both the people who live in the area and those driving through the city.

In all of the tribute paying and back patting, someone mentioned that there were some very important contributors to the attraction that had not been mentioned.

"Who?" someone asked.

It was the four ewes that had lambs during the time of the display.

Would you believe . . . that the afternoon bridge group of the Novato Newcomers Club meets in the morning?

What The Younger Generation Suffers From—A Bad Press

I JUST RAN into Ebenezer Scrooge, and we both agreed that the trouble with the festive spirit that begins about the week before Christmas and ends with the New Year is that, like a summer cold, it's so hard to shake off.

"Knocks blazes out of my business," said Ebenezer. "Why, sometimes I can't bring myself to foreclose the mortgage on a widow and her six starving children until Jan. 15, when the final installment on last year's income tax is due."

I know just how Ebenezer feels. Here, after my furlough, I'm back in battle array with my six-shooters loaded and I should be taking pot-shots at some of the not-so-credible pronouncements the administration has already made in the brief life of 1967.

The President, for example, assures us the new year will provide both better guns and yummier butter; and the welfare secretary boasts that the anti-poverty program, instituted in 1964, has so far removed 3,400,000 from the poverty rolls.

NORMALLY, such whoppers would bring my thundering jeremiads down on the heads of the offenders. But that Yuletide hangover is still with me and I fear I'll need another week to round into form.

Instead, I find I want to say something in defense of the much-maligned younger generation, aged 18 to 32, of whom I saw quite a bit during the holidays. In fact, since my son and his bride were here for the fortnight, this normally staid house is still swinging from the echoes of the various reunions.

I had been led to expect, from learned dissertations by so-called experts, that this was a melancholy, introspective group who despised their elders and found their standards horrendously shocking, full of lies and hypocrisy; and whose every moment was preoccupied with the dread that a nuclear holocaust, our legacy, would envelop them.

DON'T YOU BELIEVE it. What the younger generation suffers from is a bad press, given it by savants who spend their days observing the activities of the abnormal few and conclude, in magazine articles and TV documentaries, that everybody is like that.

But everybody isn't. There is surely more to Berkeley than the Free Speech Movement. Indeed, I met several graduate students who told me they live off-campus because they do not care to be quartered in a place where the loudmouthed unwashed of the New Left rule by default and make the nights hideous with their pot and LSD parties. "Many?" I asked. "No," said a new bride, "but how many skunks does it take to stink a place up?"

SO I DISAGREE with the specialists. I found the younger generation a thoroughly gay and vigorous group which enjoys life to the hilt even if it lives in the shadow of the volcano. They have manners and wash behind their ears, conformist though that may be. And they do not regard the Ten Commandments or the Constitution or even their parents as utterly outworn institutions which have made their existence totally unbearable.

I watched particularly the class of '56—my son's—whose median age was 31 and some of whom I have known since they were Cub Scouts. Most of them have done their army hitch, and have been married about a year or two.

THEY ARE — Republicans or Democrats—extremely interested in making good in their careers, and taking care of their wives and children. They are doctors, lawyers, journalists, physicists businessmen and budding politicos. And one and all have a wholesome respect for their community and their country, and would like to be respected members thereof.

And if that is being "bourgeois" and "non-involved," let the unwashed of the New Left make the most of it. I think, by and large, we oldsters have nothing to be ashamed of—and a good deal to be proud of—in the generation we begot.

Catching Up On WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Route 17 Not The Real Answer

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I was very disappointed in the negative tone of your editorial on Dec. 20 regarding Highway 17.

Most of us who have attended the hearings have been concerned not only with our own area but with Marin County as a whole. We have taken many hours away from our families to attend not one but many meetings and hearings. We have looked at maps, asked questions and given opinions. We have gone home and not been able to sleep, mulling the problems over and over in our thoughts. Of course we have been emotional, or we would not have bothered to involve ourselves!

We have given constructive criticism with preferences and alternates to our Board of Supervisors. We requested a study of a rapid transit or transportation system for the whole county. We have also requested that a change in legislation be initiated to divert some gas tax monies to help pay for this system. We have asked for an answer to bay crossings. The real bottleneck is on Highway 101 at Mill Valley and Corte Madera, however we were told that the Division of Highways has plans for it in two years or so. We would like to see a scenic parkway to Point Reyes, but not through heavily populated areas. We have admited that Sir Francis Drake Boulevard should be widened, and were told this will be done in five years. This will alleviate our internal traffic problems. We do not need an $85 million dollar freeway to do this.

Actually the Board of Supervisors and the Marin County Planning Commission were abused and berated far more than the highway engineers. But not unjustly, for we wanted answers to the above before allowing the state to adopt a route.

The newly formed Sequoia-Hillsdale Homes Assn. has worked hard to inform the home owners in this area of all the public meetings and hearings so that they could go and listen and make up their own minds. We have informed them of the massive disruption of their community, of the number of businesses and homes that would be demolished and of the inevitable increase in property taxes due to a freeway being constructed in a heavily populated area. Yes, we have spoken loud and clear and will continue to do so!

Freeways and progress are not always synonymous — this too, can be dangerous thinking.

School's Chief Resignation His

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Bryce Anderson's The People's Schools continues to be excellent, from informing on state-wide trends to probing the mysteries of the Mill Valley school situation.

The "keep McConnell" drive discussed in his Dec. 22 column has failed as a drive, but the many spontaneous expressions from various individuals and groups still stand.

Supt. McConnell's recently announced plans to return to Berkeley for his doctorate calls for the congratulations and good wishes of the community. His commitment to educational and professional advancement must take precedence over our hopes that he would remain. Rather than continue to express regret at his resignation, we should be grateful that Mill Valley's schools have had nine good years of growth and improvement under his guidance.

The People's Schools column discussed speculations that Mr. McConnell's decision might not be his own. Insofar as they were based on my statements, these inferences were in error. I have never said or believed the decision to be other than his. It was obviously a complex one into which many factors entered.

May I object mildly to being described as "often a critic of district policies and practices"? In 1959 my family and I chose Mill Valley as our permanent home largely because of what we knew and liked about its schools. My concern lies not with present policies but rather with the many recent decisions and discussions by our school board which appear to foreshadow drastic changes in the whole shape and purpose of our public schools, regardless of parent preferences.

As Bryce Anderson has said in many ways in his fine column—more than any other institution, our schools must continue to belong to the people.

Fusselman Gets Some Knocking

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The naivete of ex-Supervisor Fusselman's column of Dec. 30 gets my "brickbat." If one believes that the "economic development" of Marin should be promoted, can one believe that "the production of local events — design, construction and manning of floats and parade units," police escorted bus caravans to San Francisco's City Hall, etc., etc., really does promote economic development? Or that the mutually laudatory speeches of important political personages at City Hall and the ensuing luncheon does anything more than perpetuate that warm air in which lesser politicians flourish?

It seems to me that whatever economic development occurs in Marin will result from the purchasing power of its residents, and from whatever real economic advantages it may have to offer to business or industry. No amount of Mr. Fusselman's "great days" of hoopla could (or should) influence and intelligent entrepreneur. Once again, I'm thankful for his retirement from political office. Maybe the county government is beginning to grow up a little.

Work Of Health Dept. Praised

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Amidst the increasing furor and public awareness of inefficiency within many of the public agencies that serve us, we would like to report our impression of one that is above reproach. All three of us are residents of Marin County, who have almost completed our medical school training. For a period of approximately one month we have been observing and helping in the Marin County Health Department. Working with a small budget, and paying the lowest salaries in the state, the department carries out a variety of activities, including tuberculosis screening, venereal disease clinics and control, health education in the schools, vaccination clinics, and the control of rabies within the county. In addition, the department includes a sanitation division and a team of public health nurses, who perform a variety of needed tasks.

But it was the attitude and spirit of the department's employees that struck us the most. Each member, from the medical director, Dr. Carolyn Albrecht, down to the secretaries, is proud of his role in protecting the public health, and performs his tasks with competence and efficiency. As taxpayers ourselves, we are especially happy to see that small portion of our tax dollar being so well spent.

Teachers Union May Have Much To Learn

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Seems to me that the teacher's union has something to learn; or, more specifically shall we say—certain members of a committee of this union, who presume to represent teachers, but, fortunately, do not represent the viewpoint of many of them, although they irresponsibly use the money of these teachers to do strange acts.

Would a labor union tell the company trustees (Board), who to hire and, or fire as president (superintendent) and vice president (assistant superintendent) of the company? Would they, furthermore, publicly single out, name, and criticize a member of the trustees; and then, tell the stockholders (the public), who and who not to reelect to the board of trustees of the company? And finally, would they presume to tell these same trustees and the officers of the company how to make and assemble their products and with what materials? Most assuredly they would not.

If they did so, their prestige and bargaining powers would evaporate to zero. No established and responsible company would stand for such nonsense and impudence. The jurisdiciton of a union begins and ends with working conditions and salaries. The administration and supervision and decisions of the establishment, company, or school are not their area of responsibility.

Teaching is and should be an honorable profession. It should include a thorough grounding in the Constitution, the American way of life, and the balance of authority on all fronts. Seems to me that the members of above committee need to go back to school; an American school if possible. Their training must have slipped up somewhere.

Misconception Of Yule Spirit

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Undoubtedly your Christmas Eve editorial, "Merry Christmas to All," reflects a serious attempt to convey the spirit of the season, an annual rebirth of the spirit of love, even for those with whom you disagree.

Unfortunately, your piece rests on a fundamental misconception. Far from "trying to kick Christ out of Christmas," we are trying to keep alive the very tolerance and love that are basic, not only to Christianity, but to other philosophies that have served to unify mankind behind the goals of peace and understanding. Our basic position is that man has enough inherent goodness and reason to talk out his differences and to tolerate dissent without having to resort to suppression.

The American Civil Liberties Union was not, and is not, opposed to creches, carols, or Santa Claus. It is opposed only to the use of public property or public funds to support an essentially denominational approach to an attitude espoused with equal validity by Jews, Buddhists, Confucianists, atheists and others. The necessity to separate church and state was recognized almost two hundred years ago by the authors of the Bill of Rights; the principle is as valid now as it was then.

The identification of the public weal with a specific denomination or creed is a move toward totalitarianism, and it is, we submit, a Christian step to recognize that there may be more than one road that can lead to the kind of brotherhood preached by Christ. Most ACLU members enjoy carols and appreciate love and compassion at least as much as their critics; no one could agree more with your final editorial statement: "PEACE ON EARTH, GOOD WILL TOWARD ALL MEN."

Academic, Religious Freedom In Conflict?

Editor, Independent-Journal:

When a teacher leads a class in singing Christmas carols the cry of religion in the schools is immediately raised. But when another teacher assigns reading which is repulsive to Christian standards, he finds a valid defense in academic freedom. A professor of psychology in a tax supported university tells his pupils "if you believe you have a soul you may check it outside the door" and then proceeds with an atheistic presentation of his subject. But a religiously oriented course is prohibited by law, and any defense of academic freedom would be in vain. It would seem that academic freedom, a concept so dear to the teaching profession, is a one way street. It is available to attackers but not defenders of religion.

The American people certainly believe in justice and fair play, but sit idly by while academic freedom makes a mockery of both. Justice and fair play demand that if one side of a controversial subject is presented, then presentation of the other should also be allowed. To those who say that this would open the door to teaching religion in the schools—there is another alternative. Let academic freedom be so construed that it cannot be invoked in controversial matters where the law forbids rebuttal. Justice and fair play also demand that unless both sides may be heard, the issue be not raised.

A legal point is involved too. Teaching which assails religious values is just as much a breach of the wall of separation between church and state as is teaching of those values themselves. Anti-religious teaching is in fact religious teaching. Modern secularism, athiesm, humanism and the like are just as much religious in fact as Christianity and Judaism, and if the latter two cannot be taught, neither can any of the former. Perhaps it is too much to expect that some day the American Civil Liberties Union will get around to intervening in the courts on behalf of Christian and Jewish parents who dispute the right of the schools to subvert the religion of their children by secularistic and humanistic teaching, just as they are now doing on behalf of athiestic parents who object to Christmas carols or baccalaureate services. But one can always hope. When the Supreme Court so interprets the Constitution as requiring strict neutrality in religion, it means strict neutrality—not presenting an anti-religious view and foreclosing any rebuttal.

Although two Marin Court incidents are mentioned in the first paragraph hereof, no reflection on any particular school system is intended. It is our basic philosophy of education which is involved—the concept of academic freedom as a one way street vis-a-vis fair play, justice and our Constitutional guarantees of religious freedom.

No Replacement For Americanism

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Dear and Glorious Editor: Like Gordon Strawbridge (Readers Say Jan. 3, 1967) I have my own human fraility of not being able to resist my comments when I read a letter like his at this Season or any other season. I plead guilty to having written in and gratefully seeing my letter reach your press not too long ago; but longer ago than Gordon's second to the last.

Please, please print this letter and if you deem it necessary as punishment for wearing out my welcome to such a fine paper as the I-J to chop off my subscription for criminy sakes at least allow this beaten down taxpayer your Friday edition. Bill Fusselman's County Comments is in it and really it's a must with our family and good friends. By golly! when Bill knows he is right he dares to say it.

Poor unhappy Gordon, I can only believe he would have liked to have found in his Xmas sock the I-J headlines "U. S. A. accepts Russia's captive Cong's peace treaty." The communist / socialist define peace as obliteration of all resistance to Soviet domination. Oh Socialism / Communism thy name is treachery, deceit, slavery and hell.

How come Gordon you object to our warriors in Vietnam being properly supplied with the necessary munitions to protect themselves and win this war? There is no substitute that can possibly take the place of Americanism.

Fire Protection Is Not Adequate

Editor, Independent-Journal:

On this past Monday (Jan. 2) a fire in my neighborhood drastically pointed out to me, and other residents of upper Terra Linda Valley, just how ineffective our fire protection is. We are located within the boundaries of the City of San Rafael and pay taxes to that city for fire protection. Monday's house fire on Del Ganado Road illustrated that it required an estimated 12 to 15 minutes after the fire was reported, for the first San Rafael fire truck to arrive on the scene. The lady making what was obviously the initial report, after giving the street intersection nearest the house on fire, reportedly was told, "But lady, I've got to have an address." Hopefully there was no significant delay in attempting to determine just where along this dead end street a roaring fire could be located. I have heard the ludicrous arguments of "jurisdiction" given but are we to be denied our rightful fire protection while the fire fighters "flip coins" or bring out the protractors and a county map?

It is understood that the Terra Linda Community Services District Fire Department offered its services but was refused by the San Rafael dispatcher. Why it is not possible for the fire department nearest to a reported or observed fire to undertake the task of attempting to extinguish it? There may very well be a life involved. Doctors have a code whereby they will take all necessary steps to preserve life. Why can't the firemen get together and work out a solution to protect endangered life and/or property?

Firemen initially arriving at the scene of Monday's fire reportedly showed ineptness in dealing with the fire. They failed to use a source of water on the truck which should have been available for instant use, but chose to run a hose to a nearby fireplug. This left firemen holding a nozzle "at the ready" while waiting for the hose to be connected. The hose subsequently kinked and a nozzle evidently improperly screwed on, leaked profusely.

Ironically, the San Rafael Fire Department is hosting a conference of Northern California firefighters from Jan. 13 through 15 where proper firefighting techniques will be discussed and equipment demonstrated. I trust that San Rafael's Department will provide the students and not the instructors for these sessions.

When April 10 comes around and the citizens of San Rafael are voting for a mayor and two councilmen, the residents of this and other outlying portions of San Rafael would do well to remember the "step-child treatment" received in the lack of adequate fire protection and other matters, to include landscaping the Freitas Parkway drainage ditch.

Allen-Scott Column Draws Objections

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I must object to the Allen-Scott "Inside Washington" column in the I-J for Dec. 28, which used a McCarthyish trick to associate the peace movement, the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), and the Emergency Civil Liberties Committee (ECLC) with the Communist Party of the U.S.A. (CPUSA)

SNCC is now emphasizing "black power." Whatever controversy there may be over the emphasis, the core of the idea is clear: That American Negroes must strive for political power—as other minorities have—rather than relying primarily on legal and moral persuasion in the white community. As Allen and Scott admit, CPUSA merely "accepts" this idea with reservations.

Stokeley Carmichael, chairman of SNCC, last April accepted election to the National Council of ECLC, a group of 104 citizens from 20 states which for 15 years has given "uncompromising support for the Bill of Rights." Among the scores of persons whose liberties have been defended by ECLC more have been non-Communists than Communists, and more white than Negro. Mr. Carmichael's joining the work of ECLC (of which I have the good fortune to be a vice chairman) shows his commitment to civil rights for all.

Allen and Scott close with the old chestnut that ECLC has been called a Communist front by the House Committee on Un-American Activities. This committee is a small group of hysterical Congressmen described by President Truman as "the most un-American thing in America today."

40 Years Of Service By Marin Rod-Gun Club

The Marin Rod and Gun Club, which will celebrate with its annual banquet on Jan. 28, has completed 40 years of active conservation work, both on the county and state levels.

For four decades, the club has been the voice of sportsmen, fighting for conservation of fish and wildlife and advocating strict enforcement of fish and game laws and compliance with rules of safety.

One of its primary interests has been youth work. It has donated funds to be used by the county schools to instill in youngsters respect and appreciation of nature. For years, the club sponsored courses on gun safety for youth. It also ran skeet, trap shooting and running deer ranges to improve skill and teach weapons safety.

Marin Rod and Gun Club members went to bat for the sportsmen, protecting abalone off the Marin coast from commercial intrusion and reserving striped bass fishing exclusively for sports fishermen.

The club has also been active in supporting state efforts for the propagation of both fish life and wildlife, such as fish planting operations.

At one time, the club raised and released wild pheasants to replenish the stock in Marin.

In Sacramento, the Marin Rod and Gun Club has the reputation of being the leading and most effective voice for sportsmen throughout the state. In conservation matters, it has often carried the battle for the entire state.

It was instrumental in getting appropriations from the state Wildlife Conservation Board for access facilities like the boat launching ramps at Miller Park on Tomales Bay and on the Petaluma River at Black Point.

The club's recreational facilities at San Quentin Point have been enhanced in recent years with expansion of the clubhouse and development of a small boat launching ramp.

It stood shoulder to shoulder with the Marin Conservation League in battling for Samuel P. Taylor State Park. The first restroom facilities at the park were built with volunteer labor and materials provided by the Marin Rod and Gun Club.

In 1964, it was one of the leaders in the formation of the Marin Conservation Council. The club supported the $150 million state beaches and parks bond issue in the 1964 election.

The club and its auxiliary were outspoken in fighting to "Save the Bay" from indiscriminate filling.

The fact that Marin is one of the beauty spots of the state and a mecca for the hiker, picnicker and sportsman is due in large part to the Marin Rod and Gun Club's 40 years of sustained effort.

We join the community in saluting the club at its 40th annual banquet.

THE HOME IS A SPRINGBOARD TO WORLD RENEWAL

A breathtaking change for the better would take place if the restorative powers of tens of millions of homes could be tapped and applied to every sphere of influence!

In 1874, Benjamin Disraeli summed it up in these words:

"The best security for civilization is the dwelling, and upon proper and becoming dwellings depends more than anything else the improvement of mankind."

Fathers and mothers are in a unique position. Others can assist them, but nobody can fully replace them.

Do everything you can from and through the home to refresh and nourish a world that grows stale and directionless when neglected by the home.

By wholeheartedly cooperating with God's many graces, married couples enrich and strengthen: (1) their deepening love for each other; (2) their children's total development; and (3) the welfare of humanity itself.

"Let each one of you love his wife as himself, and let the wife see that she respects her husband." (Ephesians 5:33)

Fill all families with Your love, O Father, and let their spiritual power help refresh the world.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—Gov. Ronald Reagan's inaugural address was general in outlining his future course of activity, but it did indicate, as Reagan has said all along, there will be some new outlooks in Sacramento in the next four years.

Emphasized in the remarks he made to the people of the state was the principle that government is for the people and by the people. This precept has grown foggy over the past few years, with the intrusions of government into the lives of the people and the continued grab for power engendered by the bureaucracies built within the government structure.

Primarily the thing that interests taxpayers is the rise in government expenditures and their consequent burden on the people who pay the bills. Of this problem, Reagan said:

"WE ARE GOING to squeeze and cut and trim until we reduce the cost of government. It won't be easy, nor will it be pleasant, and it will involve every department of government, starting with the governor's office."

Regarding additional taxes, Reagan declared that "we turn to additional sources of revenue only if it becomes clear that economies alone can not balance the budget."

The governor said it is the people's right to know all the facts concerning their state business, and promised that when his independent audit is completed, the facts will be available to the people.

"WE WILL PUT our fiscal house in order," the new governor declared. "And as we do, we will build those things we need to make our state a better place to live and we will enjoy them more, knowing we can afford them and that they are paid for.

"The time has come for us to decide whether collectively we can afford everything and anything we think of simply because we think of it. The time has come to run a check to see if all the services government provides were in answer to the demands or were just goodies dreamed up for our supposed betterment. The time has come to match outgo to income, instead of doing it the other way around."

FUNDAMENTALLY, the new governor outlined in effect what should have been done a long time ago. Had the principles expressed in his speech been followed in government, rather than the theories that government is the giver of all good things, the state would not find itself now in a fiscal situation which, unless drastic steps are taken, is bound to result in additional burdens on the people.

Governor Reagan has laid out a job for himself and for his administration, which never yet has been accomplished.

WHETHER THE JOB is done or not remains to be seen. Right now, not much more can be done than to laud Reagan in his efforts to restore government to the hands of the citizens of the state. He faces heavy odds, but even heavy odds have been overcome.

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Your editorial of Dec. 20, Blind Opposition Can Scuttle Needed Freeway, seems to indicate that you have never clearly understood the motives or the actions of the alliance opposing the freeway.

Quite simply, we HAD to stop a crude, deceptive, political stampede. Obviously the planning commission and certain important public officials have known for two years, exactly what the construction and impact of such a vast roadway entailed. The general public clearly has not.

Suddenly this awesome project materialized before us. And before we could possibly appraise the need or effect of this project, we were told that the decision on its route would be made in barely a month's time.

To compound, and we suspect to capitalize upon, our confusion, a series of separated, small gatherings were organized to explain the freeway to the public. Only because a few of us took the trouble to follow the speaking team from group to group and area to area, did it become apparent that the public was not being honestly informed. Each group was being told a slightly different, but more soothing, story.

As a direct consequence of this partial and conflicting public education program, there occurred an unfortunate, divisive and ill-advised scramble by some groups to strike out in blind panic, and to go screaming to have the freeway put in this or that area, to avoid getting stuck with it themselves. In short, the old ploy of divide and conquer was likely to achieve its devastating effect among the people.

That is the reason the leaders of the organized groups met to compare notes, and to find a way to stop the bitter, divisive wave that was threatening to engulf us all.

We have NEVER entertained any rancor toward the personnel of the State Division of Highways. Many of us made that quite clear in our presentations on Dec. 8. We know that they were requested to make the study, and appreciate the fact that they expended considerable effort in studying and developing so many alternate routes.

Our quarrel is with the political proponents of the freeway, who kept us in the dark so long, and who then tried to force a decision on it, so suddenly. And, had we not realized what was being done to us, and had we not fought for more time to study the alternatives, today we would have been irrevocably committed to a freeway that would not be constructed for many years.

Through our efforts, we have bought time to study and consider our future transportation problems and needs. We have prevented our public officials from committing us to a very important project with very far-reaching effects. We rose to the occasion with remarkable swiftness, and we acted with a genuine concern for the rights and welfare of all areas of Marin County. As merely one concerned member of the alliance, I apologize to no one for what we accomplished.

Highway 4 Like A Live Grenade

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Last week my wife, Margaret, had the dubious distinction of being apprehended in downtown Mill Valley by two motorcycle officers of the California Highway Patrol. Two, mind you! . . .

Margaret was cited for having too many passengers in her car. (There were four children in our venerable Austin-Healey.) She was guilty as sin! I have no doubt that this crowd obstructed her vision and I hope the citation taught her a lesson. (Whatever the size of the car, I get jumpy with one child.)

She was also warned to repair the defective horn and windshield wiper (Guilty!) and replace the burnt-out brake light bulb (Guilty!). (Actually, I feel the burden of the guilt on these counts.) In the same warning was included the observation that the license plates were less than 12 inches off the ground. On this latter point, I am inclined to the position that the car is guilty. It has been on the highways since 1954, (the A-100 won the Le Mans in its day), and I suspect that age has resulted in a certain inevitable slouch . . .

I do have a minor axe to grind. If there be indication here that we have indeed a surplus of highway patrolmen, may I respectfully suggest that there be additional assignments on Highway 4 on which I drive to and from work in Pittsburg each day? I get the cold chills from cars passing illegally on the right—and the left—and attempting to pass as many as seven cars in a row at speeds up to 80 mile per hour (my estimate) on two-lane curves. (The last one I saw resulted in a three-car injury accident.) I have learned to drive that route as if sitting on a live grenade—and I have yet to see a citation taking place.

Enough of my petty grievance! After Margaret's citation, she was blocked in her parking space for what seemed an extended period while one of the officers tried repeatedly to start the engine on his "bike." (The children were intimidated enough to manage to keep straight faces.) I, however, am concerned that our highway patrolmen (bless them) are working with defective equipment. When they are needed in an emergency, I would not like to think they were delayed by inadequate maintenance.

Route Argument Is Puzzling One

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I have been puzzled about the recent Highway 17 extension hassle. The state engineers have come with several proposals for an extension of a freeway to the National Seashore and apparently prefer the central route, which appears to be the longest and much more costly.

This route would follow along the Miracle Mile between San Rafael and San Anselmo, east of Red Hill, up through Sequoia Park and out over White's Hill to the vicinity of Olema. There the project ends. How close to the National Seashore is that? My map says it is only about halfway.

Seems to me that a few land owners, speculators or promoters are more selfishly interested in getting easy access to their properties than in providing a freeway for the benefit of vacationers and tourists and to the detriment of numerous thriving businesses and home owners who have lived and worked in Marin County for years and have had to pay increasing taxes through those years.

IN THE LIBRARY of a Franciscan monastery in western Pennsylvania, discloses the Catholic Digest, there stands a large safe. For the convenience of priests who may have forgotten the combination, a set of detailed instructions for opening the safe is posted conspicuously on the door. But don't underestimate the intelligence of the Franciscans. The instructions are entirely in Latin.

"IS THIS town's water pure?" demanded a cautious tourist of the innkeeper. "Sure is," nodded the innkeeper. "First we filter it, then we take the iron out of it, then we add numerous chemicals to it—and then we drink beer."

Later, the same tourist asked, "Any night life in this Godforsaken hole?" "Gotta admit there ain't," sighed the deflated innkeeper. "She left for Boston last week."

Coming Year To Be Crucial One For Johnson's Political Future

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is heading into his toughest year so far although 1967 doesn't promise to be a very exciting year by itself.

Yet, what happens in 1967 — and what happens to Johnson and what he makes happen — may determine whether he will seek re-election in 1968.

BUT EVENTS by themselves, unless Johnson makes some wretched mistakes in handling them, may not be the dominant factor in his decision to run again or in the Democrats' decision to make him their candidate again.

A very important factor and perhaps the most important one in the end — although hardly anything is being said about it now — is the kind of candidate the Republicans pick for their nominee in 1968.

It was extremely important when President Harry S. Truman ran against New York's Thomas E. Dewey and beat him in 1948.

Like Johnson after the death of President John F. Kennedy, when Truman took over after the death of President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1945, he rocked along on a great tide of sympathy and goodwill for a while.

GRADUALLY, his troubles piled up. The cold war began and at home, as a result of the war, there were shortages in food and housing. As his troubles multiplied, his popularity went down. Price controls became a national irritant. As they gradually fell apart, inflation roared through the roof.

And this was the result: In the off-year elections of 1946 the Republicans for the first time since 1928 gained control of both House and Senate. His troubles with the Republican-run Congress became so intense that they evoked new sympathy for Truman, although not much, it seemed.

So, when the Democrats nominated him for a full term in 1948, they did so without much enthusiasm. Against Dewey he looked like a sure loser right up until half-way through election night.

THEN CAME his truly tremendous and troublesome years: The creation of NATO, the Korean War, the assaults by Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy. But if his standing with the electorate seemed low, it was anything but that with historians.

In 1962, 10 years after he left left the White House, a poll of 75 historians placed him among the near great among the presidents with the reservation that future historians might well list him with the great ones.

The popularity of Johnson's new presidency sailed through 1964, climaxed by an overwhelming victory over his Republican challenger, Sen. Barry Goldwater, who unwittingly aided and abetted Johnson's victory by being way out of step with his times, as the voters showed.

Then, in 1965, with the help of his Democratic-run Congress, Johnson reached new heights: He got through the greatest batch of major legislation in one year in American history.

NEVERTHELESS, it was in 1965 that Johnson began to undermine his own popularity by the firm, strong stand he took in putting the United States up to its neck in the war in Vietnam.

But it wasn't until 1966 that the edge of his popularity wore off and the public opinion polls continually showed his prestige with the people going down.

It was in the off-year elections of 1966 — just as in the case of Truman in 1948 — that the popularity of Johnson's leadership landed in the basement. The Republicans, while not regaining control of Congress, won enough seats to cut down Democratic control.

EVEN WITHIN his own party and particularly among governors, Johnson's leadership was attacked. And Congress in 1967 may spend more time examining some of the Johnson programs already on the books than in approving new ones.

Therefore, this does not look like a very creative year in Congress. But it is in this year, with the Vietnamese war continuing, that Johnson must start rebuilding his political future if he hopes for the presidency again.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

Demo Lawmaker Hits LBJ Fiscal Juggling

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON—Sen. Vance Hartke, a leading Democratic member of the influential Finance Committee, is bluntly charging that the Johnson administration is "concealing the skyrocketing costs of the Vietnam war in an effort not to exceed the nation's legal debt limit ($330 billion)."

The cost of the conflict and concurrent foreign aid program in Southeast Asia, the Indianan asserts, is running around $3 billion a month. This immense outlay is almost double that "officially admitted by the Budget Bureau."

THE TREASURY'S policy of siphoning into the general fund huge amounts from other funds voted by Congress for specific purposes was caustically characterized by Hartke as "piggy-bank financing."

Cited as an example is what is happening to the Highway Trust Fund.

"The Budget Bureau has instructed the Bureau of Public Roads to release to the states some $3.3 billion of federal gasoline and highway user taxes, instead of the $4.4 billion authorized by Congress for the construction of primary roads and limited access highways," said Hartke. "The Public Roads Bureau, in turn, has been advised to report to the states that the cutback is 'in recognition of the need for reducing non-military expenditures as a contribution to the Vietnam effort, and the resultant program to reduce inflationary pressures'."

"The administration's financial juggling," Hartke continued, "is very reminiscent of that of a little neighbor lady in Stendal, Ind., a coal mining town in which I lived as a boy. She put her egg money in a sugar bowl, and other small sums earmarked for various household expenses she placed in other homely hiding places—a teapot, a coffee can, even in the pages of the family Bible.

"WHEN SHE NEEDED a sum of money for a pair of shoes, or some other purchase, she would borrow a few coins from the teapot, a dollar bill from the Bible, and the rest perhaps from the piggy-bank. And while doing that, she would tell the sugar bowl, the teapot and the other receptacles that they would never miss the money."

Hartke cited the $1.1 billion in "participation certificates" put on sale by the Treasury this week. Of this total, $500 million will be bought by the government's own Trust Fund, and $600 million offered to public buyers.

"Thus with the stroke of a pen," said Hartke, "the budget deficit for the current fiscal year will be reduced by $1.1 billion.

"THE AIM IS to mislead the public and Congress as to the real state of the government's expenditures and finances," asserted Hartke.

ANSWER: Bid one heart.

The had is too stong for a shutout bid in first or second position. Your partner may easily have the right cards to assure a slam, but he will not bid if you open with four hearts.

This risk is much smaller when partner has passed, and you may open with four hearts in third or fourth position

Today's hand comes from the files of a Beverly Hills psychiatrist with the consent of the patient, now healthy and sane—if you can use those words in describing a television producer.

Patient A. B. played the hand in his ace-grabbing days.

West led the king of spades, and our patient took the ace at once. He cashed the ace of diamonds and led another spade, hoping to ruff his third spade in dummy.

East returned a trump, of course, and South eventually lost two spades and two clubs.

HEALTHY COMMENT

"I wouldn't play the hand that way anymore," ahealthy A. G. comments. "I would just refuse to win the first trick with the ace of spades."

That assures the contract.

If the defenders take two clubs and then lead a spade, South can ruff his third spade in dummy.

If they lead a trump instead of a spade, South draws trumps and clears the ace of diamonds out of the way. The he leads a spade to dummy's ace and discards the last spade on the king of diamonds.

"Playing an ace too quickly is a symptom of regressive hostility coupled with a tendency toward dandruff," comments the psychiatrist, closing his file on A. G.

A man can't be too careful.

Success Of Grocery Pickets In Marin County Questioned

The last of one year and the first of another, it is customary to take stock of the past and see what progress has been made. One of the campaigns that needs to be examined at this time of the year is the one the housewives carried on for lower grocery prices.

Perhaps in some parts of the country it did succeed, but I have my doubts abouts its success in Marin County where competition keeps prices about as low as possible. The main campaign was centered on the principle that if the stores abolish trading stamps and give-away games, they could lower their prices.

Toward this end, the housewives did picket some stores. I did not however, see the stores suffering from a lack of business during this time.

HOWEVER, SOME stores did stop with their give-away games which took some of the sport out of buying and a feeling that one did not have to go to Nevada to play a game of bingo or play the races.

Now, as I walk around the stores, I cannot see any decrease in the price of groceries. I do not get a chance to win something on the free games, but I still get the trading stamps.

With my service station, it is a different matter. They cut out the give-away game and the stamps both. Instead of lowering the price of gasoline, they raised it two cents a gallon.

Somehow or other, I have a feeling that if the housewives had let well enough alone that the competition would have kept the price of gasoline down and I still might have a chance at a big prize. But alas it is not so now.

A 10-YEAR-OLD Novato boy was one of the first to sample the kind of public relations which the state will get from its new governor. He is Tim Van Gronigan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Casey Van Gronigan of 1627 Center Road. His parents had taken him to Sacramento to see the capital building and governor's mansion on New Year's Day. Governor-elect Ronald Reagan was moving into the mansion that day and news photographers were all over the place.

But in all the confusion, Tim could play with the Reagan children and their dog. The Governor-elect himself posed for pictures with Tim taken by a photographer from a Sacramento paper.

And to think that all was on the day preceding the midnight swearing in ceremonies.

AT A NOVATO Chamber of Commerce luncheon last week, tribute was being paid to everyone who had anything to do with the very attractive Nativity scene which was displayed on the corner of Highway 101 and Grant Avenue.

In case anyone missed it, it drew attention from all over, both the people who live in the area and those driving through the city.

In all of the tribute paying and back patting, someone mentioned that there were some very important contributors to the attraction that had not been mentioned.

"Who?" someone asked.

It was the four ewes that had lambs during the time of the display.

Would you believe . . . that the afternoon bridge group of the Novato Newcomers Club meets in the morning?

What The Younger Generation Suffers From—A Bad Press

I JUST RAN into Ebenezer Scrooge, and we both agreed that the trouble with the festive spirit that begins about the week before Christmas and ends with the New Year is that, like a summer cold, it's so hard to shake off.

"Knocks blazes out of my business," said Ebenezer. "Why, sometimes I can't bring myself to foreclose the mortgage on a widow and her six starving children until Jan. 15, when the final installment on last year's income tax is due."

I know just how Ebenezer feels. Here, after my furlough, I'm back in battle array with my six-shooters loaded and I should be taking pot-shots at some of the not-so-credible pronouncements the administration has already made in the brief life of 1967.

The President, for example, assures us the new year will provide both better guns and yummier butter; and the welfare secretary boasts that the anti-poverty program, instituted in 1964, has so far removed 3,400,000 from the poverty rolls.

NORMALLY, such whoppers would bring my thundering jeremiads down on the heads of the offenders. But that Yuletide hangover is still with me and I fear I'll need another week to round into form.

Instead, I find I want to say something in defense of the much-maligned younger generation, aged 18 to 32, of whom I saw quite a bit during the holidays. In fact, since my son and his bride were here for the fortnight, this normally staid house is still swinging from the echoes of the various reunions.

I had been led to expect, from learned dissertations by so-called experts, that this was a melancholy, introspective group who despised their elders and found their standards horrendously shocking, full of lies and hypocrisy; and whose every moment was preoccupied with the dread that a nuclear holocaust, our legacy, would envelop them.

DON'T YOU BELIEVE it. What the younger generation suffers from is a bad press, given it by savants who spend their days observing the activities of the abnormal few and conclude, in magazine articles and TV documentaries, that everybody is like that.

But everybody isn't. There is surely more to Berkeley than the Free Speech Movement. Indeed, I met several graduate students who told me they live off-campus because they do not care to be quartered in a place where the loudmouthed unwashed of the New Left rule by default and make the nights hideous with their pot and LSD parties. "Many?" I asked. "No," said a new bride, "but how many skunks does it take to stink a place up?"

SO I DISAGREE with the specialists. I found the younger generation a thoroughly gay and vigorous group which enjoys life to the hilt even if it lives in the shadow of the volcano. They have manners and wash behind their ears, conformist though that may be. And they do not regard the Ten Commandments or the Constitution or even their parents as utterly outworn institutions which have made their existence totally unbearable.

I watched particularly the class of '56—my son's—whose median age was 31 and some of whom I have known since they were Cub Scouts. Most of them have done their army hitch, and have been married about a year or two.

THEY ARE — Republicans or Democrats—extremely interested in making good in their careers, and taking care of their wives and children. They are doctors, lawyers, journalists, physicists businessmen and budding politicos. And one and all have a wholesome respect for their community and their country, and would like to be respected members thereof.

And if that is being "bourgeois" and "non-involved," let the unwashed of the New Left make the most of it. I think, by and large, we oldsters have nothing to be ashamed of—and a good deal to be proud of—in the generation we begot.

Catching Up On WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Route 17 Not The Real Answer

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I was very disappointed in the negative tone of your editorial on Dec. 20 regarding Highway 17.

Most of us who have attended the hearings have been concerned not only with our own area but with Marin County as a whole. We have taken many hours away from our families to attend not one but many meetings and hearings. We have looked at maps, asked questions and given opinions. We have gone home and not been able to sleep, mulling the problems over and over in our thoughts. Of course we have been emotional, or we would not have bothered to involve ourselves!

We have given constructive criticism with preferences and alternates to our Board of Supervisors. We requested a study of a rapid transit or transportation system for the whole county. We have also requested that a change in legislation be initiated to divert some gas tax monies to help pay for this system. We have asked for an answer to bay crossings. The real bottleneck is on Highway 101 at Mill Valley and Corte Madera, however we were told that the Division of Highways has plans for it in two years or so. We would like to see a scenic parkway to Point Reyes, but not through heavily populated areas. We have admited that Sir Francis Drake Boulevard should be widened, and were told this will be done in five years. This will alleviate our internal traffic problems. We do not need an $85 million dollar freeway to do this.

Actually the Board of Supervisors and the Marin County Planning Commission were abused and berated far more than the highway engineers. But not unjustly, for we wanted answers to the above before allowing the state to adopt a route.

The newly formed Sequoia-Hillsdale Homes Assn. has worked hard to inform the home owners in this area of all the public meetings and hearings so that they could go and listen and make up their own minds. We have informed them of the massive disruption of their community, of the number of businesses and homes that would be demolished and of the inevitable increase in property taxes due to a freeway being constructed in a heavily populated area. Yes, we have spoken loud and clear and will continue to do so!

Freeways and progress are not always synonymous — this too, can be dangerous thinking.

School's Chief Resignation His

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Bryce Anderson's The People's Schools continues to be excellent, from informing on state-wide trends to probing the mysteries of the Mill Valley school situation.

The "keep McConnell" drive discussed in his Dec. 22 column has failed as a drive, but the many spontaneous expressions from various individuals and groups still stand.

Supt. McConnell's recently announced plans to return to Berkeley for his doctorate calls for the congratulations and good wishes of the community. His commitment to educational and professional advancement must take precedence over our hopes that he would remain. Rather than continue to express regret at his resignation, we should be grateful that Mill Valley's schools have had nine good years of growth and improvement under his guidance.

The People's Schools column discussed speculations that Mr. McConnell's decision might not be his own. Insofar as they were based on my statements, these inferences were in error. I have never said or believed the decision to be other than his. It was obviously a complex one into which many factors entered.

May I object mildly to being described as "often a critic of district policies and practices"? In 1959 my family and I chose Mill Valley as our permanent home largely because of what we knew and liked about its schools. My concern lies not with present policies but rather with the many recent decisions and discussions by our school board which appear to foreshadow drastic changes in the whole shape and purpose of our public schools, regardless of parent preferences.

As Bryce Anderson has said in many ways in his fine column—more than any other institution, our schools must continue to belong to the people.

Fusselman Gets Some Knocking

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The naivete of ex-Supervisor Fusselman's column of Dec. 30 gets my "brickbat." If one believes that the "economic development" of Marin should be promoted, can one believe that "the production of local events — design, construction and manning of floats and parade units," police escorted bus caravans to San Francisco's City Hall, etc., etc., really does promote economic development? Or that the mutually laudatory speeches of important political personages at City Hall and the ensuing luncheon does anything more than perpetuate that warm air in which lesser politicians flourish?

It seems to me that whatever economic development occurs in Marin will result from the purchasing power of its residents, and from whatever real economic advantages it may have to offer to business or industry. No amount of Mr. Fusselman's "great days" of hoopla could (or should) influence and intelligent entrepreneur. Once again, I'm thankful for his retirement from political office. Maybe the county government is beginning to grow up a little.

Work Of Health Dept. Praised

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Amidst the increasing furor and public awareness of inefficiency within many of the public agencies that serve us, we would like to report our impression of one that is above reproach. All three of us are residents of Marin County, who have almost completed our medical school training. For a period of approximately one month we have been observing and helping in the Marin County Health Department. Working with a small budget, and paying the lowest salaries in the state, the department carries out a variety of activities, including tuberculosis screening, venereal disease clinics and control, health education in the schools, vaccination clinics, and the control of rabies within the county. In addition, the department includes a sanitation division and a team of public health nurses, who perform a variety of needed tasks.

But it was the attitude and spirit of the department's employees that struck us the most. Each member, from the medical director, Dr. Carolyn Albrecht, down to the secretaries, is proud of his role in protecting the public health, and performs his tasks with competence and efficiency. As taxpayers ourselves, we are especially happy to see that small portion of our tax dollar being so well spent.

Teachers Union May Have Much To Learn

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Seems to me that the teacher's union has something to learn; or, more specifically shall we say—certain members of a committee of this union, who presume to represent teachers, but, fortunately, do not represent the viewpoint of many of them, although they irresponsibly use the money of these teachers to do strange acts.

Would a labor union tell the company trustees (Board), who to hire and, or fire as president (superintendent) and vice president (assistant superintendent) of the company? Would they, furthermore, publicly single out, name, and criticize a member of the trustees; and then, tell the stockholders (the public), who and who not to reelect to the board of trustees of the company? And finally, would they presume to tell these same trustees and the officers of the company how to make and assemble their products and with what materials? Most assuredly they would not.

If they did so, their prestige and bargaining powers would evaporate to zero. No established and responsible company would stand for such nonsense and impudence. The jurisdiciton of a union begins and ends with working conditions and salaries. The administration and supervision and decisions of the establishment, company, or school are not their area of responsibility.

Teaching is and should be an honorable profession. It should include a thorough grounding in the Constitution, the American way of life, and the balance of authority on all fronts. Seems to me that the members of above committee need to go back to school; an American school if possible. Their training must have slipped up somewhere.

Misconception Of Yule Spirit

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Undoubtedly your Christmas Eve editorial, "Merry Christmas to All," reflects a serious attempt to convey the spirit of the season, an annual rebirth of the spirit of love, even for those with whom you disagree.

Unfortunately, your piece rests on a fundamental misconception. Far from "trying to kick Christ out of Christmas," we are trying to keep alive the very tolerance and love that are basic, not only to Christianity, but to other philosophies that have served to unify mankind behind the goals of peace and understanding. Our basic position is that man has enough inherent goodness and reason to talk out his differences and to tolerate dissent without having to resort to suppression.

The American Civil Liberties Union was not, and is not, opposed to creches, carols, or Santa Claus. It is opposed only to the use of public property or public funds to support an essentially denominational approach to an attitude espoused with equal validity by Jews, Buddhists, Confucianists, atheists and others. The necessity to separate church and state was recognized almost two hundred years ago by the authors of the Bill of Rights; the principle is as valid now as it was then.

The identification of the public weal with a specific denomination or creed is a move toward totalitarianism, and it is, we submit, a Christian step to recognize that there may be more than one road that can lead to the kind of brotherhood preached by Christ. Most ACLU members enjoy carols and appreciate love and compassion at least as much as their critics; no one could agree more with your final editorial statement: "PEACE ON EARTH, GOOD WILL TOWARD ALL MEN."

Academic, Religious Freedom In Conflict?

Editor, Independent-Journal:

When a teacher leads a class in singing Christmas carols the cry of religion in the schools is immediately raised. But when another teacher assigns reading which is repulsive to Christian standards, he finds a valid defense in academic freedom. A professor of psychology in a tax supported university tells his pupils "if you believe you have a soul you may check it outside the door" and then proceeds with an atheistic presentation of his subject. But a religiously oriented course is prohibited by law, and any defense of academic freedom would be in vain. It would seem that academic freedom, a concept so dear to the teaching profession, is a one way street. It is available to attackers but not defenders of religion.

The American people certainly believe in justice and fair play, but sit idly by while academic freedom makes a mockery of both. Justice and fair play demand that if one side of a controversial subject is presented, then presentation of the other should also be allowed. To those who say that this would open the door to teaching religion in the schools—there is another alternative. Let academic freedom be so construed that it cannot be invoked in controversial matters where the law forbids rebuttal. Justice and fair play also demand that unless both sides may be heard, the issue be not raised.

A legal point is involved too. Teaching which assails religious values is just as much a breach of the wall of separation between church and state as is teaching of those values themselves. Anti-religious teaching is in fact religious teaching. Modern secularism, athiesm, humanism and the like are just as much religious in fact as Christianity and Judaism, and if the latter two cannot be taught, neither can any of the former. Perhaps it is too much to expect that some day the American Civil Liberties Union will get around to intervening in the courts on behalf of Christian and Jewish parents who dispute the right of the schools to subvert the religion of their children by secularistic and humanistic teaching, just as they are now doing on behalf of athiestic parents who object to Christmas carols or baccalaureate services. But one can always hope. When the Supreme Court so interprets the Constitution as requiring strict neutrality in religion, it means strict neutrality—not presenting an anti-religious view and foreclosing any rebuttal.

Although two Marin Court incidents are mentioned in the first paragraph hereof, no reflection on any particular school system is intended. It is our basic philosophy of education which is involved—the concept of academic freedom as a one way street vis-a-vis fair play, justice and our Constitutional guarantees of religious freedom.

No Replacement For Americanism

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Dear and Glorious Editor: Like Gordon Strawbridge (Readers Say Jan. 3, 1967) I have my own human frailty of not being able to resist my comments when I read a letter like his at this Season or any other season. I plead guilty to having written in and gratefully seeing my letter reach your press not too long ago; but longer ago than Gordon's second to the last.

Please, please print this letter and if you deem it necessary as punishment for wearing out my welcome to such a fine paper as the I-J to chop off my subscription for crimmy sakes at least allow this beaten down taxpayer your Friday edition. Bill Fusselman's County Comments is in it and really it's a must with our family and good friends. By golly! when Bill knows he is right he dares to say it.

Poor unhappy Gordon. I can only believe he would have liked to have found in his Xmas sock the I-J headlines "U. S. A. accepts Russia's captive Cong's peace treaty." The communist / socialist define peace as obliteration of all resistance to Soviet domination. Oh Socialism / Communism thy name is treachery, deceit, slavery and hell.

How come Gordon you object to our warriors in Vietnam being properly supplied with the necessary munitions to protect themselves and win this war? There is no substitute that can possibly take the place of Americanism.

Fire Protection Is Not Adequate

Editor, Independent-Journal:

On this past Monday (Jan. 2) a fire in my neighborhood drastically pointed out to me, and other residents of upper Terra Linda Valley, just how ineffective our fire protection is. We are located within the boundaries of the City of San Rafael and pay taxes to that city for fire protection. Monday's house fire on Del Ganado Road illustrated that it required an estimated 12 to 15 minutes after the fire was reported, for the first San Rafael fire truck to arrive on the scene. The lady making what was obviously the initial report, after giving the street intersection nearest the house on fire, reportedly was told, "But lady, I've got to have an address." Hopefully there was no significant delay in attempting to determine just where along this dead end street a roaring fire could be located. I have heard the ludicrous arguments of "jurisdiction" given but are we to be denied our rightful fire protection while the fire fighters "flip coins" or bring out the protractors and a county map?

It is understood that the Terra Linda Community Services District Fire Department offered its services but was refused by the San Rafael dispatcher. Why it is not possible for the fire department nearest to a reported or observed fire to undertake the task of attempting to extinguish it? There may very well be a life involved. Doctors have a code whereby they will take all necessary steps to preserve life. Why can't the firemen get together and work out a solution to protect endangered life and/or property?

Firemen initially arriving at the scene of Monday's fire reportedly showed ineptness in dealing with the fire. They failed to use a source of water on the truck which should have been available for instant use, but chose to run a hose to a nearby fireplug. This left firemen holding a nozzle "at the ready" while waiting for the hose to be connected. The hose subsequently kinked and a nozzle evidently improperly screwed on, leaked profusely.

Ironically, the San Rafael Fire Department is hosting a conference of Northern California firefighters from Jan. 13 through 15 where proper firefighting techniques will be discussed and equipment demonstrated. I trust that San Rafael's Department will provide the students and not the instructors for these sessions.

When April 10 comes around and the citizens of San Rafael are voting for a mayor and two councilmen, the residents of this and other outlying portions of San Rafael would do well to remember the "step-child treatment" received in the lack of adequate fire protection and other matters, to include landscaping the Freitas Parkway drainage ditch.

Allen-Scott Column Draws Objections

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I must object to the Allen-Scott "Inside Washington" column in the I-J for Dec. 28, which used a McCarthyish trick to associate the peace movement, the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), and the Emergency Civil Liberties Committee (ECLC) with the Communist Party of the U.S.A. (CPUSA)

SNCC is now emphasizing "black power." Whatever controversy there may be over the emphasis, the core of the idea is clear: That American Negroes must strive for political power—as other minorities have—rather than relying primarily on legal and moral persuasion in the white community. As Allen and Scott admit, CPUSA merely "accepts" this idea with reservations.

Stokeley Carmichael, chairman of SNCC, last April accepted election to the National Council of ECLC, a group of 104 citizens from 20 states which for 15 years has given "uncompromising support for the Bill of Rights." Among the scores of persons whose liberties have been defended by ECLC more have been non-Communists than Communists, and more white than Negro. Mr. Carmichael's joining the work of ECLC (of which I have the good fortune to be a vice chairman) shows his commitment to civil rights for all.

Allen and Scott close with the old chestnut that ECLC has been called a Communist front by the House Committee on Un-American Activities. This committee is a small group of hysterical Congressmen described by President Truman as "the most un-American thing in America today."

Marin Magazine Spread Liked

Editor, Independent-Journal:

On Nov. 11, 1966, in your magazine section, you carried a two and a half page spread on our stables including photographs of all our facilities.

We wish to tell you how wonderfully we were treated by Robert Hax and Richard Lyttle. These men were very understanding and guided us through this story to perfection. The article was well written and the photographs well placed.

We will be forever grateful to these two fine men and the Independent-Journal. It is with our deepest thanks that we write you.

Church's Heathen Origins Questioned

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I hope that Lori Petri of Novato, whose letter was printed in your Jan. 3 issue, will write in again and enlighten us.

Would she be good enough to cite her sources most specifically for her statement, "There is not doubt that other customs and beliefs of the Christian Church were borrowed from heathen religions, such as the Virgin Birth and the Easter Resurrection"?

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 10, the 10th day of 1967 with 355 to follow.

The moon is new. The morning stars are Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Saturn, Jupiter and Venus.

Revolutionary war hero Ethan Allen was born on this day in 1738.

On this day in history:

In 1861, Florida seceded from the Union.

In 1946, delegates from 51 nations convened in London for the first session of the United Nations General Assembly.

In 1966, Indian Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri died at the age of 61. Death came only hours after he had signed a peace accord in the border dispute between India and Pakistan.

A Thought for the Day — U.S. Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes said: "Taxes are what we pay for civilized society."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Psychiatrist's Case History Teaches Lesson About Aces

The trouble with going out at night is that your children may be brought up by bad bridge players.

A man may be handicapped all his life because a nurse taught him to take an ace whenever he got the chance.

Today's hand comes from the files of a Beverly Hills psychiatrist with the consent of the patient, now healthy and sane—if you can use those words in describing a television producer.

Patient A. B. played the hand in his ace-grabbing days.

West led the king of spades, and our patient took the ace at once. He cashed the ace of diamonds and led another spade, hoping to ruff his third spade in dummy.

East returned a trump, of course, and South eventually lost two spades and two clubs.

HEALTHY COMMENT

"I wouldn't play the hand that way anymore," ahealthy A. G. comments. "I would just refuse to win the first trick with the ace of spades."

That assures the contract.

If the defenders take two clubs and then lead a spade, South can ruff his third spade in dummy.

If they lead a trump instead of a spade, South draws trumps and clears the ace of diamonds out of the way. The he leads a spade to dummy's ace and discards the last spade on the king of diamonds.

"Playing an ace too quickly is a symptom of regressive hostility coupled with a tendency toward dandruff," comments the psychiatrist, closing his file on A. G.

A man can't be too careful.

ANSWER: Bid one heart.

The had is too stong for a shutout bid in first or second position. Your partner may easily have the right cards to assure a slam, but he will not bid if you open with four hearts.

This risk is much smaller when partner has passed, and you may open with four hearts in third or fourth position

Welsh Demand Right

LONDON (UPI) —Hard core Welsh nationalists have never stopped demanding independence from Britain but now one of them, Gwynfor Evans, the only Welsh nationalist member of the British parliament, is upping the demands.

He told a meeting here "there is no reason Wales sould not be in the United Nations where there are 35 nations smaller than Wales. We want to be there. And we should be in the European Common Market as an autonomous entity."

You should know these FACTS about HOME BUYING in today's market . . . . .

RIGHT NOW IS A GOOD TIME TO BUY!

If you are waiting for prices to come down, you may have a long, disappointing wait. Economists predict a continuing rise in real estate prices. The same is true in interest rates. No decline is expected in the foreseeable future. All indications are that it will cost you more to buy the home you need if you wait.

REMEMBER: Multiple Listing is the fastest way to find the home of your choice . . . Ask your Realtor.

If you are waiting for prices to come down, you may have a long, disappointing wait. Economists predict a continuing rise in real estate prices. The same is true in interest rates. No decline is expected in the foreseeable future. All indications are that it will cost you more to buy the home you need if you wait.

REMEMBER: Multiple Listing is the fastest way to find the home of your choice . . . Ask your Realtor.

Reagan Balks At Blanket Clemency Plea

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan today declined to make a "blanket decision" on the fate of 59 condemned prisoners on San Quentin's death row.

The governor was asked at a news conference to comment on a demand by the American Civil Liberties Union that he use his powers of executive clemency to save all the prisoners.

He pointed out that all the prisoners now on Death Row were under court stays of execution and no execution dates had been set.

"I have no requests for executive clemency," he said. "Each case will be individually considered —they are all individuals — and I don't believe in making a blanket decision. I'll treat each one independently."

Fatal Air Crash Blamed On Drink

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Famed stunt pilot Paul Mantz, killed in a crash during filming of "The Flight of the Phoenix" in 1965, was flying under the influence of alcohol, according to a Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) report released yesterday.

Mantz, 61, died when his specially built $90,000 aircraft nosed over on the desert about 20 miles west of Yuma, Ariz.

The CAB listed the probable causes of the accident as:

"Impaired efficiency and judgment of the pilot caused by the consumption of alcohol.

Defense To Name Boston Strangler

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI)— A mental patient who claims he is the Boston strangler goes on trial today on sex, assault and burglary charges.

Albert H. De Salvo, 35, was being defended in Superior Court by noted criminal lawyer F. Lee Bailey, who in trial evidence plans to identify the crewcut onetime handyman as the Boston Strangler. The stranglings of 13 women have been attributed to the Strangler but no one has been charged with the killings.

Bailey made clear he does not seek De Salvo's freedom but wants him committed for life to a mental institution where he can be given adequate and competent psychiatric care.

Air Base Calls For Jobs Bidding

Bids on musical instruments will be opened at 3 p.m. Wednesday. Bids to repair roofs of several buildings will be opened at 2 p.m., Jan. 30, both at Hamilton. Bids to paint water tanks at the Mill Valley Air Force station will be opened at 2 p.m., Feb. 3, also at Hamilton.

High Court Rules On Cuba Passage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled unanimously today that a citizen who holds a generally valid passport cannot be criminally prosected for traveling to Cuba without government authorization.

At the same time the court upheld the government's right to declare certain foreign countries out of bounds.

But travel to these countries without specific authorization may not lead to criminal prosecution, Justice Abe Fortas said for the high court.

The ruling in two Cuba travel cases overturned the government's claim that Congress had made it a crime to travel to Cuba without authorization.

Fortas said the decision "rests entirely upon our construction of the relevant statutes and regulations."

"In short," the justice wrote, "the relevant State Department promulgations are not only devoid of a suggestion that travel to Cuba without a specifically criminal conduct, but they also contain positive suggestions that the purpose and effect of the restriction were merely to make clear that the passport was not to be regarded by the traveler in Cuba as a voucher on the protective services normally afforded by the State Department."

Last May the court ruled 6-3 that the secretary of state may refuse to grant passports to American citizens for travel to Cuba. At that time the court left open the question whether it is a crime to violate the travel restrictions.

That was the question decided today.

Planners Hit High Marin Home Density

Mill Valley Planning Commission unanimously recommended last night that the city council urge the county to immediately amend its zoning ordinance to prohibit all dwellings in agricultural areas.

Also, agricultural or open area zoning controls should be placed on all rural areas in the county, commissioners urged.

Their recommendations were in response to a report by ctiy Planning Director Harvey E. Bragdon that the preliminary regional plan just released by Assn. of Bay Area Gevernments shows present zoning in Marin County allows the highest density in the Bay Area except San Francisco.

Addition of four lots to the 18 already approved for a 23.5-acre subdivision between West Blithedale Avenue and Manzanita Place failed to get a majority vote. The addition would reduce open area in the subdivision from 12 to 10.5 acres. The Subdivider, William S. Allen, claimed the aditional lots were necessary to make the project economically feasible.

The commission split 3-3 vote, Commissioners Edward J. Boessenecker, Normand Black and John K. Robinson voting to deny the request. Commissioner Donald Batchelder was absent.

Mill Valley Planning commission also:

1. Approved subdivision of 4.6 acres owned by Leonard Fleishman on upper Camino Alto into seven lots.

3. Named Black and Commissioner Richard J. Hiatt to nominate officers for 1967.

Car Wiring Not Intended For A Bomb

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Richard Paris wired his car for a burglar alarm—not as an explosive suicide device, according to Lt. Paul Gulas, chief of Las Vegas detectives.

Gulas said yesterday that further examination of the car, plus information collected on the 28-year-old Army deserter, indicates two wires from the battery of the car were there for a good reason.

"Some time ago Paris wired his car with a home-made burglar alarm," Gulas said, "to keep anyone from stealing the car. It was wired into the ignition.

"This indicates to me that Paris didn't intend to blow up the car with that dynamite," Gulas added.

He did not rule out suicide in the blast that also killed Paris' 22-year-old wife, Christine, and two other couples.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Court Appoints Asset Receivers

A court may name a receiver as a court officer to protect assests of a person or business that is subject to its powers.

The use of receivers has grown in recent years. Since a debtor can easily transfer his assets to relatives or skip out, a creditor may ask the court to name somebody to take charge of his assets.

Receivers often play a part in business law suits. A partner may sue for an accounting, for example, and ask the court to name a receiver to take charge to preserve the assets.

If a business is near bankruptcy, a creditor may want to keep the assets intact. He asks the court to name a receiver to take over and put the daily receipts into a special account. As a rule the receiver can hire and fire, manage the business, and take over the owner's powers.

A wife may sue for divorce. If she fears that the husband may fail to take proper care of the assets, she may ask the court to name a receiver. She may also want to insure her alimony or child support payments by having the receiver collect the husband's wages.

The court may name a receiver without prior notice to her husband. Pending the outcome of the case the court may order the husband to turn over his paycheck to the receiver, and place his assets in the court's custody. The husband, of course, can ask the court to suspend or revoke the receiver's powers and appointment.

After the divorce the court may continue the receiver's powers to protect child support payments.

In a probate proceeding the court may name a receiver although as a rule the duties of protecting the assets of an estate belong to the executor. Sometimes appointment of the executor may take time and creditors or heirs need quick action.

An infant or an incompetent person may also have some court official take care of his assets, usually a guardian. The court may name a conservator to take care of assets that need attention at once. Later the court may name a guardian of the person also.

All of these officials report to the court, and must account to, and may have to answer questions from, the beneficiary or his creditors.

As a rule the receiver must be paid out of the estate, but sometimes the court may order one of the parties to pay for his expenses. In many large communities there are "professional receivers" to take care of a business.

Planning Director Tells Of Projects

Marin County Planning Director Paul C. Zucker yesterday listed some of the projects under study in the department for the benefit of the planning commission.

They include study of a low-rent housing project in the low area of Lomita Park south of San Rafael, detailed studies of neighborhood improvement programs possible in several areas of the county, modification of the Civic Center master plan, a master plan for the county farm property, and preparation of the annual program report needed to comply with the Federal Housing Act.

Novato School Board Hears State Orders

Plans for San Marin High School must be altered to meet the state requirements, Supt. James G. Bunker told the Novato Unified School District trustees last night.

Plans were to construct the school in three stages. However, said Bunker, "the state feels that the school should be completed for the original enrollment of about 800." It favors constructing three 800-student high schools on one campus rather than one large school for ultimate enrollment of 2,000, Bunker said.

As a result, such buildings as the gymnasium and library must be cut down in size, he reported.

Novato Unified School District trustees also:

1. Awarded a contract for 13 typewriters to Novato Office Equipment Co. at $229.50 each plus sales tax.

2. Certified as complete Novato High School, Hill Junior High School, and Olive School additions, and the Pleasant Valley School.

3. Approved annexation of the Pacheco School to the Novato Saintary District.

4. Set boundaries for next year's attendance at the two junior high schools: For Hill Junior High School, all students from Marion, Lu Sutton and West Novato schools, from Rancho School north of Yukon Way, and all students from Pleasant Valley School not living in Pleasant Valley or San Marin. For San Jose Junior High School —All students from Lynwood, Pacheco, Hamilton, Loma Verde and Olive schools, plus those from Rancho south of Yukon Way and from Pleasant Valley and San Marin.

5. Approved sports program for the junior high schools including basketball, track, and ninth grade tackle football, cross-country running and baseball.

Reagan Opposes Redwoods Buying

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO—If a Redwood National Park is established in Northern California, it should be created from existing public lands and not from the acquisition of private lands, Gov. Ronald Reagan declared today.

He made the statement at a press conference in the State Capitol.

"I think the Redwood National Park plan should be along the lines of Congressman Don Clausen's plan," said Reagan. He said Clausen's proposal calls for an exchange of lands between the state and federal governments and does not involve private land.

"I do not favor Sen. (Thomas H.) Kuchel's proposal or the Sierra Club's proposal, which is even larger," he said.

Sneak Thief Gets Church Collection

A church collection amounting to $43.20 was stolen early yesterday from the San Rafael home of the financial secretary of the First Methodist Church of Richmond, police reported.

Mrs. Nona Howe of 188 Prospect Drive told police she had counted the collection from Sunday services about midnight and placed it on a living room table.

While she and her husband, Paul, slept, a burglar sneaked into the room through an unlocked side door and stole the money, she said.

Greenbrae Accident Injures Motorist

Morris E. Coleman, 29, of 155 Drake Avenue, Marin City, was treated for mouth injuries at Marin General Hospital following a traffic accident at 12:15 a.m. today on the Sir Francis Drake Boulevard on-ramp to Highway 101 at Greenbrae.

The Califorina Highway Patrol said Coleman's eastbound car brushed the ramp curb, swerved across the road, and hit a concrete guard rail. A passenger, Woody Herman Armstad, 20, of 237 Drake Avenue, Marin City, was to see his own doctor, according to the patrol.

Meeting To Move

Belvedere Recreation Commission will meet in the Belvedere police department office on Beach Road at 8 p.m. today, rather than in Community Hall, as the city council will be meeting at the hall. Beautification of the city and teen-age programs will be discussed, according to Mrs. Norma Bunker, secretary.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Addison's Disease Difficult To Spot, Easier To Clear Up

VAN DELLEN

Addison's disease stems from an insufficiency of the adrenal glands. These flattened, caplike structures cover the upper part of each kidney. They control the distribution and excretion of salt and play an important role in maintaining normal blood pressure. Failure of the glands leads to weakness, gastrointestinal disturbances, and loss of appetite and weight.

Janet was 19 when she began to tire easily and soon became incapable of physical or mental effort. She was advised to withdraw from school because of poor grades and severe fatigue.

The family sent her out west but she returned home within a month because of abdominal aching and a feeling of fullness after eating.

THIS WENT ON for a year with periods when she was able to eat and felt well interspersed with complaints of a stmoachache and lassitude. The family physician was puzzled because all of the tests were normal. The possibility of Addison's disease (chronic adrenal insufficiency) entered the picture when her skin began to darken, varying from bronze to a dark brown color, especially over the parts exposed to light or pressure.

Pigmented areas also developed on the inside of the mouth. Her listlessness increased and she began to have fits of depression and irritability.

The tests necessary to diagnose Addison's disease were done and revealed definite weakness of the adrenal glands.

CORTISONE was started and improvement was rapid. In approximately 40 per cent of all cases of Addison's disease the central part of the glands is destroyed by tuberculosis. In most of the others, the tissue fails to function for reasons not known.

With additional salt and snacks between meals, the majority feel better. The outlook in this disease is excellent.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

LAZY THYROID

L. Y. writes: My metabolism is low and the doctor wants me to take thyroid, but he is not sure how long I will need it. Does this sound like a good plan?

REPLY

Yes, and the sooner the better. When the thyroid gland is lazy, some individuals take thyroid extract for a year or less, whereas others have to use the hormone for life. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on hypothyroidism.

LOOSE TEETH

Mrs. E. R. writes: Is there any medical reason why teeth should loosen overnight?

REPLY

Periodontal disease usually is responsible but it rarely develops overnight. In all probability the condition was recognized on a certain day but the individual had not realized that it had been coming on for months.

DISHPAN HANDS

Mrs. F. writes: My hands are an ugly red summer and winter. Can you tell me why?

REPLY

A circulatory disturbance such as acrocyanosis may be responsible. Another possibility is dishpan hands resulting from allergy to soap or detergent.

CLOGGED NOSTRILS

B. D. G. writes: What causes one nostril at a time to become clogged? If one is open the other is closed.

REPLY

Allergy or inflammation usually is the basis of swelling which leads to obstructions of this type.

Sausalito Trustees Study Single School Proposal

Sausalito School District's architects last night recommended that a new plant to house all students in the district be built on one of the present school sites — either Bayside, Richardson Bay or Manzanita schools.

The architects, Weisbach, Boutmy and Silver, listed advantages and disadvantages of each site, but did not recommend which would be best, reported Supt. Phillip W. Schneider. Trustees are to study their report, and asked the Citizens Finance Committee to recommend how a single school plant could be financed.

If a single site is selected, Schneider said, the other three sites would be sold to finance a building program.

Sausalito School District trustees also:

1. Sent to the county schools office the proposal for transfer from Mill Valley to Sausalito School District of the western side of Tennessee Valley.

2. Rented the old Manzanita School to the county schools office for $425 a month to operate a pre-school and child care center.

3. Granted Delpha Jensen, first grade teacher at Bayside School for 10 years, retirement at close of the current school year.

Pennsy-New York Merger Debate Still On In Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court hears more arguments today on whether the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads should be allowed to complete their merger immediately.

A $6 billion consolidation, it would be the largest business unification in the nation's history.

The Interstate Commerce Commission approved the merger last April, but a combination of nearly every other railroad in the Northeast has prevented its consummation.

The ICC favors immediate consummation. Its general counsel, Robert W. Ginnane, argued yesterday that "if the Penn-Central merger is delayed too long nobody has any assurance it ever will take place."

Solicitor General Thurgood Marshall, representing the Justice Department, said the government wants the merger delayed until three smaller Eastern lines — he called them "three little orphans" — get a home somewhere.

Flat Tire, Collision

Clarence Leonard Haskin, 68, of 5 Jessup Street, San Rafael, was driving north on Highway 101 south of the Forbes overpass in San Rafael yesterday at 3:05 p.m. when a tire went flat. As he slowed, his car was hit by one driven by Marjorie Olina Gomez, 25, of 527-A Atherton Avenue, Novato, the California Highway Patrol reported. Haskin said he would see his own doctor for treatment of minor injuries.

Decision Delayed On School Land

The Kentfield School District board last night postponed decision on purchase of land next to Adaline E. Kent School until flood control plans are completed.

The Marin Junior College District had offered to sell the elementary district one-third acre of land adjacent to Kent School for between $2,000 and $2,500.

The board accepted the annual audit for the 1965-66 fiscal year, and approved some revisions for clarification in the district policy handbook and the district civil defense policy.

Radios Stolen At High School

Thieves, using a key, entered the San Rafael High School book store's temporary quarters behind the main school building during the weekend and stole two radios worth $122.

The theft was discovered yesterday by Marie Woelfl, book stote clerk. She said the radios were removed from a store room inside the building.

The book store is housed in the temporary quarters while the main school building undergoes remodeling.

Education Network Slates Special On LBJ Speech

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—National Educational Television (NET) takes a historic step tonight when it connects some 75 of its affiliated stations for a live, coast-to-coast broadcast of President Johnson's State of the Union address.

With a half-hour foreword placing the address in historical perspective, and a lengthy discussion by celebrated analysts following the speech, the broadcast is expected to last about three hours or more, according to NET spokesmen.

Starting air time is 6 p.m. PST. The President is scheduled to begin his talk at 6:30 p.m. PST.

Taking part in the post-speech analysis tonight are such experts as Arthur Schlesinger Jr., Clinton Rossiter, George Kennan, George Ball, Daniel Moynihan, Kenneth Clark, James Kilpatrick Walter Heller, Milton Friedman and Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh. NBC-TV is reported to have asked Schlesinger to take part in its discussion, but a source said he replied he was already committed to the NET broadcast.

The three major commercial networks—ABC, CBS and NBC—will, of course, televise tonight's State of the Union address as usual.

Last night, the networks began what might be termed "Super week" for commercial television—starting with two new situation comedies that are take-offs on Superman, and ending Sunday with the Super Bowl football game between Green Bay and Kansas City.

In keeping with the general tenor of the week, the two Superman spoofs Monday night—CBS-TV's "Mr. Terrific" and NBC-TV's "Captain Nice"—were super flops, which of course has nothing to do with the ratings. The two heroes take pills or potions that make them feel strong enough to fly, and send them off on trips. I thought there was a law against that kind of stuff.

Stores Shut To Make Prices Lower

Lucky Stores in Northern California, including the market in the Fair-Anselm Shopping Center, Fairfax, have been closed since Sunday to reduce prices on all items "except those controlled by law," it was announced today.

D. G. Richardson, vice president and northern regional manager, said all stores will reopen Thursday at 10 a.m. under a new discount pricing and merchandising policy. He said prices are being lowered on virtually every item — made possible by shortening store hours, streamlining store operations "and the elimination of trading stamps or other merchandising gimmicks which add to the cost of the food."

Richardson said there will be no change in the quality or selection of merchandise. The discount policy will be in effect everyday instead of during weekend specials, with items clearly priced to eliminate guesswork, he said.

Lucky's new store hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Mondays through Fridays; from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturdays and from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Sundays.

Stolen Car Recovered

A car stolen Saturday by four Tamalpais Valley teen-agers from Mrs. Margaret T. Boyer, 80 Buena Vista Avenue, Mill Valley, was recovered Sunday when the four were arrested by Sonoma police, Mill Valley police reported yesterday. The juveniles are to be returned to Marin County authorities.

New Lawmaker Is Picturesque

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—When the Arizona Legislature opened its 1967 session yesterday, Lloyd House wore a tall, black hat, a suit with Western cut, black cowboy boots, a cowboy shirt and handcrafted Indian jewelry.

House is a 35-year-old Navajo-Oneida and the first Indian elected to the Arizona Legislature. He is a Democrat.

Asked about the hat, House said it's traditional for a "head man" among Navajos.

"It's also good for attracting squaws," he said.

Reagan Balks At Blanket Clemency Plea

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan today declined to make a "blanket decision" on the fate of 59 condemned prisoners on San Quentin's death row.

The governor was asked at a news conference to comment on a demand by the American Civil Liberties Union that he use his powers of executive clemency to save all the prisoners.

He pointed out that all the prisoners now on Death Row were under court stays of execution and no execution dates had been set.

"I have no requests for executive clemency," he said. "Each case will be individually considered —they are all individuals — and I don't believe in making a blanket decision. I'll treat each one independently."

Fatal Air Crash Blamed On Drink

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Famed stunt pilot Paul Mantz, killed in a crash during filming of "The Flight of the Phoenix" in 1965, was flying under the influence of alcohol, according to a Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) report released yesterday.

Mantz, 61, died when his specially built $90,000 aircraft nosed over on the desert about 20 miles west of Yuma, Ariz.

The CAB listed the probable causes of the accident as:

"Impaired efficiency and judgment of the pilot caused by the consumption of alcohol.

Defense To Name Boston Strangler

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI)— A mental patient who claims he is the Boston strangler goes on trial today on sex, assault and burglary charges.

Albert H. De Salvo, 35, was being defended in Superior Court by noted criminal lawyer F. Lee Bailey who in trial evidence plans to identify the crewcut onetime handyman as the Boston Strangler. The stranglings of 13 women have been attributed to the Strangler but no one has been charged with the killings.

Bailey made clear he does not seek De Salvo's freedom but wants him committed for life to a mental institution where he can be given adequate and competent psychiatric care.

Air Base Calls For Jobs Bidding

The base procurement office at Hamilton Air Force Base today called for bids for several jobs.

Bids on musical instruments will be opened at 3 p.m. Wednesday. Bids to repair roofs of several buildings will be opened at 2 p.m., Jan. 30, both at Hamilton. Bids to paint water tanks at the Mill Valley Air Force station will be opened at 2 p.m., Feb. 3, also at Hamilton.

High Court Rules On Cuba Passage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled unanimously today that a citizen who holds a generally valid passport cannot be criminally prosected for traveling to Cuba without government authorization.

At the same time the court upheld the government's right to declare certain foreign countries out of bounds.

But travel to these countries without specific authorization may not lead to criminal prosecution, Justice Abe Fortas said for the high court.

The ruling in two Cuba travel cases overturned the government's claim that Congress had made it a crime to travel to Cuba without authorization.

Fortas said the decision "rests entirely upon our construction of the relevant statutes and regulations."

"In short," the justice wrote, "the relevant State Department promulgations are not only devoid of a suggestion that travel to Cuba without a specifically criminal conduct, but they also contain positive suggestions that the purpose and effect of the restriction were merely to make clear that the passport was not to be regarded by the traveler in Cuba as a voucher on the protective services normally afforded by the State Department."

Last May the court ruled 6-3 that the secretary of state may refuse to grant passports to American citizens for travel to Cuba. At that time the court left open the question whether it is a crime to violate the travel restrictions.

That was the question decided today.

Planners Hit High Marin Home Density

Mill Valley Planning Commission unanimously recommended last night that the city council urge the county to immediately amend its zoning ordinance to prohibit all dwellings in agricultural areas.

Also, agricultural or open area zoning controls should be placed on all rural areas in the county, commissioners urged.

Their recommendations were in response to a report by ctiy Planning Director Harvey E. Bragdon that the preliminary regional plan just released by Assn. of Bay Area Gevernments shows present zoning in Marin County allows the highest density in the Bay Area except San Francisco.

Addition of four lots to the 18 already approved for a 23.5-acre subdivision between West Blithedale Avenue and Manzanita Place failed to get a majority vote. The addition would reduce open area in the subdivision from 12 to 10.5 acres. The Subdivider, William S. Allen, claimed the aditional lots were necessary to make the project economically feasible.

The commission split 3-3 vote, Commissioners Edward J. Boessenecker, Normand Black and John K. Robinson voting to deny the request. Commissioner Donald Batchelder was absent.

Mill Valley Planning commission also:

1. Approved subdivision of 4.6 acres owned by Leonard Fleishman on upper Camino Alto into seven lots.

2. Deferred to Feb. 13 proposed rezoning of the James Egger holding on Miller Avenue behind the Signal Oil station from general commercial to multiple-family dwelling.

3. Named Black and Commissioner Richard J. Hiatt to nominate officers for 1967.

Car Wiring Not Intended For A Bomb

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Richard Paris wired his car for a burglar alarm—not as an explosive suicide device, according to Lt. Paul Gulas, chief of Las Vegas detectives.

Gulas' men are investigating an explosion that killed six persons Saturday at a downtown motel.

Gulas said yesterday that further examination of the car, plus information collected on the 28-year-old Army deserter, indicates two wires from the battery of the car were there for a good reason.

"Some time ago Paris wired his car with a home-made burglar alarm," Gulas said, "to keep anyone from stealing the car. It was wired into the ignition.

"This indicates to me that Paris didn't intend to blow up the car with that dynamite," Gulas added.

He did not rule out suicide in the blast that also killed Paris' 22-year-old wife, Christine, and two other couples.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Court Appoints Asset Receivers

A court may name a receiver as a court officer to protect assests of a person or business that is subject to its powers.

The use of receivers has grown in recent years. Since a debtor can easily transfer his assets to relatives or skip out, a creditor may ask the court to name somebody to take charge of his assets.

Receivers often play a part in business law suits. A partner may sue for an accounting, for example, and ask the court to name a receiver to take charge to preserve the assets.

If a business is near bankruptcy, a creditor may want to keep the assets intact. He asks the court to name a receiver to take over and put the daily receipts into a special account. As a rule the receiver can hire and fire, manage the business, and take over the owner's powers.

A wife may sue for divorce. If she fears that the husband may fail to take proper care of the assets, she may ask the court to name a receiver. She may also want to insure her alimony or child support payments by having the receiver collect the husband's wages.

The court may name a receiver without prior notice to her husband. Pending the outcome of the case the court may order the husband to turn over his paycheck to the receiver, and place his assets in the court's custody. The husband, of course, can ask the court to suspend or revoke the receiver's powers and appointment.

After the divorce the court may continue the receiver's powers to protect child support payments.

In a probate proceeding the court may name a receiver although as a rule the duties of protecting the assets of an estate belong to the executor. Sometimes appointment of the executor may take time and creditors or heirs need quick action.

An infant or an incompetent person may also have some court official take care of his assets, usually a guardian. The court may name a conservator to take care of assets that need attention at once. Later the court may name a guardian of the person also.

All of these officials report to the court, and must account to, and may have to answer questions from, the beneficiary or his creditors.

As a rule the receiver must be paid out of the estate, but sometimes the court may order one of the parties to pay for his expenses. In many large communities there are "professional receivers" to take care of a business.

NOTE: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our law.

Planning Director Tells Of Projects

Marin County Planning Director Paul C. Zucker yesterday listed some of the projects under study in the department for the benefit of the planning commission.

They include study of a low-rent housing project in the low area of Lomita Park south of San Rafael, detailed studies of neighborhood improvement programs possible in several areas of the county, modification of the Civic Center master plan, a master plan for the county farm property, and preparation of the annual program report needed to comply with the Federal Housing Act.

Novato School Board Hears State Orders

Plans for San Marin High School must be altered to meet the state requirements, Supt. James G. Bunker told the Novato Unified School District trustees last night.

Plans were to construct the school in three stages. However, said Bunker, "the state feels that the school should be completed for the original enrollment of about 800." It favors constructing three 800-student high schools on one campus rather than one large school for ultimate enrollment of 2,000, Bunker said.

As a result, such buildings as the gymnasium and library must be cut down in size, he reported.

Novato Unified School District trustees also:

1. Awarded a contract for 13 typewriters to Novato Office Equipment Co. at $229.50 each plus sales tax.

2. Certified as complete Novato High School, Hill Junior High School, and Olive School additions, and the Pleasant Valley School.

3. Approved annexation of the Pacheco School to the Novato Saintary District.

4. Set boundaries for next year's attendance at the two junior high schools: For Hill Junior High School, all students from Marion, Lu Sutton and West Novato schools, from Rancho School north of Yukon Way, and all students from Pleasant Valley School not living in Pleasant Valley or San Marin. For San Jose Junior High School —All students from Lynwood, Pacheco, Hamilton, Loma Verde and Olive schools, plus those from Rancho south of Yukon Way and from Pleasant Valley and San Marin.

5. Approved sports program for the junior high schools including basketball, track, and ninth grade tackle football, cross-country running and baseball.

Reagan Opposes Redwoods Buying

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO—If a Redwood National Park is established in Northern California, it should be created from existing public lands and not from the acquisition of private lands, Gov. Ronald Reagan declared today.

He made the statement at a press conference in the State Capitol.

"I think the Redwood National Park plan should be along the lines of Congressman Don Clausen's plan," said Reagan. He said Clausen's proposal calls for an exchange of lands between the state and federal governments and does not involve private land.

"I do not favor Sen. (Thomas H.) Kuchel's proposal or the Sierra Club's proposal, which is even larger," he said.

Sneak Thief Gets Church Collection

A church collection amounting to $43.20 was stolen early yesterday from the San Rafael home of the financial secretary of the First Methodist Church of Richmond, police reported.

Mrs. Nona Howe of 188 Prospect Drive told police she had counted the collection from Sunday services about midnight and placed it on a living room table.

While she and her husband, Paul, slept, a burglar sneaked into the room through an unlocked side door and stole the money, she said.

Greenbrae Accident Injures Motorist

Morris E. Coleman, 29, of 155 Drake Avenue, Marin City, was treated for mouth injuries at Marin General Hospital following a traffic accident at 12:15 a.m. today on the Sir Francis Drake Boulevard on-ramp to Highway 101 at Greenbrae.

The California Highway Patrol said Coleman's eastbound car brushed the ramp curb, swerved across the road, and hit a concrete guard rail. A passenger, Woody Herman Armstad, 20, of 237 Drake Avenue, Marin City, was to see his own doctor, according to the patrol.

Meeting To Move

Belvedere Recreation Commission will meet in the Belvedere police department office on Beach Road at 8 p.m. today, rather than in Community Hall, as the city council will be meeting at the hall. Beautification of the city and teen-age programs will be discussed, according to Mrs. Norma Bunker, secretary.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Addison's Disease Difficult To Spot, Easier To Clear Up

VAN DELLEN

Addison's disease stems from an insufficiency of the adrenal glands. These flattened, caplike structures cover the upper part of each kidney. They control the distribution and excretion of salt and play an important role in maintaining normal blood pressure. Failure of the glands leads to weakness, gastrointestinal disturbances, and loss of appetite and weight.

Janet was 19 when she began to tire easily and soon became incapable of physical or mental effort. She was advised to withdraw from school because of poor grades and severe fatigue.

The family sent her out west but she returned home within a month because of abdominal aching and a feeling of fullness after eating.

THIS WENT ON for a year with periods when she was able to eat and felt well interspersed with complaints of a stmoachache and lassitude. The family physician was puzzled because all of the tests were normal. The possibility of Addison's disease (chronic adrenal insufficiency) entered the picture when her skin began to darken, varying from bronze to a dark brown color, especially over the parts exposed to light or pressure.

Pigmented areas also developed on the inside of the mouth. Her listlessness increased and she began to have fits of depression and irritability.

The tests necessary to diagnose Addison's disease were done and revealed definite weakness of the adrenal glands.

CORTISONE was started and improvement was rapid. In approximately 40 per cent of all cases of Addison's disease the central part of the glands is destroyed by tuberculosis. In most of the others, the tissue fails to function for reasons not known.

With additional salt and snacks between meals, the majority feel better. The outlook in this disease is excellent.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

LAZY THYROID

L. Y. writes: My metabolism is low and the doctor wants me to take thyroid, but he is not sure how long I will need it. Does this sound like a good plan?

REPLY

Yes, and the sooner the better. When the thyroid gland is lazy, some individuals take thyroid extract for a year or less, whereas others have to use the hormone for life. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on hypothyroidism.

LOOSE TEETH

Mrs. E. R. writes: Is there any medical reason why teeth should loosen overnight?

REPLY

Periodontal disease usually is responsible but it rarely develops overnight. In all probability the condition was recognized on a certain day but the individual had not realized that it had been coming on for months.

DISHPAN HANDS

Mrs. F. writes: My hands are an ugly red summer and winter. Can you tell me why?

REPLY

A circulatory disturbance such as acrocyanosis may be responsible. Another possibility is dishpan hands resulting from allergy to soap or detergent.

CLOGGED NOSTRILS

B. D. G. writes: What causes one nostril at a time to become clogged? If one is open the other is closed.

REPLY

Allergy or inflammation usually is the basis of swelling which leads to obstructions of this type.

Sausalito Trustees Study Single School Proposal

Sausalito School District's architects last night recommended that a new plant to house all students in the district be built on one of the present school sites — either Bayside, Richardson Bay or Manzanita schools.

The architects, Weisbach, Boutmy and Silver, listed advantages and disadvantages of each site, but did not recommend which would be best, reported Supt. Phillip W. Schneider. Trustees are to study their report, and asked the Citizens Finance Committee to recommend how a single school plant could be financed.

If a single site is selected, Schneider said, the other three sites would be sold to finance a building program.

Sausalito School District trustees also:

1. Sent to the county schools office the proposal for transfer from Mill Valley to Sausalito School District of the western side of Tennessee Valley.

2. Rented the old Manzanita School to the county schools office for $425 a month to operate a pre-school and child care center.

3. Granted Delpha Jensen, first grade teacher at Bayside School for 10 years, retirement at close of the current school year.

Pennsy-New York Merger Debate Still On In Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court hears more arguments today on whether the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads should be allowed to complete their merger immediately.

A $6 billion consolidation, it would be the largest business unification in the nation's history.

The Interstate Commerce Commission approved the merger last April, but a combination of nearly every other railroad in the Northeast has prevented its consummation.

The ICC favors immediate consummation. Its general counsel, Robert W. Ginnane, argued yesterday that "if the Penn-Central merger is delayed too long nobody has any assurance it ever will take place."

Solicitor General Thurgood Marshall, representing the Justice Department, said the government wants the merger delayed until three smaller Eastern lines — he called them "three little orphans" — get a home somewhere.

Flat Tire, Collision

Clarence Leonard Haskin, 68, of 5 Jessup Street, San Rafael, was driving north on Highway 101 south of the Forbes overpass in San Rafael yesterday at 3:05 p.m. when a tire went flat. As he slowed, his car was hit by one driven by Marjorie Olina Gomez, 25, of 527-A Atherton Avenue, Novato, the California Highway Patrol reported. Haskin said he would see his own doctor for treatment of minor injuries.

Decision Delayed On School Land

The Kentfield School District board last night postponed decision on purchase of land next to Adaline E. Kent School until flood control plans are completed.

The Marin Junior College District had offered to sell the elementary district one-third acre of land adjacent to Kent School for between $2,000 and $2,500.

The board accepted the annual audit for the 1965-66 fiscal year, and approved some revisions for clarification in the district policy handbook and the district civil defense policy.

Radios Stolen At High School

Thieves, using a key, entered the San Rafael High School book store's temporary quarters behind the main school building during the weekend and stole two radios worth $122.

The theft was discovered yesterday by Marie Woelfl, book stote clerk. She said the radios were removed from a store room inside the building.

The book store is housed in the temporary quarters while the main school building undergoes remodeling.

Judge Says Marijuana Search Of Car Illegal

San Rafael police staged an illegal search of a car in which more than $20,000 worth of marijuana was found last Nov. 18, Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court ruled yesterday.

He then dismissed counts of marijuana possession and having marijuana for sale against the driver, Garth J. B. Upton, 22-year-old San Francisco State College student.

Judge Wilson said officers searched the vehicle and found the marijuana in the trunk only after Upton had already been arrested for other violations, and after the car had been moved to the county courthouse.

A search without a search warrant must be conducted at the scene and during the process of arrest, he said; therefore the action was illegal.

His dismissal came on motion by Upton's attorney, Robert D. Carrow of Novato.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Joshua Thomas argued the search was legal. He said police halted Upton and two companions in the car traveling in the wrong lane of Irwin Street. A radio check disclosed Upton was wanted by Oakland police for driving with a suspended license. He also was unable to produce registration for the vehicle, Thomas said.

He was arrested and booked in county jail for the Oakland warrant. The car was moved to the courthouse and searched some 15 to 20 minutes after Upton's booking, Thomas said.

The marijuana was then discovered.

Thomas argued that officers were seeking evidence of ownership of the car, a legal reason for the search. Upton's two companions were later released for insufficient evidence.

Upton was held for trial after preliminary hearing Dec. 2 before Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. of Marin Municipal Court. He made $5,500 bail on the marijuana counts, and $289 bail on the Oakland warrant for driving with a suspended license.

Thomas said the car was sold by a Marvin Handler of Atherton to Robert D'Donovan of Palo Alto, but San Rafael police been unable to locate O'Donovan. The car has not been reported stolen.

Thomas also said the district attorney's office did not plan to appeal Judge Wilson's ruling.

Deputy Assault Jail Term Given

William L. Bland, 19, was sentenced to six months in county jail by Judge Thomas F. Keating of Marin Superior Court yesterday for assulting a deputy sheriff in Marin City last June 12.

Judge Keating also placed Bland on two years probation. The jail term will be in addition to a 90-day term Bland is serving for concealing stolen television sets.

Bland, of 99 Cole Drive, Marin City, assulted Deputy Gary Bartolotti during adisturbance in which offficers attempted to arrest another Marin City resident. He was convicted by a jury Uov. 23 after an earlier trial resulted in a mistrial.

Education Network Slates Special On LBJ Speech

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—National Educational Television (NET) takes a historic step tonight when it connects some 75 of its affiliated stations for a live, coast-to-coast broadcast of President Johnson's State of the Union address.

With a half-hour foreword placing the address in historical perspective, and a lengthy discussion by celebrated analysts following the speech, the broadcast is expected to last about three hours or more, according to NET spokesmen.

Starting air time is 6 p.m. PST. The President is scheduled to begin his talk at 6:30 p.m. PST.

Taking part in the post-speech analysis tonight are such experts as Arthur Schlesinger Jr., Clinton Rossiter, George Kennan, George Ball, Daniel Moynihan, Kenneth Clark, James Kilpatrick Walter Heller, Milton Friedman and Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh. NBC-TV is reported to have asked Schlesinger to take part in its discussion, but a source said he replied he was already committed to the NET broadcast.

The three major commercial networks—ABC, CBS and NBC—will, of course, televise tonight's State of the Union address as usual.

Last night, the networks began what might be termed "Super week" for commercial television—starting with two new situation comedies that are take-offs on Superman, and ending Sunday with the Super Bowl football game between Green Bay and Kansas City.

In keeping with the general tenor of the week, the two Superman spoofs Monday night—CBS-TV's "Mr. Terrific" and NBC-TV's "Captain Nice"—were super flops, which of course has nothing to do with the ratings. The two heroes take pills or potions that make them feel strong enough to fly, and send them off on trips. I thought there was a law against that kind of stuff.

Stores Shut To Make Prices Lower

Lucky Stores in Northern California, including the market in the Fair-Anselm Shopping Center, Fairfax, have been closed since Sunday to reduce prices on all items "except those controlled by law," it was announced today.

D. G. Richardson, vice president and northern regional manager, said all stores will reopen Thursday at 10 a.m. under a new discount pricing and merchandising policy. He said prices are being lowered on virtually every item — made possible by shortening store hours, streamlining store operations "and the elimination of trading stamps or other merchandising gimmicks which add to the cost of the food."

Richardson said there will be no change in the quality or selection of merchandise. The discount policy will be in effect everyday instead of during weekend specials, with items clearly priced to eliminate guesswork, he said.

Lucky's new store hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Mondays through Fridays; from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturdays and from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Sundays.

Stolen Car Recovered

A car stolen Saturday by four Tamalpais Valley teen-agers from Mrs. Margaret T. Boyer, 80 Buena Vista Avenue, Mill Valley, was recovered Sunday when the four were arrested by Sonoma police, Mill Valley police reported yesterday. The juveniles are to be returned to Marin County authorities.

New Lawmaker Is Picturesque

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—When the Arizona Legislature opened its 1967 session yesterday, Lloyd House wore a tall, black hat, a suit with Western cut, black cowboy boots, a cowboy shirt and handcrafted Indian jewelry.

House is a 35-year-old Navajo-Oneida and the first Indian elected to the Arizona Legislature. He is a Democrat.

Asked about the hat, House said it's traditional for a "head man" among Navajos.

"It's also good for attracting squaws," he said.

Judge Says Marijuana Search Of Car Illegal

San Rafael police staged an illegal search of a car in which more than $20,000 worth of marijuana was found last Nov. 18, Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court ruled yesterday.

He then dismissed counts of marijuana possession and having marijuana for sale against the driver, Garth J. B. Upton, 22-year-old San Francisco State College student.

Judge Wilson said officers searched the vehicle and found the marijuana in the trunk only after Upton had already been arrested for other violations, and after the car had been moved to the county courthouse.

A search without a search warrant must be conducted at the scene and during the process of arrest, he said; therefore the action was illegal.

His dismissal came on motion by Upton's attorney, Robert D. Carrow of Novato.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Joshua Thomas argued the search was legal. He said police halted Upton and two companions in the car traveling in the wrong lane of Irwin Street. A radio check disclosed Upton was wanted by Oakland police for driving with a suspended license. He also was unable to produce registration for the vehicle, Thomas said.

He was arrested and booked in county jail for the Oakland warrant. The car was moved to the courthouse and searched some 15 to 20 minutes after Upton's booking, Thomas said. The marijuana was then discovered.

Thomas argued that officers were seeking evidence of ownership of the car, a legal reason for the search. Upton's two companions were later released for insufficient evidence.

Upton was held for trial after preliminary hearing Dec. 2 before Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. of Marin Municipal Court. He made $5,500 bail on the marijuana counts, and $289 bail on the Oakland warrant for driving with a suspended license.

Thomas said the car was sold by a Marvin Handler of Atherton to Robert D'Donovan of Palo Alto, but San Rafael police been unable to locate O'Donovan. The car has not been reported stolen.

Thomas also said the district attorney's office did not plan to appeal Judge Wilson's ruling.

Deputy Assault Jail Term Given

William L. Bland, 19, was sentenced to six months in county jail by Judge Thomas F. Keating of Marin Superior Court yesterday for assulting a deputy sheriff in Marin City last June 12.

Judge Keating also placed Bland on two years probation. The jail term will be in addition to a 90-day term Bland is serving for concealing stolen television sets.

Bland, of 99 Cole Drive, Marin City, assulted Deputy Gary Bartolotti during adisturbance in which offficers attempted to arrest another Marin City resident. He was convicted by a jury Uov. 23 after an earlier trial resulted in a mistrial.

New Postal Center Dedication Saturday

Marin's first self-service automatic post office—one of 100 units in the United States—will be dedicated at 2 p.m. Saturday in the Corte Madera Shopping Center.

The unit was literally saved, according to Richard G. Burns, for the North Bay Area only as the result of the dedicated efforts of a group of Corte Madera Center businessmen and the town's postmaster.

In November of last year, the U.S. Post Office was about to abandon its efforts to locate an experimental self-service automatic postal unit in Corte Madera. , The unit contains an automatic bill and coin changer, scales for weighing packages and letters; stamp and franked envelope dispensers, minimum insurance purchase facilities; mailing facilities for packages and letters; a map of postal zones and rates.

Also drive up postal service; a phone line to the post office for emergency information; and 24-hour service. The completely automatic lettar and package mailing facilities were due to be lost for want of funds to complete construction.

The committee obtained a pledge from the owner of the Corte Madera Shopping Center to donate the land for the unit plus a substantial portion of utility and foundation construction costs.

It also obtained pledges from Corte Madera Center business and professional people to meet the balance of the costs, and obtained approval from Corte Madera Town officials of the site and design location. By December, installation of the facility was insured.

Saturday's dedication ceremonies will feature the Hamilton Air Force Band, Marin's Marines as a color guard, and numerous federal, state and local government officials who will be on hand to cut the tape and welcome the unit which has been completed and is in operation just off U.S. Highway 101 in the center's eastern parking lot.

The unit is only a few feet from the shopping center arcade and readily accessible to shoppers and visitors who wish to do their shopping and mail their packages and letters at the same time.

WILL ENTERTAIN—The 4th Air Force band, located at Hamilton Air Force Base, will help officiate at the dedication Saturday of the new self-service postal office in the Corte Madera Shopping Center.

New Postal Center Dedication Saturday

scales for weighing packages and letters; stamp and franked envelope dispensers, minimum insurance purchase facilities; mailing facilities for packages and letters; a map of postal zones and rates.

Also drive up postal service; a phone line to the post office for emergency information; and 24-hour service. The completely automatic lettar and package mailing facilities were due to be lost for want of funds to complete construction.

The committee obtained a pledge from the owner of the Corte Madera Shopping Center to donate the land for the unit plus a substantial portion of utility and foundation construction costs.

It also obtained pledges from Corte Madera Center business and professional people to meet the balance of the costs, and obtained approval from Corte Madera Town officials of the site and design location. By December, installation of the facility was insured.

Saturday's dedication ceremonies will feature the Hamilton Air Force Band, Marin's Marines as a color guard, and numerous federal, state and local government officials who will be on hand to cut the tape and welcome the unit which has been completed and is in operation just off U.S. Highway 101 in the center's eastern parking lot.

The unit is only a few feet from the shopping center arcade and readily accessible to shoppers and visitors who wish to do their shopping and mail their packages and letters at the same time.

Schools In Russia Stress Formality

MOSCOW (UPI) —If a typical American teen-ager suddenly enrolled in a Russian school, he'd become conscious of the difference in values and the ideological undertone of Soviet education.

But even more, he would notice the discipline and the formality. The atmosphere in the schools in Russia is more like that found in French or German schools than American.

The children must rise when their teacher or any adult walks in or out of the classroom.

The students must be neat and attentive. They must stand when addressed by the teacher. For infractions of discipline they are sent to the director (principal) who may inform their parents. Corporal punishment is forbidden in the schools. The most extreme punishment is expulsion from school.

Westerners here observe that learning is more by rote in Soviet schools than in America and there is little effort to make children do independent research and thinking.

When the daughter of UPI Moscow correspondent Henry Shapiro, after studying in an ordinary Russian school, transferred to a better than average American high school about 10 years ago, she was placed in a grade two years ahead of her age group on the basis of the subjects she had studied in Moscow.

She had been at school in Moscow five to six hours a day, six days a week, nine months a year. Her homework required three to five hours daily.

Schools were coeducational until 1944, when Stalin ordered the sexes segregated. In 1954, after his death, coeducation was reestablished.

Stalin also introduced uniforms for children as well as university students and professors. Many children still wear school uniforms—black or white pinafores on brown dresses and white hair ribbons for the girls military-style tunics and visored caps for boys.

As in America, the children lunch at school cafeterias, which charge nominal prices. Most cafeterias serve hot meals but a few of them serve only sandwiches and tea or chocolate. Some children bring their own lunch from home.

A shortage of room makes it necessary to operate many schools on two shifts, the first one running from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and the second from 2:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Schools operate six days a week.

Russian children in grades 1 to 4 get summer vacations of three months and 10 days. Children in the higher grades get two and a half months vacations. All get four days off in November, two weeks off in the winter and a one-week spring vacation.

All schools have volleyball, basketball, gymnastics and chees teams. Skiing and ice-skating are organized by the children themselves through clubs and pioneer organizations.

There is competition between neighboring schools. More promising potential athletes are taken to youth stadia for intensive training in competition for district and national teams.

Schools also have bands, and other extracurricular activities, including dancing, drama and language clubs. But drum majorettes and marching bands are unknown.

Teachers and parents have been complaining about excessive homework and the question is being reexamined. Homework takes one to two hours daily for beginning grades. It rises gradually to between four and five hours for upper classmen of secondary schools.

The right to education is inalienable and guaranteed by the Soviet constitution. Children of Communist party Chairman Leonid Brezhnev may sit on the same bench with the children of a charwoman.

Testing in the schools is mostly oral. The tests are made up by the ministry of education and not by the individual teacher. There are no psychological tests.

In the universities students publish their own newspapers. They usually live in crowded dormitories, men and women in the same dormitory.

Schools In Russia Stress Formality

MOSCOW (UPI) —If a typical American teen-ager suddenly enrolled in a Russian school, he'd become conscious of the difference in values and the ideological undertone of Soviet education.

But even more, he would notice the discipline and the formality. The atmosphere in the schools in Russia is more like that found in French or German schools than American.

The children must rise when their teacher or any adult walks in or out of the classroom.

The students must be neat and attentive. They must stand when addressed by the teacher. For infractions of discipline they are sent to the director (principal) who may inform their parents. Corporal punishment is forbidden in the schools. The most extreme punishment is expulsion from school.

Westerners here observe that learning is more by rote in Soviet schools than in America and there is little effort to make children do independent research and thinking.

When the daughter of UPI Moscow correspondent Henry Shapiro, after studying in an ordinary Russian school, transferred to a better than average American high school about 10 years ago, she was placed in a grade two years ahead of her age group on the basis of the subjects she had studied in Moscow.

She had been at school in Moscow five to six hours a day, six days a week, nine months a year. Her homework required three to five hours daily.

Schools were coeducational until 1944, when Stalin ordered the sexes segregated. In 1954, after his death, coeducation was reestablished.

Stalin also introduced uniforms for children as well as university students and professors. Many children still wear school uniforms—black or white pinafores on brown dresses and white hair ribbons for the girls military-style tunics and visored caps for boys.
